Rockefeller Withdraws From Presidential Race

Nixon Left Unopposed For GOP Nomination

The new York governor, in a lengthy statement issued from his offices here, conceded the nomination was apparently decided. He did not mention Vice President Richard M. Nixon by name, but referring to the trips he made throughout the country, Rockefeller said:

NO CONTEST

"It is clear to me, as I believe it is to others, that the great majority of those who will control the Republcani convention stand opposed to any contest for the nomination."

"Therefore, any quest of the nomination on my part would entail a massive struggle — in primary elections throughout the nation — demanding so greatly of my time and energy that it would make impossible the fulfillment of my obligations as governor of New York.

"My conclusion, therefore, is that I am not, and shall not be, a candidate for the nomination for the presidency."

DEFINITE DECISION

Rockefeller said his decision was "definite and final."

The governor promised that he would do everything possible to serve the needs "of both party and country."

He said that as to his party he is "a Republican—seriously concerned about the future vigor and purpose of my party."

"I believe that we live in an age that challenges representative government and the two-party system that is its American expression."

As to country, Rockefeller said, "The national and world issues before us, I deeply believe, hold omen of both menace and hope, both danger and opportunity.

CITES ISSUES

"We all know the range of these issues: World policies, military defenses, economic growth, educational excellence, racial relations, social needs, public morals. Not one of these spheres tolerates complacence toward the future. Every one of them invites scrutiny. Such scrutiny must be full and foresighted. For such a time as this calls for a profound and continuous act of self-examination."

Rockefeller said he would contribute "all I can to this political act."

MARIN LEADER

Marin's State Sen. John F. McCarthy, who was instrumental in arranging Rockefeller's California visit some weeks ago and who has been regarded as a supporter of the New York governor for the presidential nomination, was not available today for comment on the Rockefeller announcement.

In New Hampshire, Rockefeller supporters who had hoped the New York governor would enter the state's first-in-the-nation primary, said tonight they would meet Monday to discuss his withdrawal as a presidential hopeful.

BACKERS TO MEET

William Guerdon Saltonstall, principal of Phillips-Exeter Academy and state chairman of the Rockefeller movement, said the public announcement "came as no surprise."

He said the New York governor telephoned him to say he had decided it was not possible to enter the presidential race.

"I haven't the faintest idea what action we will take," Saltonstall said, but indicated an effort would not be made to "draft" Rockefeller against his wishes.

New Hampshire's "popularity poll" comes March 8, the first in the nation, and Rockefeller supporters had hoped the New York governor would allow his name to be filed as a candidate Jan. 8, the opening day.

NIXON UNOPPOSED

Rockefeller would have faced tremendous odds in New Hampshire. Gov. Wesley Powell, Sens. Styles Bridges and Norris Cotton all were in the

Yule Brightened By World Peace Hope

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Man's hopes for peace on earth brightened today after the happiest and most relaxed Christmas the world has known since World War II.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev agreed on the holiday celebrating the birth of Christ to an East-West summit conference in Paris this spring though he urged an alternate date to the West's proposal for a start April 27. A meeting then might keep him away from the Soviet May Day celebration, one of the Communists' biggest holidays.

Peace was far from universal with rebellion in Algeria, troop movements in Iran and Iraq, tension along the India-China border, unrest in French-owned Martinique, bombardment of the Chinese Nationalist offshore islands, jitters in revolutionary Cuba and diehard Red guerrillas holding out in the jungles of Malaya.

The outpouring of good will on Christmas 1959 tended to minimize these isolated trouble spots, however, in the prayerful hopes for millions.

For Christmas the focal point of the day's religious celebrations remained in Bethlehem with the rites which have been carried down through the centuries unchanged in the changing world. Pilgrims from West and East flocked to the little town where Christ was born to pay homage at a manger where lay a symbolic statue of an infant in swaddling clothes.

Thousands attended Roman Catholic and Protestant services and wandered through the Holy Land in the biggest demonstration of faith there in years.

In Rome, Pope John XXIII, from the balcony of St. Peter's Basilica, gave his blessing to the world and spoke of peace on earth as "the gift of Heaven" for sincere men.

Christian religious services were held also behind the Iron Curtain—even in the Soviet Union, which officially mocks religion.

The Soviet news agency Tass, in a rare report on religious events, quoted Latvia's Evangelical-Lutheran Archbishop Gustav Turs as calling Christmas a festival of peace.

For the first time in several years, an American Roman Catholic priest officiated at a midnight mass in Moscow for the foreign colony. Episcopal services were held in the British embassy in the Soviet capital.

In Poland, the Communist press printed Christmas greetings to its readers.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower spent a quiet holiday in the gaily decorated White House after attending a Christmas eve candlelight service at the National Presbyterian Church.

Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, awaiting the birth of her third child, gathered with other members of the royal family at Sanringham. In a Christmas message to the Commonwealth, she expressed hope for peace and good will in the year ahead.

Sir Winston Churchill, reported feeling fine again after a recent illness that was not publicly announced, spent the day with his family at his country home in Kent.

6 Injured In Marin Holiday Road Mishaps

Six people have been injured in automobile accidents in Marin so far over the long Christmas weekend while across the nation the traffic toll of lives taken edges toward the 300 mark.

Most seriously injured up until noon today was William Joseph Brooks, 37, of 806 F street, Petaluma, who suffered lacerations and a pain in his chest after an accident Thursday evening on Highway 101 near Novato.

HIT IN REAR

Brooks was going about 55 miles per hour when he came up behind and struck a car driven by Robert Alexander Donohue, 19, of 42 Hillview, San Rafael, he told the California Highway Patrol.

Brooks told officers he thought the car belonging to Donohoe was standng still. Donohoe, who was not injured, said that he had apparently run out of gas and that his car was coasting at about 25 miles per hour when he felt the impact of another car.

Three people suffered minor injuries in another accident at about 2 p.m. Thursday when two cars collided on Highway 101 near Highway 37. The injured were Shirlie and Jan Kaiser, of 771 Plaza Amapola, Novato; and Mrs. Bernard Savin, 46, 1075 Greenwood, Novato.

NOT HURT

Shirlie Kaiser was the driver of one car; the other driver involved in the accident was Barbara C. Parker, Box 891 of San Andreas. She was uninjured.

Mildred H. Bramley, 34, of 263 Cecilia way, Mill Valley, suffered minor injuries Thursday when her car was involved in an accident with a car driven by Minna Clum, 53, of 16 Cove road, Belvedere on Tiburon boulevard, one-fourth mile east of Highway 101.

Investigation is pending by Highway patrolmen on a collision Thursday between the cars of Laurence Hales Jr., 26, 422 Via Herbosa, of Novato and of James Patrick Mulkern, 38, of 1170 Dickson drive, Novato.

Miriam Mulkern, 41, suffered minor injuries when Hales' automobile hit the rear of Mulkern's car on Highway 101, about 75 feet south of the Freitas Parkway at Terra Linda, according to the patrol.

Border Guards Slay Iraqis Attempting To Flee Country

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — One hundred Iraqis were reported today to have clashed with Iraqi border patrols while trying to flee into Iran.

Press reports said that four of the group trying to leave Iraq were killed, along with one border guard. Iranian border patrolmen apparently were involved in the clash, the latest in a series of incidents along the long frontier between the two countries.

The border is rigidly sealed and guarded by well-armed troops against flight by Iraqis who oppose the regime of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem. The country is in turmoil with waves of arrests reported. A trial opened in Baghdad today for a number of persons accused of taking part in the attempt to assassinate Kassem last Oct. 7.

The fighting took place near Khanaquin, Iraqi oil town about 100 miles northeast of Baghdad, the reports said.

The Iranian Senate met today in secret session to heard a report on the border crisis from Foreign Minister Abbas Aram.

The trouble started earlier this month when Iraqi Premier Kassem revived old claims to a small area of territory along the border now held by Iran.

Aram meets Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi tomorrow to discuss the controversy. Although both countries have sent troops and tanks into position in the disputed area, the shah is reported to have ordered moderation in dealing with the problem.

Government sources said they do not expect any differences to arise that can not be settled by international arbitration or negotiations.

The dispute concerns the area along the Shatt-Al-Arab River, which forms the border for some distance before swinging into Iraq and which also provides tanker access to Iran's giant Abandan oil refinery complex.

ARMOR POISED

Iranian armor and artillery have moved into three key positions around Abadan and the garrison at Ahwaz, 100 miles to the north, is on an alert status.

The move was made following reports that Iraq had sent five merchanized brigades to the border.

HONEYMOON DELAYED

The shah and his bride today again postponed their honeymoon, this time because of rainy weather.

The spokesman said the royal couple would remain here until the weather clears.

Nehru Vows To Guard Frontier Against Reds

ALAHABAD, India (UPI) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru vowed again today to protect India's frontiers "at any cost" against Red Chinese aggression in the wake of new, unofficial reports of Communist troop concentrations and road-building near the border.

Speaking to a crowd of several thousand at nearby Sirathu, in his native Uttar Pradesh province, Nehru appealed to the people to strengthen themselves and make the country self-sufficient.

"We did not achieve independence to remain a mere spectator" in world affairs, he said. "India will protect her sovereignty and border integrity at any cost."

Yesterday, he said he had received offers from many young Indians anxious to bear arms at the frontier. One, he said, had been written in blood.

In New Delhi, where Nehru will return tomorrow, there were reports of new Communist Chinese troop movements and apparent attempts to build new roads through land claimed by Peiping.

Government officials refused to confirm or deny the reports, but a spokesman said it was a well-known fact that the Chinese government had troops concentrated at various border points.

Diplomatic sources reported the Chinese army has 10 divisions in Sinkiang province, which borders on India's northeast frontier and Tibet.

Persistent reports from Tibetan refugees in India said the Chinese Reds were continuing a big road-building campaign in the wild mountains.

Newspapers in Katmandu, Nepal, have reported that Chinese troops crossed into the western part of the Himalayan kingdom to cut wood and to make surveys for a frontier highway being built in Tibet.

One Chinese road already built runs from Tibet through Ladakh, a territory claimed by India, where Red troops ambushed a party of Indian policemen Oct. 18-19.

Prior to Chinese Communist seizure of Tibet in 1950, the country had only a few roads, and these were traversable only by sure-footed yaks.

Ike, Herter To Discuss Summit Date

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower wants to discuss with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter a possible new date for an East-West summit conference suggested by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

Associate presidential press secretary Anne Wheaton reported this today but said she was unable to say when the Eisenhower-Herter discussion may be held.

Herter is out of Washington for the holiday period and the President is scheduled to leave for an Augusta, Ga., vacation tomorrow.

Khrushchev yesterday accepted a western invitation to a conference in Paris but rejected the proposed April 27 date. He suggested instead that the conference be held either April 21 or May 4.

Six Christmas Babies Born To Marinites

Six Marin County families received a special Christmas bonus this year that will have them hanging an extra stocking on the mantle next year. Their babies were born on Christmas Day.

Mrs. Charles Miller of 1518 Lincoln avenue in San Rafael had a boy at 1:50 a.m. at San Rafael General Hospital. The new son is the fourth child for the couple.

Next, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Frye of 3 Caldwell court, Ignacio at 9:33 a.m. in Marin General Hospital.

At 1:28 p.m., Mrs. Alan MacIver of 73 Scenic road in Fairfax had the third boy born in the county yesterday.

The only little girl born on Christmas Day arrived at 9:40 p.m. at Marin General Hospital. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pariani of 95 Summers in Novato.

Two of the little boys will have to cross the Golden Gate Bridge when they come home. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Dayton of 500 North street in Sausalito at Children's Hospital in San Francisco and at 3:41 a.m. Mrs. Alan French of 3 Princess lane in Mill Valley had a boy at San Francisco's Moffitt Hospital.

3 Savings-Loan Firms Ask Corte Madera Locations

Two savings and loan associations and a third proposed association headed by a group of prominent Marin County men have applied for locations in the Corte Madera shopping center, James M. Laurent, assistant state commissioner of savings and loan, announced yesterday in San Francisco.

The commissioner has been asked to approve the articles of incorporation of the proposed Sterling Savings and Loan Assn.

Also applying for licenses to open branches in the Corte Madera Center are the Home Mutual Savings and Loan Assn. of San Francisco and Guaranty Savings and Loan Assn. of San Jose.

Public hearings on the three applications will be held Jan. 14 at 10 a.m. in the office of the savings and loan commissioner in San Francisco, or as soon as possible after that date, according to the announcement.

The proposed incorporators and directors of the Sterling Savings and Loan Assn. are N. John Anton of Kentfield, insurance brokerage business; Edward W. Bullard Jr. of Ross, manufacturer of safety equipment; Preston A. Jones of San Rafael, manufacturer of lighting equipment; Roger Kent of Kentfield, attorney; Norman B. Livermore Jr. of San Rafael, in the lumber business; George Scott of Mill Valley, head of the Building and Construction Trades Council of Marin County, and Walter E. Terry of Sausalito, in the advertising business.

3 Savings-Loan Firms Ask Corte Madera Locations

Two savings and loan associations and a third proposed association headed by a group of prominent Marin County men have applied for locations in the Corte Madera shopping center, James M. Laurent, assistant state commissioner of savings and loan, announced yesterday in San Francisco.

The commissioner has been asked to approve the articles of incorporation of the proposed Sterling Savings and Loan Assn.

Also applying for licenses to open branches in the Corte Madera Center are the Home Mutual Savings and Loan Assn. of San Francisco and Guaranty Savings and Loan Assn. of San Jose.

Public hearings on the three applications will be held Jan. 14 at 10 a.m. in the office of the savings and loan commissioner in San Francisco, or as soon as possible after that date, according to the announcement.

The proposed incorporators and directors of the Sterling Savings and Loan Assn. are N. John Anton of Kentfield, insurance brokerage business; Edward W. Bullard Jr. of Ross, manufacturer of safety equipment; Preston A. Jones of San Rafael, manufacturer of lighting equipment; Roger Kent of Kentfield, attorney; Norman B. Livermore Jr. of San Rafael, in the lumber business; George Scott of Mill Valley, head of the Building and Construction Trades Council of Marin County, and Walter E. Terry of Sausalito, in the advertising business.

JUDITH RIEDE'S ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED AT DINNER PARTY

At a family dinner party on Christmas Eve, Harold F. Riede, well known Marin County attorney, announced the engagement of his only daughter, Judith (Judy) Riede to John Wilson Otis. The party also celebrated the twenty-first birthday of the future benedict.

Both of the young people are seniors at Stanford University. No wedding date has been set but the wedding will take place in the fall of 1960.

Judy's mother was the late Evelyn Elizabeth Riede and she has two brothers, Richard S. and Robert F. Riede, She is the granddaughter of Mrs. W. H. Richards of San Anselmo and the late Mr. Richards and the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis (Fran) Riede of San Rafael. Frank Riede was mayor of San Rafael. Judy is a graduate of Dominican High School.

The future benedict, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Otis of Larkspur, is the grandson of Mrs. Willard A. Wilson of Caldwell, Idaho and the late Mr. Wilson and of Mrs. Clarence Otis of Toledo, Ohio and the late Mr. Otis.

Milmoes Entertain At Caroler's Party

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Milmoe of Greenbrae entertained neighborhood parents and children on Tuesday evening at a Christmas Caroler's party.

Children participating in the caroling under the direction of Mrs. Milmoe and Mrs. Douglas Craig were Jeff, Ken, and Peter Ashley, Susan and Forrest Craig, Carol and Kenny Ecker, Cynthia, Jay and Sandra Egger, Carol Frank, Brad, Debbie and Greg Leininger, Doug and Kathy McCaughan, Adrian and Jimmy Maffei, Jane Meyers, Marsanne and Merrily Milmoe, Karen O'Donnell, Kirk and Verne Pessner, Diane and Rod Ponath and Bobby and Karin Sonnenberg.

Parents joining in the caroling and festivities were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ashley, Douglas Craig, William Ecker, Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Leininger, Mr. and Mrs. Gregory McCaughan, Raymond Maffei, John O'Donnell and Harold Sonnenberg.

Guest of honor for the evening was Mrs. Sallie Hamilton of Los Angeles, who arrived to be with her granddaughter, Mrs. Milmoe, and great-granddaughters, Marsanne and Merrily Milmoe over the holidays.

Also included in the evening's festivities were the gathering of Christmas gifts for eight of the Sunny Hlls children.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

Gala Welcome Set For The New Year

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Young 1960 will be given a royal welcome on Thursday night at many parties throughout the county. The largest of these will be the Meadow Club's annual New Year's Eve formal dinner dance. The club has been beautifully decorated for the holiday season and over the mantel in the lounge will be special greetings to the New Year. In the entrance hall are white poinsettias and gold silver leaves. The green Christmas tree in the lounge is decorated with white doves and gold and magenta beads and gracing the bar is a tree trimmed with miniature bottles.

The Edward Gradys head the social committee of the club and assisting them are Messrs. and Mesdames Mert Hipsley, Arthur Fay, Howard Lief, Henry Skinner and Rinaldo Sciaroni. Sarah (Mrs. Fred) Figone has arranged special entertainment. Eda Morelli, who has a glarious soprano voice and Bill Varnes, will be a duo during the cocktail hour and dance intermissions.

Among those attending will be Dr. and Mrs. James Goebel, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Molinari, Messrs. and Mesdames Vincent Sullivan, J. Benton Tulley, Arthur Latno, Donald Watts, Charles Cain, Robert Franchini, Timothy Mullen, Edward Vest, John W. Ward, Ted Weitzel, Albert Arnold, Hal Carmona, Leroy Page, G. C. Curto, Gordon Chambers, Ernest Fairey, Herbert Crocker, Herbert Christ, E. W. Gray, John Harrison, Robert Parish, Julio Arce, Richard Ashby, Howard Boscus, E. C. Peterson, W. K. Pearce, Niels Schultz Jr., E. R. Christie Jr., John Cooper, E. A. Smith, William Carewe and B. C. Coit.

HONORING Joanne Ronning of Mill Valley, bride-elect of Robert Long, her future mother-in-law, Mrs. Edwin S. Long of Sausalito, held an open house on Tuesday for about a hundred guests. Assisting the hostess were Mesdames John F. Churchill, Hal Fletcher, Norton Meyer and John F. Partridge. Junior hostesses were Elaine Churchill and Denise Coleman.

Highlight of the Christmas decor was the buffet table. Betty Long had put on it a cover af changeable taffeta, copper and turquoise, with an overlay of pale copper nylon net with scalloped edge. Gold sprayed pine boughs massed against brass candlesticks holding tall dark green tapers were the centerpiece.

A FAMILY REUNION was staged on Christmas Eve when the Patrick Fosters of Ross entertained at a dinner party. With the Fosters and their three children, Rick, Maidie and Lynne, were Pat's mother, Mrs. Paul Scott Foster; his brother, Paul Scott Foster Jr. his wife, Joan and their three boys, Allen, Paul Jr. and Howard; Joan's mother, Mrs. Frank Howard Allen, the latter's sister, Mrs. Uda Waldrop, all of Marin, Pat's brother, Robert Foster of Tucson, Ariz., his wife and their children, Cordelia and Mimi; and Pat's sister, Mrs. James Akins of Pasadena, her husband and their three children, Duff, Patrick and Peggy.

A WELCOME HOME cocktail party was given on Wednesday night by the Henry Draths of Ross for their son, Van. The young man, home for the holidays, was graduated from Princeton University last year is now research assistant in physics and electrical engineering there. About 75 gueste, mostly young friends of Van, attended the party.

AT LITTLE REED HEIGHTS a cocktail party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Stanley T. Peterson a week ago tonight. On Monday the Petersons with the Kent Beardsleys and David Kamps, also of Little Reed Heights, and the Alan W. Cundalls of Rolling Hills are leaving for a week at Tahoe.

WELCOMING Mr. and Mrs. Minthorne Tompkins to Marin, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Newton Longfellow of San Anselmo entertained at a cocktail party last Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Tompkins, who have been living for a long time in Seattle, recently moved into the home they bought in Kent Woodlands with their two children. Minthorne, whose family is one of the oldest and most prominent in Marin, was reared here. He was one of the organizers of the first Charity Ball, which is now a social tradition.

A DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR was the tea Mrs. Russell G. Smith of Ross gave a week ago today honoring her mother, Mrs. Ada Schulte, on her eighty-eighth birthday. The natal anniversary celebration has become an annual event. Invited are Mrs. Schulte's long-time friends and their daughters. Mrs. Schulte, who was born in San Francisco, remembers early days in Marin because, when she was a young girl, her family came over here during the summer.

AN OPEN HOUSE will be held by the Sydney Dorns at their San Rafael home tomorrow. They've set the hours from 4 until 8 and have invited about 50 friends. Last Sunday, another San Rafael couple, the Richard Bettinis entertained at a cocktail party. On Christmas Day the William Mullers of Ross, assisted by their 13-year-old daughter, Tilda, entertained at an open house. Mostly neighbors attended. Mr. and Mrs. John Forbes of Ross are hosting an open house tomorrow.

SEVERAL HOUSE GUESTS have been enjoying the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Greenland of Mill Valley. Her stepfather, C. W. Welch of Knoxville, Tenn., drove here to visit her over the holidays. Mr. Greenland's sister, Mrs. Magill Couch, her husband and their daughter, Jackie, came from San Diego. Also with Mr. and Mrs. Greenland at their Christmas dinner were his sister, Miss Mary Jane Hollin of San Francisco, and his brother, James Greenland of Berkeley.

INVITATIONS have been issued by the Gus Niederholzers of Kentfield to an open house a week from tomorrow.

IN VICTORIA, B. C. Capt. A. P. Conklin of Ross and his sisters, Mrs. Sylvia King and Miss Sybil Conklin of San Anselmo, are spending Christmas and New Year's at the Empress Hotel Last year they were on a holiday cruise aboard the "Lurline" to Acapulco.

IN PALM SPRINGS for the holidays are Mr. and Mrs. Max Resek of Mill Valley. They left by plane for Los Angeles on Thursday and drove to Palm Springs from there.

Brother Of White House Aide Faces Murder Charge

HERRIN, Ill. (UPI)—A brother of Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, White House staff secretary, was charged today with the Christmas murder of a 51-year-old mother.

But Walter J. Goodpaster, 46, a Carterville, Ill., optometrist, refused to make a statement or discuss the slaying with police.

He was accused of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Margaret Strunk, 51, Carterville, and the wounding of her companion, Bernard Dobraski, 32, of Herrin, in what police said was a climax to an argument over a barking dog.

Mrs. Strunk's body, shot twice in the head, was found floating in a water-filled strip mine pit near Goodpaster's home. Dobraski, who also was shot twice in the back of the head, was taken to a St. Louis hospital.

Dobraski said he and Mrs. Strunk were heading home from a Christmas Eve round of taverns when their car broke down near Goodpaster's home.

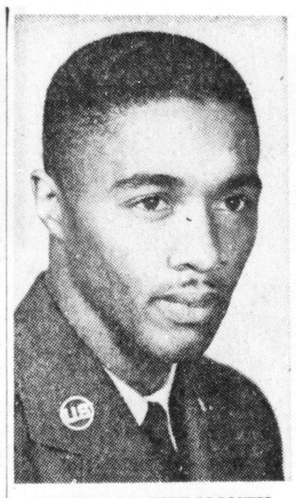

He said they walked toward Goodpaster's home to look for help, but a huge dog began barking at them.

Dobraski said he threw stones at the dog and cursed it and Goodpaster came out and threatened him with a gun.

The couple continued to walk up the road, Dobraski said, but a few minutes later Goodpaster drove up in a truck, got out and said, "You've had it."

"Don't . . . don't shoot," Dobraski said Mrs. Strunk screamed. Then shots rang out.

Dobraski said he stumbled into a nearby home and called police, who found Mrs. Strunk's body floating in the pit—93 feet from the scene—and arrested Goodpaster at his home.

AIRMAN OF THE MONTH—A/1 Lionel W. Simmons, although stationed at Castle Air Force Base, this month won the Hamilton Air Force Base "Airman of the Month" award. A new ruling permits all men of the 456th Fighter Interceptor Squadron, which is a unit of the 78th Fighter Squadron at Hamilton, to be eligible for the local award. Sinking Boat's Crew Rescued

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—A Japanese freighter yesterday rescued all 12 crew members from the sinking tuna clipper Sea Boy.

The Coast Guard said the freighter Laplanta Maru responded to the 125-foot Sea Boy's "May Day" distress signal, and the entire crew was transferred safely.

The clipper was still afloat when abandoned but water had reached the 10-foot level in the engine room and a fire had started in the pumps. The Coast Guard said it had not confirmed whether the ship sank.

It was not known what caused the ship to take water.

Explosion Ruins Christmas In Kentucky City

WARSAW, KY. — Families whose Christmas was shattered by a gas explosion in a bottling plant dug through the debris of their wrecked homes today for unopened presents and personal belongings.

Officials estimated 15 homes were destroyed and 30 severly damaged when the explosion ended Christmas festivities yesterday afternoon.

NO BODIES

An all-night search yielded no bodies. Eleven persons were taken to hospitals with injuries but eight have been released, police reported.

"It just about blew everything all to the devil," said Mrs. Beth Abbott who lives two blocks from the plant in which the explosion happened.

Mrs. Abbott said the blast blew out windows, doors, and door casings in her home. She said her grandson, Billy Andrews, 29, who also lives near the blast site "was blown clear out of his house. He had just gotton out of the bathtub — and the bathtub was blown out too."

GAS LEAK

The blast apparently was touched off, authorities said, when the plant owner attempted to light a gas pilot light and propane gas leaking from the furnace exploded.

Fire Chief Elmer Alexander estimated damage to homes at two million dollars. Damage to the plant was estimated at $400,000.

Chief Alexander's wife said many families returned to their homes this morning in hopes of salvaging Christmas presents and personal belongings. She said most of the homeless were housed by neighbors last night.

CAT NIPS LADY, IT'S NOT NEWS; CAT DIES: IT IS

ROME (UPI) — The newspaper Unita reported that a cat which bit a woman on the hand died a few hours after the incident while the human victim is doing fine.

Unita said that the woman, identified only as a 56-year-old florist in the city of Grosseto was bitten by a big white cat.

The woman paid no attention to the bite until a few hours later when the cat dropped dead. She then went to a hospital, but doctors, according to Unita, found no infection.

Polaris-Armed Sub To Be Commissioned

GROTON, Conn. — The man whose responsibility it will be — should the need ever arise — to unleash the deadly Polaris nuclear armed missile declared today, "If we ever have to hit, we'll hit. And there won't be a second's hesitation."

Cmdr. James B. Osborn, 41, is the man whose job it would be to fire the missiles from the nation's first ballistic missile submarine.

Osborn is skipper of the USS George Washington, the first such nuclear submarine, which will be commissioned Wednesday at the electric boat division of General Dynamics Corp.

"The Washington is a deterrent force whose purpose is to let an enemy know we can hit him as hard as he can hit us," Osborn said. "And when you reach the point where the winner is hurt as badly as the loser there's no point in fighting."

Cigarette Use Hits New High

The annual report of Harry M. Wootten, consultant on the tobacco industry, in the magazine estimates U.S. consumption at about 456 billion cigarettes, up 4.5 per cent from a little over 436 billion last year. Consumption per capita (15 years of age and over) rose to 188 packs, more than half a pack a day, a gain of 2 per cent over 1958 and 15 per cent over 10 years ago.

Border Burglar

Evidence indicated that the burglar entered through a door in the city of Madison and left by one in the adjoining town of Blooming Grove. The building straddled the city-town line.

American Adventurer Faces Trial For Life In Indonesia

TOKYO (UPI)—A husky, suntanned American pilot and adventurer will be escorted into a small military courtroom 10,000 miles from home Monday to go on trial for his life.

The pilot is Allen Lawrence Pope, 29, of Homestead, Fla., is accused in Jakarta, Indonesia, of hiring out to the rebels in the early days of the 1958 uprising and flying bombing missions against the Indonesian government.

Although a conviction could bring the death sentence, Pope has Indonesian court tradition on his side. The courts there rarely mete out capital punishment.

Pope was captured April 18, 1958, when his lone, World War II type B26 twin-engine bomber was shot down by anti-aircraft fire over the remote East Indonesian islands.

Since his capture 20 months ago, Pope has been held at a cool mountain resort in central Java, near the ancient sultanate of Jogjakarta. Housed in an Air Force bungalow under heavy guard, he has passed the time by studying accounting and teaching his captors judo.

Indonesian Communists have constantly called attention to the Pope case as one of "American imperialism," although it is apparent Pope was not acting for the U.S. government.

Pope's trial will be open to the public and is likely to draw much attention, particularly because of the Communist propaganda campaign. The courtroom is small and only a handful of persons will be admitted as spectators, however.

Although Pope was permitted to choose his own defense attorney, so long as it was an Indonesian, he apparently made no choice. He will be defended by a court-appointed civilian lawyer named Sukardjo. The prosecutor will be a little-known graduate of the military law school, Air Force Maj. Prodjorandono.

Hearing the case will be Air Force Lt. Col. Sardjono, a 35-year-old part-time school teacher who was appointed a military judge.

The American embassy was in no particular hurry to see the case come to trial, officials there believing that the longer it was delayed the better chance Pope would have.

Pope himself has said he wanted "to get it over with."

When the American soldier of fortune was captured, Indonesian Air Force officials said, he was carrying a number of documents that indicated he was flying for the rebels.

A high Air Force official told United Press International some time ago the trial was long delayed because the Indonesian Army had these documents and was then holding on to them in an effort to "blackmail" the United States for more aid.

Star witness in the trial was expected to be Lt. Col. Herman Pieters, commander of the remote East Indonesian area where Pope's plane was shot down.

Pope, who suffered a broken leg when his plane went down, is recovered now. He said recently he was through with the adventurous life and wants a quieter one—"like the hotel business"—if he goes free.

Brother Of White House Aide Faces Murder Charge

HERRIN, Ill. (UPI)—A brother of Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, White House staff secretary, was charged today with the Christmas murder of a 51-year-old mother.

But Walter J. Goodpaster, 46, a Carterville, Ill., optometrist, refused to make a statement or discuss the slaying with police.

He was accused of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Margaret Strunk, 51, Carterville, and the wounding of her companion, Bernard Dobraski, 32, of Herrin, in what police said was a climax to an argument over a barking dog.

Mrs. Strunk's body, shot twice in the head, was found floating in a water-filled strip mine pit near Goodpaster's home. Dobraski, who also was shot twice in the back of the head, was taken to a St. Louis hospital.

Dobraski said he and Mrs. Strunk were heading home from a Christmas Eve round of taverns when their car broke down near Goodpaster's home.

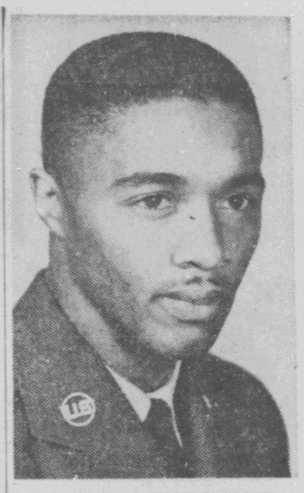

He said they walked toward Goodpaster's home to look for help, but a huge dog began barking at them.

Dobraski said he threw stones at the dog and cursed it and Goodpaster came out and threatened him with a gun.

The couple continued to walk up the road, Dobraski said, but a few minutes later Goodpaster drove up in a truck, got out and said, "You've had it."

"Don't . . . don't shoot," Dobraski said Mrs. Strunk screamed. Then shots rang out.

Dobraski said he stumbled into a nearby home and called police, who found Mrs. Strunk's body floating in the pit—93 feet from the scene—and arrested Goodpaster at his home.

Your Social Security Is Going To Cost You More

There are few today who would argue that the federal government's social security system has not been a boon to thousands of Americans. Practically everyone can cite some instance from his own experience where social security benefits, even though they seem small, have literally been life-savers for an elderly couple.

But as for all things in a democratic society, someone has to pay. And that someone is you and all the rest of us.

Two years ago we were paying 2¼ per cent of the first $4,200 of our earnings into the social security fund. Our employers were doing likewise. Self-employed were paying 3-3/8 per cent.

Starting last January, however, the rate went up to 2½ per cent and the total income assessed went up to $4,800. Now, next Friday to be exact, the rate goes up again. This time it jumps up one half of one per cent to 3 per cent for both employer and employee, three quarters of one per cent for the self-employed.

And this is not the end. Under the social security program as it exists today, the rate will bounce up half a per cent every three years until by 1969 the rate for each employee and employer will be 4½ per cent and for the self-employed 6¾ per cent, just double what it was in 1958.

There is no assurance that Congress won't enlarge social security, either by increasing coverage or increasing benefits to recipients. In fact it is almost a certainty in 1960, an election year, that there will be some increases.

Biggest effort in Washington next month probably will be made to push through some sort of medical insurance under social security coverages. The Forand Bill, which already has had five hearings in House committee, is one of the most likely to receive attention and possible passage.

The Health, Education and Welfare Department estimates that the Forand Bill, which provides hospital expenses, surgical expenses in the hospital and nursing home care after hospitalization, would cost one billion 120 million dollars in the first year.

How would this be financed? The Forand Bill calls for an additional one quarter of one per cent withholding on your social security tax and on your employer's. If you're self-employed, it would cost you three-eighths of one per cent extra.

We aren't attempting to discuss the values of the Forand Bill, which many doctors violently oppose as the start of socialized medicine. Rather we want you to have the facts on how social security is being financed so when pie-in-the-sky politicians come around promising great things for your retirement, you can ask him: How much is it going to cost me now?

THE EARTH CAN FEED ITS PEOPLE

"The world can provide food, fibre and all other agricultural requirements for 28 billion people, ten times the world's present population."

This statement was made by Professor Colin Clark, director of the Agriculture Economics Research Institute at Oxford University.

He added that when agricultural techniques are improved and the enormous food potential of the sea is tapped, this high estimate could be considerably increased.

The professor maintained that "the fact that many people fall short of satisfactory livelihood must be blamed entirely upon human shortcomings, not upon the inadequacies of nature."

Down through the centuries man has tended to take a dim view of an expanding population. Rather than take a cynical attitude, spread constructive, hopeful facts. By doing so, you will help remind skeptical people that the Creator Who made the earth still knows how to run it.

"There is nothing hidden that will not be made manifest; nor anything concealed that will not be known and come to light."

RECOLLECTIONS OF THE TRIP

Ee-yike, Eekay, Eek Or Icky Are All Ike To Kids Overseas

BL MERRIMAN SMITH

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Recollections of the President's trip:

In Greece, the kids along the street called President Eisenhower "Ee-yike." In Spain, the children yelled "Eekay" when he drove past. In Morocco he was just plain "Eek." And in France he was "Icky" to many of the children.

Many people in Asia and Africa found it utterly impossible to pronounce his entire last name.

ON ANY NORMAL Christmas, it is hard for friends to pick a gift for the President because he truly is the man who has most everything. With his returning from Asia, Africa and Europe this week, the gift problem for the President became more and more difficult.

At the final stop on his tour, Casablanca, the King of Morocco gave him a double-barreled shotgun with a handsome stock inlaid in gold, rubies and emeralds. Eisenhower took a look at the jewels on the weapon and told King Mohammed V, "I ought to make a necklace out of these."

THE NAVY DOCTOR, Capt. George Burkley, who did such a fine job of keeping the 83 members of Eisenhower's press entourage relatively healthy and operating during the long trip, is quite a realistic man.

Along with his pills and salves, the good doctor brought along a small supply of death certificates. Happily, he came home without using one of them.

FOR THE transatlantic flight homeward from Morocco last Monday night, Bill McEvoy of Pan American Airways and a fine staff of stewards and stewardesses aboard the press-chartered jet, decorated the cabin in Christmas garlands and tree ornaments.

Then, after a lavish roast beef dinner, two of the girls marched down the aisle singing "We Wish You A Merry Christmas" and pulling an enormous, candlelit cake on a tea cart behind them.

ATTENDANTS at the court of King Mohammed V in Casablance were a trifle surprised to see Eisenhower pick up the French-language version of the joint communique and study it closely.

"That's in French," one of the court attendants said, mindful of the fact that Eisenhower must speak through an interpreter when working with the French language.

"I know," the President answered. "I read French pretty well, but I cannot talk it."

He also explained to some guests in Spain that he figured he was too far along in life to develop any fluency in a foreign language.

1960 May Be Year When Diplomacy Became Less Snarled, More Human

WASHINGTON (AP) — The year 1960 should become known as the time of the big switch — when foreign affairs became a little more human and a little less snarled in what is called diplomacy.

Western leaders — brushing aside the ancient tradition of letting foreign ministers dicker and deal and diddle on details — have proposed not one, but a series of summit conferences with the Soviet Union.

Even if they don't accomplish much, or anything, at least they will be brief and direct and save the world from that gruesome frustration of the long-drawn-out hairsplitting, minuet-dancing of the ministers.

MANY FORCES—both men and events—have brought the West to this startling development in world affairs.

The wartime meetings of President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill — occasionally with Joseph Stalin — broke for a while the old reliance on foreign ministers to find the answers.

The tradition took over again after 1945 when the cold war set in and the sullen, inscrutable Stalin poked for weak spots in the West: pressure on Greece and Turkey, Communist seizure of Czechoslovakia, the Berlin blockade, Korea.

The years between 1945 and Stalin's death on March 5, 1953, were hardly a time for talking peace. He seemed to want no peace. The foreign ministers never solved a major East-West problem.

MINISTERS BEGAN to seem out of date in this new age when the new planes could take the top men anywhere in a few hours and there was less and less reason for them to stay at home. It took them a long time to realize it.

Shortly after he took office, on Feb. 25, 1953, President Eisenhower was asked at a news conference whether he would be willing to meet with Stalin. He said he would, if he thought it could do good.

Nevertheless his underlying feeling about meeting the Soviets then and for years afterwards, was extremely cautious, and hedged around with requirements that preliminary conditions be met. This was also the attitude of Secretary of State Dulles.

On March 2, 1953, Churchill said he would be willing to meet with Stalin and Eisenhower. Three days later Stalin died. A transformation began. His successors began talking of peace.

But perhaps more impressive than that, was the fact that the Soviet Union began to show astonishing power — with the hydrogen bomb, missiles, and Sputniks.

The nuclear development in the United States and the U.S.S.R. — with all that it meant in devastation if war came — began to make all other wars look as simple as the Fourth of July. It increased the reasons why the West and the Soviet Union should try to find some settlements.

WHILE CHURCHILL was willing to go to the summit without assurances it would produce agreements and even with an agenda — prior agreement by both sides on what should be discussed — Dulles took a different line. So did Eisenhower.

They wanted the Soviets to show by deeds a meeting would be worthwhile. Time passed. The war in Korea ended, at least in armistice. The U.S.S.R. let Austria have freedom. The Soviets kept talking peace.

On May 11, 1953, two months after Stalin's death, Churchill called for a summit conference. This government was cool, laid down its condition of deeds, not words. Time passed and with it enough talk on this subject to fill a book.

Finally, on March 20, 1955, Sen. Walter F. George (D, Ga.) now dead but then chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, suggested it was time for a summit conference. This was a big nudge to Eisenhower.

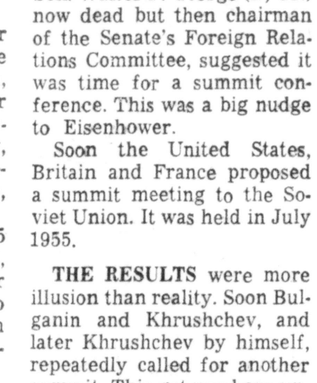

Soon the United States, Britain and France proposed a summit meeting to the Soviet Union. It was held in July 1955.

THE RESULTS were more illusion than reality. Soon Bulganin and Khrushchev, and later Khrushchev by himself, repeatedly called for another summit. This got nowhere until Khrushchev created a crisis for the West on Berlin.

He argued: Letting foreign ministers meet is a waste of time; only the heavyweights can settle anything. British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan visited Khrushchev early this year, came away convinced a series of summit meetings is needed.

Eisenhower didn't buy until Khrushchev visited him in September. Now Eisenhower goes along on the series, too, without an agenda or prior conditions.

SIZZLING SHOWDOWN

Congress Battle Due On Civil Rights In '60

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Despite the election-year reluctance to fight in public, Democrats as well as Republicans plan to force the sizzling civil rights issue to a show-down in the 1960 session.

They'll be backed by well planned pressure group activity.

And they'll be opposed by equally determined Southerners who feel that civil rights legislation has gone too far and by more moderate leaders who say enough gains have been made for the time being and should be consolidated.

An organized drive by leaders of a score of civil rights groups is being planned. They will meet in Washington Jan. 13 and will call on Congressmen who have not yet taken a definite stand on civil rights proposals. They'll also see White House officials.

The three most controversial proposals certain to draw fiery debate and threats of fillibusters in the Senate are:

●PART III — A proposal to permit the U.S. attorney general to file civil suits in all civil rights matters, not just those concerning voting rights.

The 1957 Civil Rights Act — the first such bill passed by Congress in 75 years — provided for these injunctive powers on voting cases. Although the Eisenhower administration asked for Part III in 1957 and it was approved by the House, the Senate cut it out of the bill. The President dropped the Part III proposal in 1959, but members of his own party, such as New York's Sens. Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth Keating, as well as some Northern Democrats, insist on bringing it up again next year.

●VOTING REGISTRARS — A provision to create federal voting registrars when local registrars are considered delinquent in carrying out their duties. The Civil Rights Commission recommended this in its report Sept. 8 and several bills to this effect have been introduced, but it is considered highly controversial.

●ANTI-LYNCHING LAW—This gained renewed attention after the Mack Charles Parker lynching April 24 in Poplarville, Miss. and the local officials' failure to prosecute. The Justice Department is reportedly preparing anti-lynching legislation to be introduced by the administration.

As soon as Congress convenes Jan. 9, a concerted drive will begin to discharge a civil rights bill from the House Rules Committee, where it has been bottled-up since Aug. 20.

A discharge petition introduced by Rep. Emanuel Celler (D, N.Y.) reportedly already has half of the 219 signatures needed to pry the bill out of the committee. Indications are that using the petition as a lever will be successful.

The House bill does not contain the Part III, registrars and anti-lynching provisions. These probably will be submitted as floor amendments.

THE BILL DOES contain proposals which would:

1 Make mobbing or violence to prevent school integration a federal crime.

2 Require the preservation of voting records and permit their inspection by the Justice Department.

3 Make it a federal crime to cross state lines to avoid prosecution for bombing any building or vehicle.

4 Provide educational facilities for children of military personnel in cities where public school were closed to avoid integration.

All of these provisions were contained in the administration's 1959 civil rights package. Two administration proposals deleted from the House bill would have granted statutory authority to the President's Committee on Government Contracts and authorized federal technical and financial aid to areas facing school desegregation problems.

LAST SESSION the only civil rights action by Congress was the extension of the life of the Civil Rights Commission for two years.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By DONALD G. DAVIS

Good New Year's Resolution For Public Agencies Is 'Let People Know'

There are more than 100 councils, commissions, board and such public groups in Marin, all charged with public service. This includes the nine city councils, the board of supervisors, more sanitary districts than you shake a stick at, and more than 20 school districts. All these people are elected to office.

Then, there are many groups the members of which are appointed. These include planning commissions, abatement districts, recreation commissions.

These groups all have one thing in common. They hold public meetings, at regularly designated lawful times and places to conduct business.

They are the legislators of small politicial subdivisions.

FOR THE MOST part in Marin, they conduct business to the best of their abilities in the open, and do not try to hide decisions, discussion or sweep things under the rug.

Many of these councils, districts, etc., have fulltime hired administrators, and some them have large employee payrolls, all paid out of tax funds. And for the most part in Marin, these persons are helpful and informative toward the public.

But the public cannot always get to the public meetings, and they cannot always contact the administrative staffs for information.

THE NEWSPAPER functions here. The newspaper sends reporters to meeting to "cover" for the public, and in due time reports of the meetings are published. The newspaper reporter also contacts the administrative staffs and publishes accounts of happenings at these headquarters so that the public can be informed more fully.

There is a law, commonly referred to as the Brown Act, which tells in some detail how public bodies are supposed to set up meeting times and places. The act also allows these public bodies to hold closed sessions in certain, limited circumstances — meetings which the general public cannot attend. The act provides that any action from closed meetings must be made public — and those actions usually are the result of considering a personnel problem.

Public bodies also may hold special meeting, but under the Brown Act they are required to give adequate notice. That part of the law is a recent amendment. Public groups in Marin have been striving to give the proper notice, but many of them, their chairmen, or their advisory administrators, seem to be confused on the proper way to give notice.

FOR EXAMPLE — and this not to single out any group for embarassment — The Belvedere City Council recently held a sepcial meeting. It is said the councilmen were all advised the meeting was to be held, but as far as is knowledgable, the public was never informed.

Officials of the city have said only the council needed to know and that public notice need not be given.

The Brown Act ammendment says notice of special meetings should be given at least 24 hours prior to the meeting, and that each and every one of the public bodies from the smallest up, should give notice to newspapers of general circulation in the community.

NOW, PUBLIC bodies are always passing resolutions.

If they really mean what they are about, they could pass an appropriate New Year's resolution for 1960:

That they would take advantage of the law and the newspapers by informing the public of special meetings well in advance. The more the public knows about public business, the better. Sometimes when the public is kept in the dark it is a painful and costly process to "let them in on it" at the last minute.

Heywood Broun once wrote No body politic is ever healthy until it itches.

There is some scratching to be done in Marin.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

Humorist Jim Thurber recalls that, "The late Harold Ross usually looked harried and aggrieved, but he was at his worst just before a new issue of his beloved New Yorker magazine went to press. On one such occasion, he ran into Dorothy Parker. 'I thought you were coming into the office to write a piece last week,' he challenged her. 'What happened?' Mrs. Parker turned upon him the eloquent magic of her dark and lovely eyes. 'Somebody was using my pencil," she explained sorrowfully."

One would-be New Yorker cartoonist in the thirties complained to Ross, "Why do you reject drawings of mine, and print stuff by that fifth-rate Thurber?"

Ross rallied promptly to the defense of his artist Thurber and his own reputation as an editor. "Third-rate," he corrected.

THE BILL DOES contain proposals which would:

1 Make mobbing or violence to prevent school integration a federal crime.

2 Require the preservation of voting records and permit their inspection by the Justice Department.

3 Make it a federal crime to cross state lines to avoid prosecution for bombing any building or vehicle.

4 Provide educational facilities for children of military personnel in cities where public school were closed to avoid integration.

All of these provisions were contained in the administration's 1959 civil rights package. Two administration proposals deleted from the House bill would have granted statutory authority to the President's Committee on Government Contracts and authorized federal technical and financial aid to areas facing school desegregation problems.

LAST SESSION the only civil rights action by Congress was the extension of the life of the Civil Rights Commission for two years.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By DONALD G. DAVIS

Good New Year's Resolution For Public Agencies Is 'Let People Know'

There are more than 100 councils, commissions, board and such public groups in Marin, all charged with public service. This includes the nine city councils, the board of supervisors, more sanitary districts than you shake a stick at, and more than 20 school districts. All these people are elected to office.

Then, there are many groups the members of which are appointed. These include planning commissions, abatement districts, recreation commissions.

These groups all have one thing in common. They hold public meetings, at regularly designated lawful times and places to conduct business.

They are the legislators of small politicial subdivisions.

FOR THE MOST part in Marin, they conduct business to the best of their abilities in the open, and do not try to hide decisions, discussion or sweep things under the rug.

Many of these councils, districts, etc., have fulltime hired administrators, and some them have large employee payrolls, all paid out of tax funds. And for the most part in Marin, these persons are helpful and informative toward the public.

But the public cannot always get to the public meetings, and they cannot always contact the administrative staffs for information.

THE NEWSPAPER functions here. The newspaper sends reporters to meeting to "cover" for the public, and in due time reports of the meetings are published. The newspaper reporter also contacts the administrative staffs and publishes accounts of happenings at these headquarters so that the public can be informed more fully.

There is a law, commonly referred to as the Brown Act, which tells in some detail how public bodies are supposed to set up meeting times and places. The act also allows these public bodies to hold closed sessions in certain, limited circumstances — meetings which the general public cannot attend. The act provides that any action from closed meetings must be made public — and those actions usually are the result of considering a personnel problem.

Public bodies also may hold special meeting, but under the Brown Act they are required to give adequate notice. That part of the law is a recent amendment. Public groups in Marin have been striving to give the proper notice, but many of them, their chairmen, or their advisory administrators, seem to be confused on the proper way to give notice.

FOR EXAMPLE — and this not to single out any group for embarassment — The Belvedere City Council recently held a sepcial meeting. It is said the councilmen were all advised the meeting was to be held, but as far as is knowledgable, the public was never informed.

Officials of the city have said only the council needed to know and that public notice need not be given.

The Brown Act ammendment says notice of special meetings should be given at least 24 hours prior to the meeting, and that each and every one of the public bodies from the smallest up, should give notice to newspapers of general circulation in the community.

NOW, PUBLIC bodies are always passing resolutions.

If they really mean what they are about, they could pass an appropriate New Year's resolution for 1960:

That they would take advantage of the law and the newspapers by informing the public of special meetings well in advance. The more the public knows about public business, the better. Sometimes when the public is kept in the dark it is a painful and costly process to "let them in on it" at the last minute.

Heywood Broun once wrote No body politic is ever healthy until it itches.

There is some scratching to be done in Marin.

TRY AND STOP ME

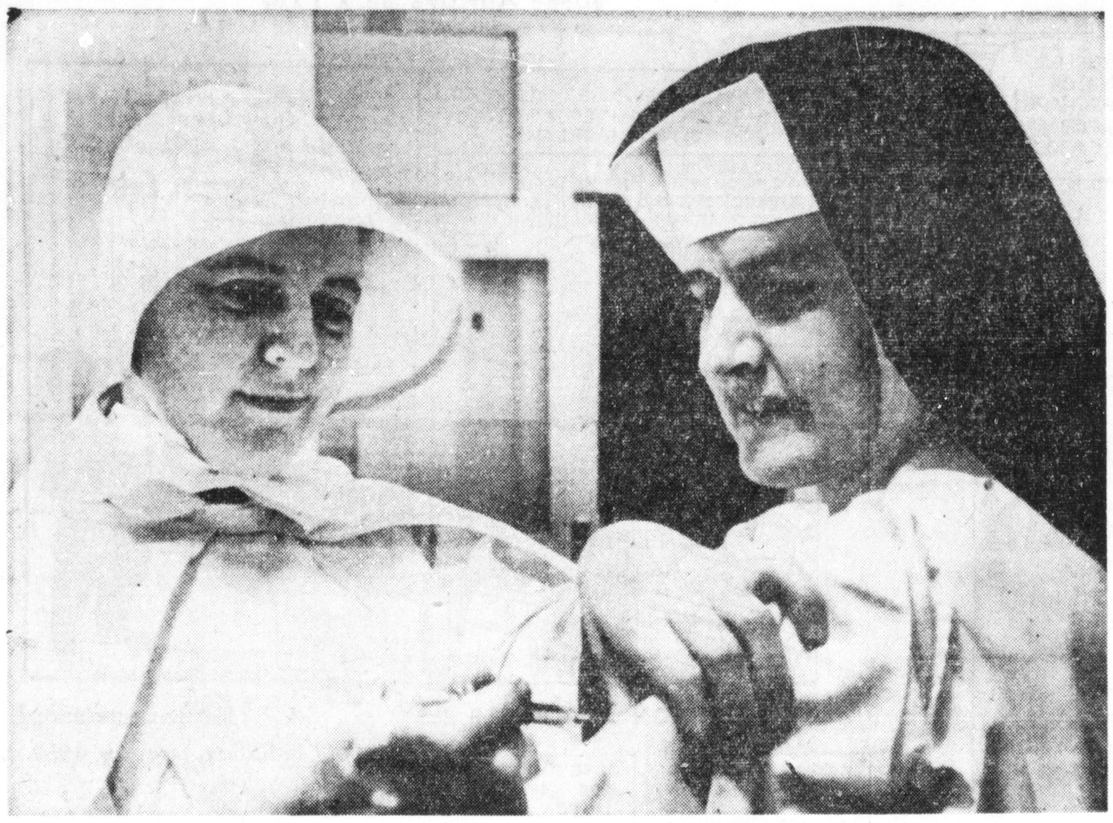

BENNETT CERF

Humorist Jim Thurber recalls that, "The late Harold Ross usually looked harried and aggrieved, but he was at his worst just before a new issue of his beloved New Yorker magazine went to press. On one such occasion, he ran into Dorothy Parker. 'I thought you were coming into the office to write a piece last week,' he challenged her. 'What happened?' Mrs. Parker turned upon him the eloquent magic of her dark and lovely eyes. 'Somebody was using my pencil," she explained sorrowfully."

One would-be New Yorker cartoonist in the thirties complained to Ross, "Why do you reject drawings of mine, and print stuff by that fifth-rate Thurber?"

Ross rallied promptly to the defense of his artist Thurber and his own reputation as an editor. "Third-rate," he corrected.

Mennonites Aim To Follow Jesus Exactly

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

By the world's standards, Mennonites are "impractical" people.

For more than four centuries they have been trying to obey literally the teachings of Jesus.

They have persisted in this difficult task in spite of bloody persecutions that came close to exterminating them — and in spite of the many practical reasons that others have found for honing off the sharp edges of the Sermon on the Mount.

LOVE ENEMIES

Mennonites contend that Christ meant exactly what he said when he told his disciples to love their enemies . . . to turn the other cheek . . . to offer no resistance to those who would do them evil. They believe that any use of force — and particularly the waging of war — is totally incompatible with this commandment. So they are uncompromising pacifists, refusing not only to bear arms, but also to hold office as magistrates or policemen.

WON'T ARGUE

If you tell a Mennonite that this is unrealistic, and that it opens the way for the strong to exploit the weak, and the wicked to enslave the good, he will not try to argue with you. He will simply tell you that "Mennonites are determined to take the Lord's words at their face value, regardless of what it may cost." And he will remind you that Jesus told his disciples they should expect to suffer for his sake.

OBLIGATION

Christian love, in Mennonite teaching, involves far more than avoiding any hurt to your neighbor. It is a positive obligation to serve all men, to seek the good of others even at the sacrifice of your own legitimate interests. All members of the church are called upon to "practice lives of self-denial and frugality, to live simply rather than in luxury" so that they will have the means as well as the will to feed the hungry and clothe the naked.

OPPORTUNITY

History has given Mennonites abundant opportunity to demonstrate their readiness for suffering and self-denial. The movement originated in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1535, and quickly spread to the Netherlands. Historians have called it "the left wing of the Protestant Reformation" because its adherents went far beyond the followers of Luther and Calvin in repudiating Catholic traditions and seeking to return to the "original" practices of the earliest Christians described in the New Testament.

This Policeman Uses Bible, Not Nightstick

NEW YORK (AP) — A burly, high-ranking police officer, kneeling in prayer with a pair of teen-age boys. This is a common scene at offices of the man who supervises law enforcement today in one of the city's toughest neighborhoods.

Deputy Inspector Conrad S. Jensen does the job—not just with a strong arm—but with spiritual stimulation. The Bible is his handbook.

"It's the only real answer for any situation," he says.

Big, muscular, 48-year-old Jensen for three and one-half years has commanded the 23rd Precinct, embracing Manhattan's discordant, racially variegated, gang-ridden East Harlem.

"What most of these people need," he commented in an interview, "is a little love and attention."

On the force 23 years, Jensen recently was promoted from precinct captain to divisional deputy inspector.

"I try to discharge my duties first as a Christian, then as a policeman," he said.

"When a person comes to the place that he realizes the word of God does have the answers to the problems of society, it is amazing what happens."

In motley, jumbled East Harlem with its Italian-Negro-Irish-German-Puerto Rican population and the biggest concentration of youth gangs in town, the high crime rate has declined during Jensen's tenure.

He urged his force to make friends with residents, to help them with their troubles. Officers are sent into schools to make talks.

"We try to latch on to every opportunity to do good," he said.

Jensen's office door is always open to any kid that wants to see him.

Jensen keeps a Bible on his desk. In discussions with upset families or worried teen-agers, he often reads pertinent verses, sometimes kneels with them in prayer.

The 230-pound, 6-foot-1 man, one of the police department's ace pistol shots, comments: "The only time to use force is to overcome resistance. In that case, a policeman has a legitimate right and a duty to use any method to protect himself. If a hand is laid on me, I'll fracture as many skulls as I can reach."

Even so, he says, neither the nightstick nor jail is the real solution. As a Babtist lay evangelist, he spends his spare time and days off speaking at about a dozen meetings in settlement projects and elsewhere each month.

He has written numerous tracts about juvenile delinquency and moral regeneration.

"I don't believe the answer is in new houses and new playgrounds, but in new people. They can be changed, and only the gospel can change them. The gospel of Christ can change anybody."

I-J WILL LIST SPECIAL RITES

The Independent-Journal will publish next Wednesday a list of New Year's Eve and New Year's Day services in Marin County churches.

Because of the holiday, the deadline on material for next Saturday's church page will be a day early — noon on Wednesday.

Assembly Of God Evangelist Drive Begins Tomorrow

The San Rafael Assembly of God announces an evangelism crusade to begin tomorrow night, with evangelist May Dell Darden of Stockton as featured speaker.

Tomorrow's service will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, services will be at 7:30.

Priest Has New Slant On Disarmament

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—We've got the cart before the horse in our disarmament wrangling with the Soviets, says the teacher of what may be the only college course in disarmament in the nation.

There's no use arguing about nuclear warheads, contends Rev. Edward A. Conway, S.J. We ought to be worrying about the missiles that would deliver them.

"We have let technology get too far ahead of our political accomplishment," says Father Conway, gesturing with a fistful of technical papers in the Jesuit quarters of Creighton University.

TOO LATE SOON

"Before long it will be too late to control the missiles. The thing is getting farther out of hand every minute."

The crux of the problem is inspection, the thing on which American has been standing firm. But Father Conway gives it a different twist.

There are three phases to a weapon: Production, possession and use. So far as atomic bombs are concerned, argues the Jesuit priest, "You can't inspect for possession any more.

NAGGING FEAR

"We would always have the nagging fear they had secreted a sufficient number of nuclear weapons to back up any blackmail."

But you can inspect missiles and their launching facilities, and that's the practical place to try to exercise control, he believes.

"It doesn't matter so much how many atomic bombs you have so long as you don't have the delivery systems."

At 57, white-haired Father Conway is a specialist but not an optimist about disarmament. If anything will prompt it in these days of the cold war, he says, it is fear—fear and the feeling of each side they are about equal in their weapon development.

"I have a feeling now no serious attempt at disarmament will be made until both sides get what they need; a real stalemate with both sat satisfied they are not the underdog."

Youth Lectureship Slated By Church

The Church of Christ in San Rafael is having a statewide youth lectureship next Monday through Thursday.

With free meals and lodging provided for guests, an attendance of 250 is expected. All speakers and song leaders will be boys in their teens.

Mennonites Aim To Follow Jesus Exactly

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

By the world's standards, Mennonites are "impractical" people.

For more than four centuries they have been trying to obey literally the teachings of Jesus.

They have persisted in this difficult task in spite of bloody persecutions that came close to exterminating them — and in spite of the many practical reasons that others have found for honing off the sharp edges of the Sermon on the Mount.

LOVE ENEMIES

Mennonites contend that Christ meant exactly what he said when he told his disciples to love their enemies . . . to turn the other cheek . . . to offer no resistance to those who would do them evil. They believe that any use of force — and particularly the waging of war — is totally incompatible with this commandment. So they are uncompromising pacifists, refusing not only to bear arms, but also to hold office as magistrates or policemen.

WON'T ARGUE

If you tell a Mennonite that this is unrealistic, and that it opens the way for the strong to exploit the weak, and the wicked to enslave the good, he will not try to argue with you. He will simply tell you that "Mennonites are determined to take the Lord's words at their face value, regardless of what it may cost." And he will remind you that Jesus told his disciples they should expect to suffer for his sake.

OBLIGATION

Christian love, in Mennonite teaching, involves far more than avoiding any hurt to your neighbor. It is a positive obligation to serve all men, to seek the good of others even at the sacrifice of your own legitimate interests. All members of the church are called upon to "practice lives of self-denial and frugality, to live simply rather than in luxury" so that they will have the means as well as the will to feed the hungry and clothe the naked.

OPPORTUNITY

History has given Mennonites abundant opportunity to demonstrate their readiness for suffering and self-denial. The movement originated in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1535, and quickly spread to the Netherlands. Historians have called it "the left wing of the Protestant Reformation" because its adherents went far beyond the followers of Luther and Calvin in repudiating Catholic traditions and seeking to return to the "original" practices of the earliest Christians described in the New Testament.

This Policeman Uses Bible, Not Nightstick

NEW YORK (AP) — A burly, high-ranking police officer, kneeling in prayer with a pair of teen-age boys. This is a common scene at offices of the man who supervises law enforcement today in one of the city's toughest neighborhoods.

Deputy Inspector Conrad S. Jensen does the job—not just with a strong arm—but with spiritual stimulation. The Bible is his handbook.

"It's the only real answer for any situation," he says.

Big, muscular, 48-year-old Jensen for three and one-half years has commanded the 23rd Precinct, embracing Manhattan's discordant, racially variegated, gang-ridden East Harlem.

"What most of these people need," he commented in an interview, "is a little love and attention."

On the force 23 years, Jensen recently was promoted from precinct captain to divisional deputy inspector.

"I try to discharge my duties first as a Christian, then as a policeman," he said.

"When a person comes to the place that he realizes the word of God does have the answers to the problems of society, it is amazing what happens."

In motley, jumbled East Harlem with its Italian-Negro-Irish-German-Puerto Rican population and the biggest concentration of youth gangs in town, the high crime rate has declined during Jensen's tenure.

He urged his force to make friends with residents, to help them with their troubles. Officers are sent into schools to make talks.

"We try to latch on to every opportunity to do good," he said.

Jensen's office door is always open to any kid that wants to see him.

Jensen keeps a Bible on his desk. In discussions with upset families or worried teen-agers, he often reads pertinent verses, sometimes kneels with them in prayer.

The 230-pound, 6-foot-1 man, one of the police department's ace pistol shots, comments: "The only time to use force is to overcome resistance. In that case, a policeman has a legitimate right and a duty to use any method to protect himself. If a hand is laid on me, I'll fracture as many skulls as I can reach."

Even so, he says, neither the nightstick nor jail is the real solution. As a Babtist lay evangelist, he spends his spare time and days off speaking at about a dozen meetings in settlement projects and elsewhere each month.

He has written numerous tracts about juvenile delinquency and moral regeneration.

"I don't believe the answer is in new houses and new playgrounds, but in new people. They can be changed, and only the gospel can change them. The gospel of Christ can change anybody."

I-J WILL LIST SPECIAL RITES

The Independent-Journal will publish next Wednesday a list of New Year's Eve and New Year's Day services in Marin County churches.

For inclusion in the special listing, notices of services must be received at the I-J office in written form before noon Tuesday.

Because of the holiday, the deadline on material for next Saturday's church page will be a day early — noon on Wednesday.

Assembly Of God Evangelist Drive Begins Tomorrow

The San Rafael Assembly of God announces an evangelism crusade to begin tomorrow night, with evangelist May Dell Darden of Stockton as featured speaker.

Tomorrow's service will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, services will be at 7:30.

Priest Has New Slant On Disarmament

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—We've got the cart before the horse in our disarmament wrangling with the Soviets, says the teacher of what may be the only college course in disarmament in the nation.

There's no use arguing about nuclear warheads, contends Rev. Edward A. Conway, S.J. We ought to be worrying about the missiles that would deliver them.

"We have let technology get too far ahead of our political accomplishment," says Father Conway, gesturing with a fistful of technical papers in the Jesuit quarters of Creighton University.

TOO LATE SOON

"Before long it will be too late to control the missiles. The thing is getting farther out of hand every minute."

The crux of the problem is inspection, the thing on which American has been standing firm. But Father Conway gives it a different twist.

There are three phases to a weapon: Production, possession and use. So far as atomic bombs are concerned, argues the Jesuit priest, "You can't inspect for possession any more.

NAGGING FEAR

"We would always have the nagging fear they had secreted a sufficient number of nuclear weapons to back up any blackmail."

But you can inspect missiles and their launching facilities, and that's the practical place to try to exercise control, he believes.

"It doesn't matter so much how many atomic bombs you have so long as you don't have the delivery systems."

At 57, white-haired Father Conway is a specialist but not an optimist about disarmament. If anything will prompt it in these days of the cold war, he says, it is fear—fear and the feeling of each side they are about equal in their weapon development.

"I have a feeling now no serious attempt at disarmament will be made until both sides get what they need; a real stalemate with both sat satisfied they are not the underdog."

Youth Lectureship Slated By Church

Baltimore Choice In Playoff Tomorrow

BALTIMORE, Md., (UPI) —The Baltimore Colts and New York Giants are ready for the game National Football League fans have been waiting for since last December—a rematch of their unprecedented overtime championship thriller.

Baltimore won the 1958 NFL title, 23-17, after eight minutes, 15 seconds of a "sudden death" extra period at Yankee Stadium.

Coach Weeb Ewbank's Colts, 3½-point favorites to retain the crown, ended preparations today with a light drill at Memorial Stadium. The stadium will be jammed with 57,557 spectators tomorrow and hundreds of thousands will take in the action via NBC radio-TV at 10:45 a.m., EST.

Coach Jim Lee Howell's underdogs, described recently by a Cleveland Browns coach as "those cocky Giants," will arrive by train today after a brief Yankee Stadium workout.

The Giants won't test the Memorial Stadium turf until they race on the field tomorrow before what they expect will be the noisiest crowd they have ever faced.

The Colts and Giants figure they have to operate while handicapped by a thunderous volume of crowd noise. Baltimore fans, probably the most exuberant in the NFL, worked up a big head of steam when the Colts won their first championship last year in New York and are expected to raise more rumpus on their home ground.

Ewbank has drilled quarterback John Unitas to use hand signals to communicate with his ends and flanker backs if the uproar drowns out his voice. Howell also has briefed quarterback Charlie Conerly in the use of hand signals. Both coaches hope the fans will give the players a chance to hear the signals but both fear the worst.

Austin Gunsel, acting league commissioner, has instructed the officials, headed by Referee Ronald Gibbs, to stop the game in case of a fan outburst such as marred the recent Browns-Giants game in New York. Hundreds of fans rushed on the field with two minutes to go in that contest and it took 20 minutes to restore order.

Bookmakers say the game has attracted more betting money than any other single sports event of the year. Several bookmakers claim it may be the biggest single betting event in sports history.

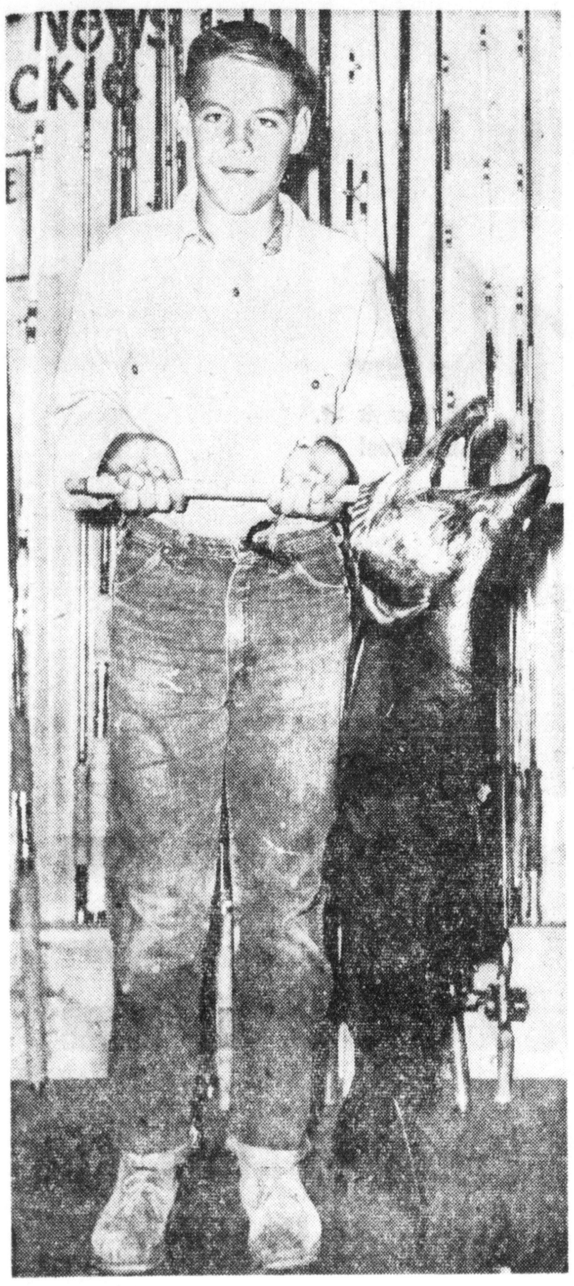

Interest, betting and otherwise, began building up as soon as the two teams ended their classic overtime title game last Dec. 28. Steve Myhra's 20-yard field goal with seven seconds remaining produced a 17-17 tie and set up the league's first overtime game. The Giants won the toss for the overtime and received but failed to make a first down in three plays and punted. Unitas then guided the Colts 80 yards in 13 plays, Alan Ameche smashing one one yard off his right tackle for the winning touchdown.

Tomorrow's rematch of the teams that played what some football observers called "the greatest football game ever played" features virtually the same performers.

Unitas, the 26-year-old star who completed a record 32 touchdown passes this year, sparks the explosive attack of the Western Divsion champions. His chief targets are ends Raymond Berry and Jim Mutscheller and flanker back Lenny Moore. Berry led the league with 66 catches, Moore caught 47 passes and Mutscheller 44 for a total of 157.

Conerly, who won the league passing crown this year at 38 while helping the Giants retain the Eastern Division crown, completed 113 passes with Frank Gifford, Bob Schnelker and Kyle Rote his top receivers.

However, New York's top weapon is its defensive unit. This platoon, led by linebackers Sam Huff and Harland Svare, end Endy Robustelli and halfback Jim Patton, allowed only 170 points this year. This was the league's best defensive mark. Baltimore's defensive unit allowed 251 points but intercepted a league high of 40 passes.

PROUD AND HAPPY ANGLER

Larry Chambers, 14-year-old Redwood High School freshman from Corte Madera, proudly displays the king salmon he caught recently at Bridgehaven on the Russian River. Larry tied into the 32½-pound whopper and played it for 55 minutes on a 4½-ounce fly rod. He hooked it on a red streamer. It was young Chambers' first attempt at fishing, so the sport as acquired another really enthusiastic participant.

SATURDAY'S SHORTS

Pros Really Made A Pitch For Burford

SQUAW VALLEY (UPI)—Saturday's Shorts:

The battle between the Cleveland Browns and the Dallas entry in the new American Professional Football League for the services of ace end Chris Burford, must have been a doozy.

"It was like fraternity rush week," said Burford after revealing he had signed with Dallas. "Only with money as the bait."

The new stadium for the Giants in San Francisco got its first taste of rain—and it leaked all over the place.

How Squaw Valley got it's name (version No. 1): The Washoe Indians used the place as a summer home in the 1850s, with the men out hunting and the women staying home, digging for roots, onions, etc. When the white men came through the area on the Donner Trail, they came to the valley and found nothing except women. Hence: "Squaw Valley."

IT IS probable that European newspapers are devoting more space to the 1960 Olympic Games here than are American dailies. Few other sports besides skiing and skating in Europe these winter days . . . and besides, Europeans will run off with 99 per cent of the gold medals.

BEST BOWL game of the year should be: Texas vs. Syracuse. But the Rose Bowl battle between Washington and Wisconsin should be a dandy.

After visiting the Shrine crippled childrens' hospital, the East-West football players worried about the expenses of the game. They wanted to make sure that all possible money went to help care for the crippled kids. "And I hope there's a sell-out," said one . . . he didn't need to worry. Kezar's 60,000 seats have been sold since last August.

HANDSOMEST broth of a man on the Shrine teams: Michigan State's crack quarterback, Dean Look . . . He turns from this game and the Hula Bowl to professional baseball as a bonus baby with the Chicago White Sox. He had been drafted by the Detroit Lions. If he fails in baseball, he still could take a shot at the grid game.

If Eddie Erdelatz fails to get the University of California grid coaching job, there will be a furor in San Francisco newspapers. All have gone to bat for him. But the Cal men doing the selecting refuse to be pressured into a hurried decision.

Kaline Wins Slugging Championship

BOSTON (AP)—Al Kaline of Detroit, runner-up in the batting race, beat out home run hitters Mickey Mantle, Harmon Killebrew and Rocky Colavito to win the American League slugging championship, the official 1959 statistics revealed today.

Kaline had 271 total bases in 511 times at bat for a slugging mark of .530. Washington's Killebrew was next with .516 followed by the Yanks' Mantle .514 and Cleveland's Colavito, .512. Killebrew and Colavito shared the home run crown with 42, Mantle hit 31 and Kaline 27.

Kaline, who batted .327 to finish only behind champion Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers, had 167 hits which also included 19 doubles and 2 triples. Slugging averages are computed by dividing the number of total bases by the total official at bats.

Kaline also drew the most intentional walks, 12. However, teammate Eddie Yost led in total bases on balls with 136. Only one of Yost's passes was intentional. Mantle struck out 126 times to lead in that department.

Rose Bowlers Slate Scrimmage Sessions

PASADENA (UPI) — The holiday was over for both the Washington and Wisconsin Rose Bowl football teams today.

Both squads faced what coaches planned as their most intensive practice sessions since arriving here a week ago.

Coach Jim Owens, stymied by the rain Thursday, rescheduled a scrimmage for Long Beach Veterans Stadium today for the Huskies. He still believes the Pacific champions are behind Wisconsin in conditioning because of bad weather and other factors.

Mlt Bruhn, who gradually has expanded workouts for the Wisconsin crew, also indicated he may scrimmage the Badgers today.

Neither team did any work on the gridiron yesterday. In fact, the most serious decision involved a choice of jersey colors for the New Year's Day classic. Wisconsin, this year's "home" team under the Rose Bowl pact, picked its red jersey. Washington will be garbed in white.

The Big Ten-West Coast agreement also provides the "home" team conference has the larger number of officials, 3 to 2.

Owens showed he meant business about practice when he canceled a trip to Marineland and also ruled out three television shows for members of the team prior to the game.

However, the Huskie coach relented over Christmas. The Washington team enjoyed two Christmas parties yesterday, one in the afternoon given by the Tournament of Roses. The Long Beach Century Club staged a dinner affair for the players, their wives and dates last night.

Celtics Near Streak Mark

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The magic number for the Boston Celtics today was three.

Just three more victories and the red-hot Celts will tie the all-time National Basketball Assn. consecutive victory record of 17. It was set during the 1946-47 season by the Washington Capitols, no longer in existence.

The Celtics recorded their 14th straight triumph last night, a 123-119 decision over the New York Knickerbockers, and in the process, they stretched their Eastern Division lead to seven games.

In other games, the St. Louis Hawks lengthened their Western Division margin to seven games with a 112-96 triumph over the Minneapolis Lakers; the Cincinnati Royals turned back the Detroit Pistons 121-103 and the Philadelphia Warriors downed the Syracuse Nationals 129-121.

The Celtics trailed by as much as 21 points in the first half, but they caught fire and pulled to 103-111 in the final period. Then they scored 14 straight points to go ahead for good. Sam Jones, who scored 27 points, was high man for the winners.

The Hawks are rolling along on a winning streak of six games. Cliff Hagen, who stymied Laker star Elgin Baylor, led the Hawks with 32 points.

Cincinnati snapped a six-game losing streak to halt the Pistons. Arlen Bockhorn had 27 points and Jack Twyman 25 for the Royals.

St. Raphael's MarVel Wins Cage Honors

San Rafael Recreation Department's annual Youth Christmas Basketball Tournament action concluded this week at San Rafael High School gym with St. Raphael's and the Mar Vel Athletic Club dominating the four age groups by winning two divisions each.

St. Raphael's crushed the Mar Vel 21-4 to win the 12-years-old and under division and St. Raphael's brushed by the Davidson Bums in the final minutes to win the 14 and under division, 37-26.

Mar Vel registered a close 25-24 overtime victory over the Medallion YMCA to wrap up the 16 and under division and in the final tournament game the Mar Vel Blacks scored 13 consecutive points to come from behind and win the 18 and under trophy over the Shrikes YMCA, 23-20.

Twenty-eight teams competed in the three-day tournament. Trophies were donated by the San Rafael Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Scores of other tournament games: Mar Vel 12s 25, Santa Venetia Wildcats 24; Davidson Papooses 18, Mt. Carmel 14s 8; Mar Vel 14s 9, Mt. Carmel 4; Mill Valley Boys Club 22, San Quentin 5; St. Raphael's 14s 30, Santa Venetia Vandels 16; Mar Vel 16s 23, Highlanders YMCA 13; Falcons 33, Dueces YMCA 12; St. Raphael's 12s 13, Davidson Papooses 12; Davidson Bums 21, Mar Vel 14s 10; St. Raphael's 14s 31, Mill Valley Boys Club 9; Gremlins YMCA 40, Santa Venetia Terrors 8; Mar Vel 16s 23, Falcons 16; Medallions YMCA 34, Gremlins YMCA 20; Shrikes YMCA 25, Mar Vel Blues 22.

W. Virginia Choice In Cage Classic

Eight teams will compete in the three-day tourney, called the greatest cagefest ever scheduled for southern California. The teams include National Champion California, USC, UCLA, Stanford, Illinois, Michigan and Northwestern along with West Virginia.

Both California and West Virginia are ranked among the top four teams in the nation and are undefeated to date. The Bears have won six straight and the Mountaineers eight straight.

USC and UCLA are considered the dark horses with each team exhibiting flashes of brilliance and erratic play this season. After losing its first two contests, the Trojans have won five successive games. Illinois is also given an outside chance to cop the title.

The six visiting teams are scheduled to work out in the sports Arena tomorrow in preparation for the openers.

West Fullback Injured; SMU Star Named As Replacement

Meek immediately tabbed Jim Welch of Southern Methodist to replace Smith in the starting lineup for the Jan. 2 Shrine Game at San Francisco's Kezar Stadium.

The East team also received an injury setback, with 245-pound tackle Lou Cordileone hospitalized with a cold and high temperature. He was expected to rejoin the squad, however, within a few days.

East Coach Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State concentrated on rushing drills yesterday in a single workout. The East squad gained a player with the late arrival of Notre Dame's Bob Scholtz, who reached camp Thursday night.

Both teams were guests at the annual Shrine Christmas party last night and gold watches were presented to all members of the All-Star group.

NEW RUMOR: CASANOVA MAY GET CAL POST

BERKELEY (UPI) — A new entrant was reported in the California coaching derby today when an authoritative source said Oregon Coach Len Casanova was under serious consideration for the post.

The post has been vacant since Pete Elliott resigned to go to the University of Illinois earlier this week.

Many names have been tossed about as possible successors, including former Navy Coach Eddie Erdlatz, former University of Washington assistant Bert Clark, Cal Line Coach Dee Andros and now Casanova, who was a former athletic star at Santa Clara.

Missouri Arrives For Orange Bowl

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Missouri Tigers lost no time today in starting intensive preparation for their Orange Bowl clash Jan. 1 with the Georgia Bulldogs.

The Missourians, with a 48-player squad, arrived late yesterday, and were sent through a limbering-up workout near their Miami Beach hotel.

Georgia was due here this afternoon.

"They have probably 30 formations," Devine said. "They pick out three or four which they figure might hurt you most and use them in a game."

Reasons Why Haney Quit Braves; Will He Return To New League?

CONNOLLY

The true story on why Fred Haney resigned as manager of the Milwaukee Braves probably never will be told.

But glimpses of some of his problems fall from the lips of old cronies and are passed along. I got a few of those recently while visiting in Los Angeles.

One old squirt who grew up with Fred in the south declared that if Haney had remained he would have had to trade, sell or release at least five or six men.

Another yarn making the rounds, without the approval of Haney, however, is that early last summer when Leo Durocher was ticketed for release by the NBA, Haney was contacted and accepted the job of broadcasting.

In that respect I think Haney will become one of the country's finest baseball broadcasters.

Haney will have to go far and long to improve on the KSFO "gold dust twins," Russ Hodges and Lon Simmons.

But Haney packs weight for age and he'll only be used in pinch hitting roles, rather than regulars like Hodges and Simmons.

IN LOS ANGELES, before he went back into baseball after retiring as manager of the Hollywood Stars, Haney did quite a stretch as a baseball announcer and interviewer of ball players. I think Haney's finest talent is interviews with ball players. He knows their problems and he knows what to ask and when to ask it. I think he'll be regarded as one of the best informed baseball interviewers.

Haney's principal reason, at least that given out by the owners, was he wanted to be home more with his family.

Which also was the same excuse given by Frankie Albert when he left the coaching job of the 49er football squad.

Yet, last time I saw an L.A. newspaper the name of Frankie Albert was mentioned prominently as a likely successor to Sid Gilman of the L.A. Rams.

HANEY, in quitting the Milwaukee club, hardly could blame baseball politics for his predicament and then go into a baseball broadcasting job afterwards. So Fred let the chips fall where they might and just took up his new job.

And by way of comparing salaries, Haney now is collecting $25,000 or more as a broadcaster and works only a couple days a week. To earn that much in baseball a manager has to be an acrobat, diplomat and be with a ball club where money is no object.

They say Haney is only figuring on a few years as a baseball broadcaster, but if this old coot knows Haney, his next step will be with his old fran, Branch Rickey in the new Continental League. It was Rickey who pulled Haney out of retirement to join St. Louis and make the most phenomenal comeback in 20th century baseball annals.

Rickey has taken pretty good care of his baseball pets. It was Joe Brown whom Rickey placed in Pittsburgh as the general manager and it may be that Rickey plans on doing the same for Haney when and if the Continental League gets under way.

But mark these words—Haney is a long ways from just a broadcaster in baseball. He's potentially a general manager for the Continental League, and is at present on ice until the nod comes from Rickey.

His chief targets are ends Raymond Berry and Jim Mutscheller and flanker back Lenny Moore. Berry led the league with 66 catches, Moore caught 47 passes and Mutscheller 44 for a total of 157.

Conerly, who won the league passing crown this year at 38 while helping the Giants retain the Eastern Division crown, completed 113 passes with Frank Gifford, Bob Schnelker and Kyle Rote his top receivers.

However, New York's top weapon is its defensive unit. This platoon, led by linebackers Sam Huff and Harland Svare, end Endy Robustelli and halfback Jim Patton, allowed only 170 points this year. This was the league's best defensive mark. Baltimore's defensive unit allowed 251 points but intercepted a league high of 40 passes.

PROUD AND HAPPY ANGLER

Larry Chambers, 14-year-old Redwood High School freshman from Corte Madera, proudly displays the king salmon he caught recently at Bridgehaven on the Russian River. Larry tied into the 32½-pound whopper and played it for 55 minutes on a 4½-ounce fly rod. He hooked it on a red streamer. It was young Chambers' first attempt at fishing, so the sport as acquired another really enthusiastic participant.

Rose Bowlers Slate Scrimmage Sessions

PASADENA (UPI) — The holiday was over for both the Washington and Wisconsin Rose Bowl football teams today.

Both squads faced what coaches planned as their most intensive practice sessions since arriving here a week ago.

Coach Jim Owens, stymied by the rain Thursday, rescheduled a scrimmage for Long Beach Veterans Stadium today for the Huskies. He still believes the Pacific champions are behind Wisconsin in conditioning because of bad weather and other factors.

Mlt Bruhn, who gradually has expanded workouts for the Wisconsin crew, also indicated he may scrimmage the Badgers today.

Neither team did any work on the gridiron yesterday. In fact, the most serious decision involved a choice of jersey colors for the New Year's Day classic. Wisconsin, this year's "home" team under the Rose Bowl pact, picked its red jersey. Washington will be garbed in white.

The Big Ten-West Coast agreement also provides the "home" team conference has the larger number of officials, 3 to 2.

Owens showed he meant business about practice when he canceled a trip to Marineland and also ruled out three television shows for members of the team prior to the game.

However, the Huskie coach relented over Christmas. The Washington team enjoyed two Christmas parties yesterday, one in the afternoon given by the Tournament of Roses. The Long Beach Century Club staged a dinner affair for the players, their wives and dates last night.

St. Raphael's MarVel Wins Cage Honors

San Rafael Recreation Department's annual Youth Christmas Basketball Tournament action concluded this week at San Rafael High School gym with St. Raphael's and the Mar Vel Athletic Club dominating the four age groups by winning two divisions each.

St. Raphael's crushed the Mar Vel 21-4 to win the 12-years-old and under division and St. Raphael's brushed by the Davidson Bums in the final minutes to win the 14 and under division, 37-26.

Mar Vel registered a close 25-24 overtime victory over the Medallion YMCA to wrap up the 16 and under division and in the final tournament game the Mar Vel Blacks scored 13 consecutive points to come from behind and win the 18 and under trophy over the Shrikes YMCA, 23-20.

Twenty-eight teams competed in the three-day tournament. Trophies were donated by the San Rafael Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Scores of other tournament games: Mar Vel 12s 25, Santa Venetia Wildcats 24; Davidson Papooses 18, Mt. Carmel 14s 8; Mar Vel 14s 9, Mt. Carmel 4; Mill Valley Boys Club 22, San Quentin 5; St. Raphael's 14s 30, Santa Venetia Vandels 16; Mar Vel 16s 23, Highlanders YMCA 13; Falcons 33, Dueces YMCA 12; St. Raphael's 12s 13, Davidson Papooses 12; Davidson Bums 21, Mar Vel 14s 10; St. Raphael's 14s 31, Mill Valley Boys Club 9; Gremlins YMCA 40, Santa Venetia Terrors 8; Mar Vel 16s 23, Falcons 16; Medallions YMCA 34, Gremlins YMCA 20; Shrikes YMCA 25, Mar Vel Blues 22.

Celtics Near Streak Mark

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The magic number for the Boston Celtics today was three.

Just three more victories and the red-hot Celts will tie the all-time National Basketball Assn. consecutive victory record of 17. It was set during the 1946-47 season by the Washington Capitols, no longer in existence.

The Celtics recorded their 14th straight triumph last night, a 123-119 decision over the New York Knickerbockers, and in the process, they stretched their Eastern Division lead to seven games.

In other games, the St. Louis Hawks lengthened their Western Division margin to seven games with a 112-96 triumph over the Minneapolis Lakers; the Cincinnati Royals turned back the Detroit Pistons 121-103 and the Philadelphia Warriors downed the Syracuse Nationals 129-121.

The Celtics trailed by as much as 21 points in the first half, but they caught fire and pulled to 103-111 in the final period. Then they scored 14 straight points to go ahead for good. Sam Jones, who scored 27 points, was high man for the winners.

The Hawks are rolling along on a winning streak of six games. Cliff Hagen, who stymied Laker star Elgin Baylor, led the Hawks with 32 points.

Cincinnati snapped a six-game losing streak to halt the Pistons. Arlen Bockhorn had 27 points and Jack Twyman 25 for the Royals.

W. Virginia Choice In Cage Classic

Eight teams will compete in the three-day tourney, called the greatest cagefest ever scheduled for southern California. The teams include National Champion California, USC, UCLA, Stanford, Illinois, Michigan and Northwestern along with West Virginia.

Both California and West Virginia are ranked among the top four teams in the nation and are undefeated to date. The Bears have won six straight and the Mountaineers eight straight.

USC and UCLA are considered the dark horses with each team exhibiting flashes of brilliance and erratic play this season. After losing its first two contests, the Trojans have won five successive games. Illinois is also given an outside chance to cop the title.

The six visiting teams are scheduled to work out in the sports Arena tomorrow in preparation for the openers.

West Fullback Injured; SMU Star Named As Replacement

Meek immediately tabbed Jim Welch of Southern Methodist to replace Smith in the starting lineup for the Jan. 2 Shrine Game at San Francisco's Kezar Stadium.

The East team also received an injury setback, with 245-pound tackle Lou Cordileone hospitalized with a cold and high temperature. He was expected to rejoin the squad, however, within a few days.

East Coach Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State concentrated on rushing drills yesterday in a single workout. The East squad gained a player with the late arrival of Notre Dame's Bob Scholtz, who reached camp Thursday night.

Both teams were guests at the annual Shrine Christmas party last night and gold watches were presented to all members of the All-Star group.

NEW RUMOR: CASANOVA MAY GET CAL POST

BERKELEY (UPI) — A new entrant was reported in the California coaching derby today when an authoritative source said Oregon Coach Len Casanova was under serious consideration for the post.

The post has been vacant since Pete Elliott resigned to go to the University of Illinois earlier this week.

Many names have been tossed about as possible successors, including former Navy Coach Eddie Erdlatz, former University of Washington assistant Bert Clark, Cal Line Coach Dee Andros and now Casanova, who was a former athletic star at Santa Clara.

Missouri Arrives For Orange Bowl

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Missouri Tigers lost no time today in starting intensive preparation for their Orange Bowl clash Jan. 1 with the Georgia Bulldogs.

The Missourians, with a 48-player squad, arrived late yesterday, and were sent through a limbering-up workout near their Miami Beach hotel.

Georgia was due here this afternoon.

"They have probably 30 formations," Devine said. "They pick out three or four which they figure might hurt you most and use them in a game."

Reasons Why Haney Quit Braves; Will He Return To New League?

CONNOLLY

The true story on why Fred Haney resigned as manager of the Milwaukee Braves probably never will be told.

But glimpses of some of his problems fall from the lips of old cronies and are passed along. I got a few of those recently while visiting in Los Angeles.

One old squirt who grew up with Fred in the south declared that if Haney had remained he would have had to trade, sell or release at least five or six men.

Another yarn making the rounds, without the approval of Haney, however, is that early last summer when Leo Durocher was ticketed for release by the NBA, Haney was contacted and accepted the job of broadcasting.

In that respect I think Haney will become one of the country's finest baseball broadcasters.

Haney will have to go far and long to improve on the KSFO "gold dust twins," Russ Hodges and Lon Simmons.

But Haney packs weight for age and he'll only be used in pinch hitting roles, rather than regulars like Hodges and Simmons.

IN LOS ANGELES, before he went back into baseball after retiring as manager of the Hollywood Stars, Haney did quite a stretch as a baseball announcer and interviewer of ball players. I think Haney's finest talent is interviews with ball players. He knows their problems and he knows what to ask and when to ask it. I think he'll be regarded as one of the best informed baseball interviewers.

Haney's principal reason, at least that given out by the owners, was he wanted to be home more with his family.

Which also was the same excuse given by Frankie Albert when he left the coaching job of the 49er football squad.

Yet, last time I saw an L.A. newspaper the name of Frankie Albert was mentioned prominently as a likely successor to Sid Gilman of the L.A. Rams.

HANEY, in quitting the Milwaukee club, hardly could blame baseball politics for his predicament and then go into a baseball broadcasting job afterwards. So Fred let the chips fall where they might and just took up his new job.

And by way of comparing salaries, Haney now is collecting $25,000 or more as a broadcaster and works only a couple days a week. To earn that much in baseball a manager has to be an acrobat, diplomat and be with a ball club where money is no object.

They say Haney is only figuring on a few years as a baseball broadcaster, but if this old coot knows Haney, his next step will be with his old fran, Branch Rickey in the new Continental League. It was Rickey who pulled Haney out of retirement to join St. Louis and make the most phenomenal comeback in 20th century baseball annals.

Rickey has taken pretty good care of his baseball pets. It was Joe Brown whom Rickey placed in Pittsburgh as the general manager and it may be that Rickey plans on doing the same for Haney when and if the Continental League gets under way.

But mark these words—Haney is a long ways from just a broadcaster in baseball. He's potentially a general manager for the Continental League, and is at present on ice until the nod comes from Rickey.

SATURDAY'S SHORTS

Pros Really Made A Pitch For Burford

SQUAW VALLEY (UPI)—Saturday's Shorts:

The battle between the Cleveland Browns and the Dallas entry in the new American Professional Football League for the services of ace end Chris Burford, must have been a doozy.

"It was like fraternity rush week," said Burford after revealing he had signed with Dallas. "Only with money as the bait."

The new stadium for the Giants in San Francisco got its first taste of rain—and it leaked all over the place.

How Squaw Valley got it's name (version No. 1): The Washoe Indians used the place as a summer home in the 1850s, with the men out hunting and the women staying home, digging for roots, onions, etc. When the white men came through the area on the Donner Trail, they came to the valley and found nothing except women. Hence: "Squaw Valley."

IT IS probable that European newspapers are devoting more space to the 1960 Olympic Games here than are American dailies. Few other sports besides skiing and skating in Europe these winter days . . . and besides, Europeans will run off with 99 per cent of the gold medals.

BEST BOWL game of the year should be: Texas vs. Syracuse. But the Rose Bowl battle between Washington and Wisconsin should be a dandy.

After visiting the Shrine crippled childrens' hospital, the East-West football players worried about the expenses of the game. They wanted to make sure that all possible money went to help care for the crippled kids. "And I hope there's a sell-out," said one . . . he didn't need to worry. Kezar's 60,000 seats have been sold since last August.

HANDSOMEST broth of a man on the Shrine teams: Michigan State's crack quarterback, Dean Look . . . He turns from this game and the Hula Bowl to professional baseball as a bonus baby with the Chicago White Sox. He had been drafted by the Detroit Lions. If he fails in baseball, he still could take a shot at the grid game.

If Eddie Erdelatz fails to get the University of California grid coaching job, there will be a furor in San Francisco newspapers. All have gone to bat for him. But the Cal men doing the selecting refuse to be pressured into a hurried decision.

Kaline Wins Slugging Championship

BOSTON (AP)—Al Kaline of Detroit, runner-up in the batting race, beat out home run hitters Mickey Mantle, Harmon Killebrew and Rocky Colavito to win the American League slugging championship, the official 1959 statistics revealed today.

Kaline had 271 total bases in 511 times at bat for a slugging mark of .530. Washington's Killebrew was next with .516 followed by the Yanks' Mantle .514 and Cleveland's Colavito, .512. Killebrew and Colavito shared the home run crown with 42, Mantle hit 31 and Kaline 27.

Kaline, who batted .327 to finish only behind champion Harvey Kuenn of the Tigers, had 167 hits which also included 19 doubles and 2 triples. Slugging averages are computed by dividing the number of total bases by the total official at bats.

Kaline also drew the most intentional walks, 12. However, teammate Eddie Yost led in total bases on balls with 136. Only one of Yost's passes was intentional. Mantle struck out 126 times to lead in that department.

Nixon camp, along with a bevy of former governors, senators and other top officials.

SUPPORTERS

Rockefeller's announced supporters had been led by Saltonstall and by Rep. Chester Merrow (R-N.H.).

On the Democratic side, Sen. John F. Kennedy has been virtually unopposed as a primary candidate in New Hampshire.

Rockefeller's major "sentiment testing" visit here came Sept. 25-26 when he flew here ostensibly to help plan the homecoming of his 1930 Dartmouth College graduating class. At that time he conferred with Powell, state leaders and also visited Vermont briefly.

Jewish Center To Hold Holiday Fete

The Marin Jewish Community Center will sponsor a community-wide family Chanukah party tomorrow from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

This event is sponsored by the center's young married group and is a celebration of the Feast of Dedication commemorating the successful struggle of the Jews for religious freedom in the time of the Maccabees.

There will be a performance of the puppet play "The Magic Top" by Seymour and June Lederman, Morris and Annette Bode, with puppets by June Lederman.

Other events will include community singing of Chanukah melodies and the lighting of the Chanukah candles by the following girls: Cele Hanzel, Lyn Hanzel, Kathy Riley, Linda Witong, Judy Meyer, Debbie Goldstein and Lonnie Hoytt.

The event will conclude with the distribution of Chanukah games and holiday gifts to the children.

ROCKY

Nixon camp, along with a bevy of former governors, senators and other top officials.

Only Tuesday, Gov. Powell had announced plans to file 25,000 names on petitions entering the name of Vice President Nixon in the primary.

SUPPORTERS

Rockefeller's announced supporters had been led by Saltonstall and by Rep. Chester Merrow (R-N.H.).

On the Democratic side, Sen. John F. Kennedy has been virtually unopposed as a primary candidate in New Hampshire.

Rockefeller's major "sentiment testing" visit here came Sept. 25-26 when he flew here ostensibly to help plan the homecoming of his 1930 Dartmouth College graduating class. At that time he conferred with Powell, state leaders and also visited Vermont briefly.

Jewish Center To Hold Holiday Fete

The Marin Jewish Community Center will sponsor a community-wide family Chanukah party tomorrow from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

This event is sponsored by the center's young married group and is a celebration of the Feast of Dedication commemorating the successful struggle of the Jews for religious freedom in the time of the Maccabees.

There will be a performance of the puppet play "The Magic Top" by Seymour and June Lederman, Morris and Annette Bode, with puppets by June Lederman.

Other events will include community singing of Chanukah melodies and the lighting of the Chanukah candles by the following girls: Cele Hanzel, Lyn Hanzel, Kathy Riley, Linda Witong, Judy Meyer, Debbie Goldstein and Lonnie Hoytt.

The event will conclude with the distribution of Chanukah games and holiday gifts to the children.

Jane E. Parle Rites Monday

Funeral services will be held Monday at Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito for Jane E. Parle who died today in Tiburon.

Social Security Information Office To Open

A field representative of the Social Security Administration will be stationed at the San Rafael City Hall on Mondays and Fridays, beginning Jan. 4, to answer questions regarding social security.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wiley will be the representative. She will set up shop in the city council chambers in what is expected to be a permanent program, said Charles H. Shreve, social security district manager.

Previously, the Social Security Adminsitration has had a representative at the state Department of Employment office in San Rafael on Wednesdays and Fridays. The move to city hall was necessitated by increased need for space by the office, said Shreve.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Dec. 26, the 360th day of the year, with five more days in 1959.

The moon is aproaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

On this day in history: In 1837, Admiral George Dewey, the hero of Manila Bay, was born.

In 1917, President Wilson ordered the federal government to take over the operation of all railroads for the duration of World War I.

In 1943, ships of the British navy sank the 26,000-ton German battleship Scharnhorst off the coast of Norway.

In 1944, the Allies began a counterattack against the Germans in the Ardennes sector as troops relieved the hard pressed 101st Airborne Division trapped at Bastogne in the battle of the Bulge.

A thought for today: Canadian author Arthur Stringer said: "Our bitterest wine is always drained from crushed ideals."

Fire Volunteers Seek Five Men In Corte Madera

The Corte Madera Volunteer Fire Department is seeking five new members, Chief Frank L. Nelson said today.

The resignation next month of Robert Knieriem will reduce the force to 20 men. Normal complement is 25.

One year of residence in Corte Madera is a prerequisite for membership. Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 50. Further information may be obtained from Nelson at the town firehouse.

The chief said Knieriem, employed in the Civil Defense office at Hamilton Air Force Base, will leave to take a new civil defense post in Everett, Wash.

Two Marin Firms Are Incorporated

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan announced Waterfront Publishers, Inc., a publishing and printing firm in Marin County, has filed articles of incorporation with his office, to be captalized at $75,000 in $25 par shares.

Directors of the firm were listed as Margaret Holstrom, 119 Bolinas avenue, Fairfax; Helen B. Kerr, 5 Josephine street, Sausalito, and David Holstrom, 119 Bolinas avenue, Fairfax.

Jordan also announced Tiburon Tommie's, a restaurant and tavern in Marin County, has filed articles of incorporation with his office, to be capitalized with 100 no par shares.

Directors for this firm were listed as Thomas E. Cox, John S. K. Won, 41 Main street, Tiburon; and Samuel Mendelson, 1055 Market street, San Francisco.

Long Way Up

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lonnie Argent, 5, and his brother, Rickie, 4, climbed up a ladder to the top of a 63-foot drive-in movie screen in an effort to catch pigeons nesting there.

Firemen had to remove the pair.

Sausalito Players List Cast Changes

The Sausalito Little Theater, which plans to present Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," sometime next month, today announced cast changes.

Arny Schultz will play Deputy Governor Danford; Gayle Griffen will be Mary Warren, and Mary Severson will play Abegail.

The cast will hold a "run-through" Tuesday and the performance will be recorded. The recording will be played for the cast Jan. 3 during a costume call.

Too Much Talk

BALTIMORE (AP) — Things looked pretty bad for Peter Mennin, director of the Peabody Conservatory of Music.

He chatted with a visitor so long they found everyone else in the building gone and the front door locked. Then the door to Mennin's office slammed, trapping them in the hall—out of reach of the key on Mennin's desk.

And when Mennin reached into his pocket to call the janitor from a hallway phone booth, he found only one nickel. Fortunately, the visitor had one, too.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

By RICHARD BARBOUR, Ph. D.
Guidance Counsellor

Neighbors Should Respect Feelings Of Family Concerning Modesty

D.H. "I'm mad at my neighbor. I have a boy and girl, aged 3 and 4. She has a boy and girl the same age. In my home we are careful to be modest. The children do not use the bathroom together or bathe together. My husband and I do not parade around the house in the nude. My neighbor says we're prudes. When our children are at her house she lets them go to the bathroom together. When my son and her daughter fell into a fishpond and got dirty, she bathed them in a tub together. My boy knew it was wrong, but she insisted. Does she have the right to do such things with my children? Is she correct or am I?"

Reply. Ideas about modesty vary. There are many homes like your neighbor's where traditional standards of modesty are disregarded. Some psychiatrists have said that children raised that way are less apt to develop quirks than those raised in a more modest fashion. However, there are many other homes in which the standards are upheld. My own conclusion is that it depends on the feelings of the parents. For you modesty is essential. For your neighbor it isn't. You should do what you feel to be right with your children. She should not put your children into situations which you feel are wrong. She should respect your wishes.

L.D. "I can't help but lose my temper at my children. I have two sets of twins, 5 and 3 years old. I yell at them sometimes or swat them unnecessarily. My husband scolds me. He says good mothers must hold their tempers. Does this mean I am a bad mother?"

Reply. No. All mothers have tempers. With four small children you are overburdened. They're certain to irritate you. Do your children know you love them? Do they have clear ideas about right and wrong, and know what they can and cant' do? Do you enjoy good companionship with them most of the time? If your answers are yes, don't worry. They can take occasional outbursts from you without harm.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Dec. 26, the 360th day of the year, with five more days in 1959.

The moon is aproaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

On this day in history: In 1837, Admiral George Dewey, the hero of Manila Bay, was born.

In 1917, President Wilson ordered the federal government to take over the operation of all railroads for the duration of World War I.

In 1943, ships of the British navy sank the 26,000-ton German battleship Scharnhorst off the coast of Norway.

In 1944, the Allies began a counterattack against the Germans in the Ardennes sector as troops relieved the hard pressed 101st Airborne Division trapped at Bastogne in the battle of the Bulge.

A thought for today: Canadian author Arthur Stringer said: "Our bitterest wine is always drained from crushed ideals."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

TO DECEMBER 29

Double Trouble

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Mrs. Byron Amspacher stepped on a nail in her garage. She tossed the nail into the back yard. Later in the day she stepped on the same nail.

Fire Volunteers Seek Five Men In Corte Madera

The Corte Madera Volunteer Fire Department is seeking five new members, Chief Frank L. Nelson said today.

The resignation next month of Robert Knieriem will reduce the force to 20 men. Normal complement is 25.

One year of residence in Corte Madera is a prerequisite for membership. Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 50. Further information may be obtained from Nelson at the town firehouse.

The chief said Knieriem, employed in the Civil Defense office at Hamilton Air Force Base, will leave to take a new civil defense post in Everett, Wash.

Two Marin Firms Are Incorporated

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan announced Waterfront Publishers, Inc., a publishing and printing firm in Marin County, has filed articles of incorporation with his office, to be capitalized at $75,000 in $25 par shares.

Directors of the firm were listed as Margaret Holstrom, 119 Bolinas avenue, Fairfax; Helen B. Kerr, 5 Josephine street, Sausalito, and David Holstrom, 119 Bolinas avenue, Fairfax.

Jordan also announced Tiburon Tommie's, a restaurant and tavern in Marin County, has filed articles of incorporation with his office, to be capitalized with 100 no par shares.

Directors for this firm were listed as Thomas E. Cox, John S. K. Won, 41 Main street, Tiburon; and Samuel Mendelson, 1055 Market street, San Francisco.

Long Way Up

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lonnie Argent, 5, and his brother, Rickie, 4, climbed up a ladder to the top of a 63-foot drive-in movie screen in an effort to catch pigeons nesting there.

Firemen had to remove the pair.

Sausalito Players List Cast Changes

The Sausalito Little Theater, which plans to present Arthur Miller's "The Crucible," sometime next month, today announced cast changes.

Arny Schultz will play Deputy Governor Danford; Gayle Griffen will be Mary Warren, and Mary Severson will play Abegail.

The cast will hold a "run-through" Tuesday and the performance will be recorded. The recording will be played for the cast Jan. 3 during a costume call.

Too Much Talk

BALTIMORE (AP) — Things looked pretty bad for Peter Mennin, director of the Peabody Conservatory of Music.

He chatted with a visitor so long they found everyone else in the building gone and the front door locked. Then the door to Mennin's office slammed, trapping them in the hall—out of reach of the key on Mennin's desk.

And when Mennin reached into his pocket to call the janitor from a hallway phone booth, he found only one nickel. Fortunately, the visitor had one, too.

Social Security Information Office To Open

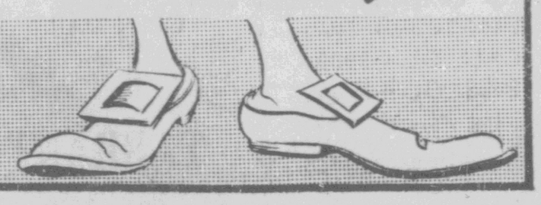

A field representative of the Social Security Administration will be stationed at the San Rafael City Hall on Mondays and Fridays, beginning Jan. 4, to answer questions regarding social security.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wiley will be the representative. She will set up shop in the city council chambers in what is expected to be a permanent program, said Charles H. Shreve, social security district manager.

Previously, the Social Security Adminsitration has had a representative at the state Department of Employment office in San Rafael on Wednesdays and Fridays. The move to city hall was necessitated by increased need for space by the office, said Shreve.

THE PARENTS' CORNER

Neighbors Should Respect Feelings Of Family Concerning Modesty

D.H. "I'm mad at my neighbor. I have a boy and girl, aged 3 and 4. She has a boy and girl the same age. In my home we are careful to be modest. The children do not use the bathroom together or bathe together. My husband and I do not parade around the house in the nude. My neighbor says we're prudes. When our children are at her house she lets them go to the bathroom together. When my son and her daughter fell into a fishpond and got dirty, she bathed them in a tub together. My boy knew it was wrong, but she insisted. Does she have the right to do such things with my children? Is she correct or am I?"

Reply. Ideas about modesty vary. There are many homes like your neighbor's where traditional standards of modesty are disregarded. Some psychiatrists have said that children raised that way are less apt to develop quirks than those raised in a more modest fashion. However, there are many other homes in which the standards are upheld. My own conclusion is that it depends on the feelings of the parents. For you modesty is essential. For your neighbor it isn't. You should do what you feel to be right with your children. She should not put your children into situations which you feel are wrong. She should respect your wishes.

L.D. "I can't help but lose my temper at my children. I have two sets of twins, 5 and 3 years old. I yell at them sometimes or swat them unnecessarily. My husband scolds me. He says good mothers must hold their tempers. Does this mean I am a bad mother?"

Reply. No. All mothers have tempers. With four small children you are overburdened. They're certain to irritate you. Do your children know you love them? Do they have clear ideas about right and wrong, and know what they can and cant' do? Do you enjoy good companionship with them most of the time? If your answers are yes, don't worry. They can take occasional outbursts from you without harm.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Carole Weeps In Jail

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carole Tregoff spent her 23rd birthday alone and weeping in county jail Christmas Day.

She and her sweetheart, Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 41, return to court Monday when jury selection will resume in their trial. They are accused of the July 18 slaying of the doctor's socialite wife Barbara, 33.

She was denied a Christmas visit with her father and stepmother. And the redhaired beauty couldn't get Christmas mail because the jail censor had the holiday off.

Liberace Suit Settled

LONDON (AP) — Liberace's British attorney has announced settlement of a legal action brought by the American TV entertainer against a London revue.

Liberace claimed he was libeled and slandered in the Apollo Theater show "For Amusement Only" which closed last fall. Writs were issued against comedian Jimmy Thompson, who appeared in a Liberace skit, scripwriter Peter Myers and the theatrical production firm of Linnit and Dunfee.

In a Christmas holiday statement, attorney David Jacobs said the British defendants have apologized to Liberace, paid his costs "and at his request made a donation to the Actors' Benevolent Fund."

Casino Owner Slain

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Police held a former gambling house girl as a material witness today but reported they had no definite lead on who shot and killed Bill Duffin, a casino owner.

Six slugs were fired into Duffin's back Christmas Day as he climbed into his car on the main street here, just two blocks from the state Capitol.

Ike Sees Grandchildren

He left by automobile about 8:15 a.m. and was expected to return to the White House within a few hours.

White House sources said the President had hoped to make his Christmas visit to the children Friday but was unable to do so because of ice-coated highways.

Anne Wheaton, associate press secretary, said that in view of Eisenhower's plan to leave Sunday for a vacation in Augusta, Ga., "it seemed the logical thing to do."

Fishing Boat Sinks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Coast Guard renewed efforts today to reach a crewman last seen floating in the wreckage of the fishing boat Joan of Arc off Grand Isle.

He was one of three crewmen pitched into the sea when the 52-foot boat ran aground in roaring surf yesterday, 200 yards off shore.

One crewman, Ralph Paul of Bellfolwer, Calif., swam to the beach. A third man was missing. Paul, the only crewman identified, said he knew his shipmates only as "Frisco" and "Doug."

Yule Crash Kills 8

HAVERSTRAW, N.Y. (AP) — Eight of 11 persons riding in one automobile were killed Christmas day when the car spun out of control on a wet highway and rammed into a building.

Crash Toll Mounts

Wayne Smith, 16, died in the Garberville Hospital from injuries suffered Wednesday. He was riding with four other boys in the pickup when it collided with the tanker, loaded with diesel fuel, on rain-wet Highway 101 half a mile north of here.

Water Pipe Bursts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A big water pipe burst at Merced Manor Reservoir on Sloat boulevard last night, shaking the area, spouting 20 feet high and pouring thousands of gallons of water into the streets.

Water department troubleshooters stemmed the flow after an hour and 15 minutes.

Swastika Reappears

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) — West German officials promised swift action today against any flareups of anti-Semitism after seizing two men for smearing the walls of a Cologne synagogue Christmas Eve with red-pointed swastikas and the words "Germans we demand: Jews, get out!"

Josef-Hermann Dufhues, interior minister of the North Rhine-Westphalia state government, went before a nationwide TV audience to say he was convinced there is no anti-Semitism in West Germany despite the incident.

"Only a few outsiders resort to such an outrage and we will watch them closely," he declared.

Afghan Riots Feared

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Army tanks today were reported patrolling the streets of Kandahar, Afghanistan, as an aftermath of rioting Monday.

Radio Pakistan, attributing its information to reliable sources, said authorities of the neighboring kingdom fear another riot may be imminent and south Afghan towns have been reinforced by radio-equipped troops.

Quake Victims Helped

Fragmentary reports said seven persons were killed and 37 injured at the village of Pomabamba, and that 254 homes were destroyed there.

Two other villages, Mollebamba and Huantapuquio, were described with Pomabamba as being among the most affected. But there was no detail on the toll in those two.

Five Tackle Peak

DUBOIS, Wyo. (AP) — Heavy snow and fog shrouded today the progress of five men climbing Gannett Peak, Wyoming's highest mountain at an elevation of 13,785 feet.

No fears were felt for the expert alpinists, all of whom had climbed the peak in the summertime.

Reed Students Name Subdivision Streets

Twelve roads in the Reedlands Unit 5, off the Tiburon highway now have names chosen by seventh and eighth graders of Reed School.

The names were chosen in a street-naming contest, and winning entries brough prizes of $50 to the student council, and $3 per name to successful contestants.

The subdivision, developed by Mrs. Mary J. Burrell, has received tentative approval from the county planning commission.

Four pupils tied in suggesting one winner — Lupin lane. They are three eighth graders, Roxanne Neal, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. William Neal; Tina Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Peterson, and Christine Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marshall, and seventh grader Robin Erickson, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Erickson.

Another street — Vacquero way—was named by Joy McKie, grade eight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forest McKie; Phil Williams, grade seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Williams, and Jim Wilson, grade seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Wilson.

Wayfarer court was submitted by eighth graders Connie Vigno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Vigno, and Carol Kokjer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kokjer. Pinto Walk was entered by Marjie Ryall, grade seven, daughter of Mrs. Barbara Ryall, and Jov McKie.

Carol Heidelbach, grade eight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Heidelbach, submitted two winners, Siesta place and Nanana court.

Other names selected were: Little Bend, by Valice Redden, grade seven, daughter of Mrs. Robert S. Harder; Ayola way, Roxanne Neal; Whitecap Knoll, Bill Heidel, grade eight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heidel; Juniper Hill, Cheryl Balzan, grade nine, daughter of Mrs. B. F. Kriens; Robledo road, Sam Mercer, grade eight, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Mercer; Bonaventura, Denise Chappel, grade eight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chappel.

Judges were David Van Pelt, county planning employee; Mrs. Burrell and Paul Stauffer, Reed Union School District superintendent.

Visiting Minister To Speak At Hub Baptist Church

Rev. Laurie Taylor will preach on the subject "One Small Candle" and play piano selections at the 11 a.m. service tomorrow at the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo.

Rev. Tayior will play classical and spiritual piano selections during an evening concert at the church. There will be no formal sermon at the evening service.

Judge Orders Vehicle Chief To Return Driver's License

MARTINEZ (UPI)—Robert Mccarthy, director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, has been ordered to return the driver's license of a man who pleaded guilty to drunk driving.

Superior Court Judge Wakefield Taylor issued the order and stated that unless the license is returned, McCarthy must appear before the court Jan. 18 to show cause why it wasn't.

McCarthy, acting under the state's recently-adopted policy of suspending licenses of drunk drivers, took the license of Army M/Sgt. Bill C. Mattis, 47, Martinez, from Dec. 23 to May 8. Mattis was fined $263.

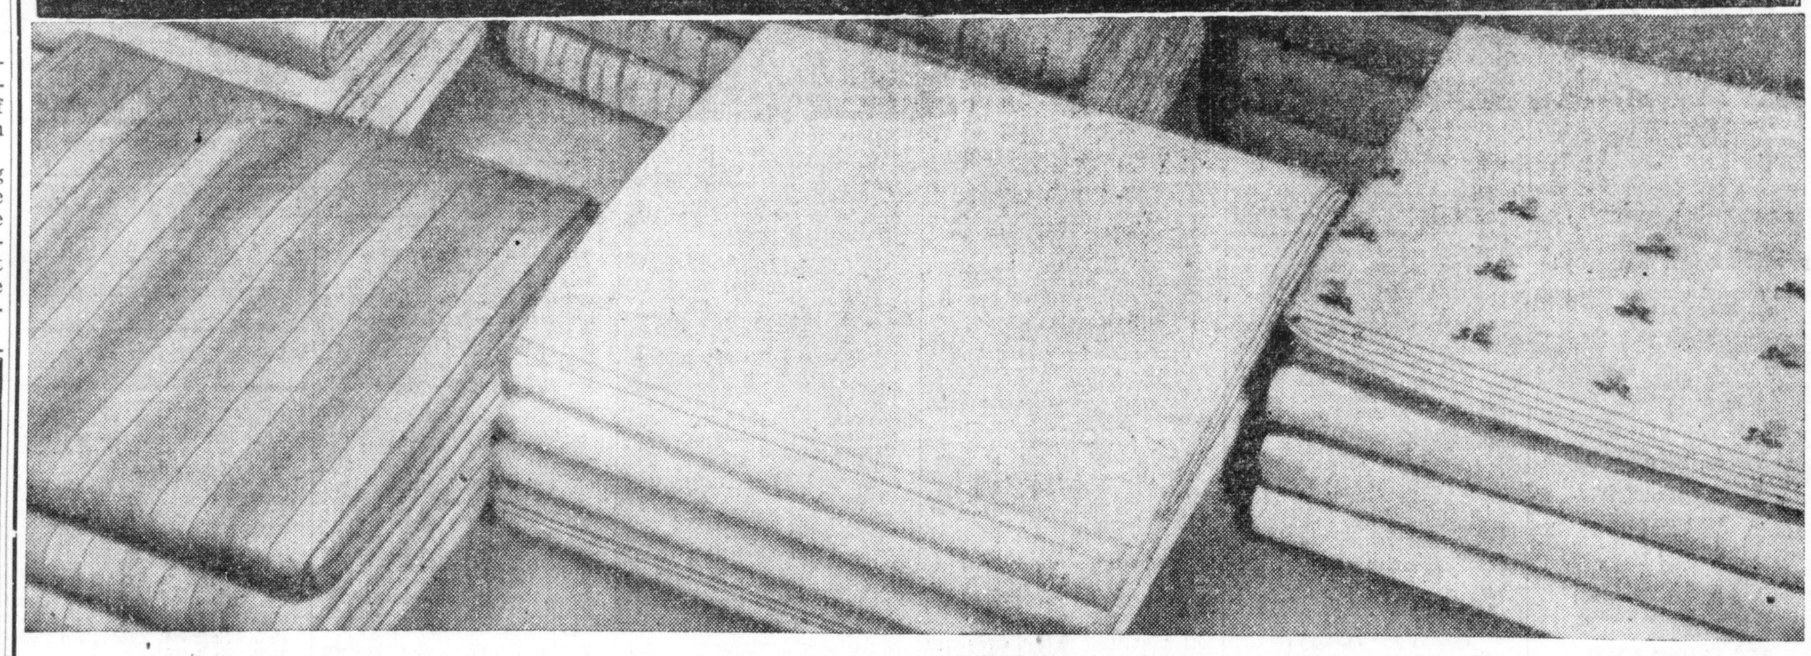

The Army sergeant appealed the license suspension and Judge Taylor issued a writ of mandamus Thursday. In a similar case, the department has appealed a court order that a license be reinstated.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Carole Weeps In Jail

She and her sweetheart, Dr. R. Bernard Finch, 41, return to court Monday when jury selection will resume in their trial. They are accused of the July 18 slaying of the doctor's socialite wife Barbara, 33.

She was denied a Christmas visit with her father and stepmother. And the redhaired beauty couldn't get Christmas mail because the jail censor had the holiday off.

Liberace Suit Settled

LONDON (AP) — Liberace's British attorney has announced settlement of a legal action brought by the American TV entertainer against a London revue.

Liberace claimed he was libeled and slandered in the Apollo Theater show "For Amusement Only" which closed last fall. Writs were issued against comedian Jimmy Thompson, who appeared in a Liberace skit, scripwriter Peter Myers and the theatrical production firm of Linnit and Dunfee.

In a Christmas holiday statement, attorney David Jacobs said the British defendants have apologized to Liberace, paid his costs "and at his request made a donation to the Actors' Benevolent Fund."

Casino Owner Slain

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Police held a former gambling house girl as a material witness today but reported they had no definite lead on who shot and killed Bill Duffin, a casino owner.

Six slugs were fired into Duffin's back Christmas Day as he climbed into his car on the main street here, just two blocks from the state Capitol.

Ike Sees Grandchildren

He left by automobile about 8:15 a.m. and was expected to return to the White House within a few hours.

White House sources said the President had hoped to make his Christmas visit to the children Friday but was unable to do so because of ice-coated highways.

Anne Wheaton, associate press secretary, said that in view of Eisenhower's plan to leave Sunday for a vacation in Augusta, Ga., "it seemed the logical thing to do."

Fishing Boat Sinks

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Coast Guard renewed efforts today to reach a crewman last seen floating in the wreckage of the fishing boat Joan of Arc off Grand Isle.

He was one of three crewmen pitched into the sea when the 52-foot boat ran aground in roaring surf yesterday, 200 yards off shore.

One crewman, Ralph Paul of Bellfolwer, Calif., swam to the beach. A third man was missing. Paul, the only crewman identified, said he knew his shipmates only as "Frisco" and "Doug."

Yule Crash Kills 8

HAVERSTRAW, N.Y. (AP) — Eight of 11 persons riding in one automobile were killed Christmas day when the car spun out of control on a wet highway and rammed into a building.

Crash Toll Mounts

Wayne Smith, 16, died in the Garberville Hospital from injuries suffered Wednesday. He was riding with four other boys in the pickup when it collided with the tanker, loaded with diesel fuel, on rain-wet Highway 101 half a mile north of here.

Water Pipe Bursts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A big water pipe burst at Merced Manor Reservoir on Sloat boulevard last night, shaking the area, spouting 20 feet high and pouring thousands of gallons of water into the streets.

Water department troubleshooters stemmed the flow after an hour and 15 minutes.

Swastika Reappears

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) — West German officials promised swift action today against any flareups of anti-Semitism after seizing two men for smearing the walls of a Cologne synagogue Christmas Eve with red-pointed swastikas and the words "Germans we demand: Jews, get out!"

Josef-Hermann Dufhues, interior minister of the North Rhine-Westphalia state government, went before a nationwide TV audience to say he was convinced there is no anti-Semitism in West Germany despite the incident.

"Only a few outsiders resort to such an outrage and we will watch them closely," he declared.

Afghan Riots Feared

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Army tanks today were reported patrolling the streets of Kandahar, Afghanistan, as an aftermath of rioting Monday.

Radio Pakistan, attributing its information to reliable sources, said authorities of the neighboring kingdom fear another riot may be imminent and south Afghan towns have been reinforced by radio-equipped troops.

Quake Victims Helped

Fragmentary reports said seven persons were killed and 37 injured at the village of Pomabamba, and that 254 homes were destroyed there.

Two other villages, Mollebamba and Huantapuquio, were described with Pomabamba as being among the most affected. But there was no detail on the toll in those two.

Five Tackle Peak

DUBOIS, Wyo. (AP) — Heavy snow and fog shrouded today the progress of five men climbing Gannett Peak, Wyoming's highest mountain at an elevation of 13,785 feet.

No fears were felt for the expert alpinists, all of whom had climbed the peak in the summertime.

Reed Students Name Subdivision Streets

Twelve roads in the Reedlands Unit 5, off the Tiburon highway now have names chosen by seventh and eighth graders of Reed School.

The names were chosen in a street-naming contest, and winning entries brough prizes of $50 to the student council, and $3 per name to successful contestants.

The subdivision, developed by Mrs. Mary J. Burrell, has received tentative approval from the county planning commission.

Four pupils tied in suggesting one winner — Lupin lane. They are three eighth graders, Roxanne Neal, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. M. William Neal; Tina Peterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Peterson, and Christine Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marshall, and seventh grader Robin Erickson, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. John Erickson.

Another street — Vacquero way—was named by Joy McKie, grade eight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forest McKie; Phil Williams, grade seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Williams, and Jim Wilson, grade seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Wilson.

Wayfarer court was submitted by eighth graders Connie Vigno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Vigno, and Carol Kokjer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kokjer. Pinto Walk was entered by Marjie Ryall, grade seven, daughter of Mrs. Barbara Ryall, and Joy McKie.

Carol Heidelbach, grade eight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Heidelbach, submitted two winners, Siesta place and Nanana court.

Other names selected were: Little Bend, by Valice Redden, grade seven, daughter of Mrs. Robert S. Harder; Ayola way, Roxanne Neal; Whitecap Knoll, Bill Heidel, grade eight, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heidel; Juniper Hill, Cheryl Balzan, grade nine, daughter of Mrs. B. F. Kriens; Robledo road, Sam Mercer, grade eight, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Mercer; Bonaventura, Denise Chappel, grade eight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chappel.

Judges were David Van Pelt, county planning employee; Mrs. Burrell and Paul Stauffer, Reed Union School District superintendent.

Visiting Minister To Speak At Hub Baptist Church

Rev. Laurie Taylor will preach on the subject "One Small Candle" and play piano selections at the 11 a.m. service tomorrow at the First Baptist Church of San Anselmo.

Rev. Taylor will play classical and spiritual piano selections during an evening concert at the church. There will be no formal sermon at the evening service.

Judge Orders Vehicle Chief To Return Driver's License

MARTINEZ (UPI)—Robert Mccarthy, director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, has been ordered to return the driver's license of a man who pleaded guilty to drunk driving.

Superior Court Judge Wakefield Taylor issued the order and stated that unless the license is returned, McCarthy must appear before the court Jan. 18 to show cause why it wasn't.

McCarthy, acting under the state's recently-adopted policy of suspending licenses of drunk drivers, took the license of Army M/Sgt. Bill C. Mattis, 47, Martinez, from Dec. 23 to May 8. Mattis was fined $263.

The Army sergeant appealed the license suspension and Judge Taylor issued a writ of mandamus Thursday. In a similar case, the department has appealed a court order that a license be reinstated.

Nevada Tycoon Dies

RENO (AP)—George Wingfield Sr., an early day cowboy and roulette dealer who became Nevada's most influential tycoon, died last night at the age of 83.

AMONG MARIN'S many public bodies the Marin County Probation Committee is perhaps the least known. MARIN ET CETERA

By Harry Craft

Year-End Chore: The Disposing Of 1959s Collection Of Trivia

This, I'll have you know, has not happened for over a year and the transferral of contents from one to the other has been a slow, nostalgic process. In this olive-green metal container reposes a collection of memorabilia like unto the sweepings from a newly-vacated house.

Shortly after this is written I shall take it all out to the barbecue pit, light a match, and watch 12 months' et cetera go up in flame and smoke.

Well—almost all of it. I may save out a few souvenirs for the sake of auld lang syne but the rest has got to go. Absolutely.

What good, for example, is this old notice from the health department ordering us to keep Lassie confined two weeks for "inflicting a bite?" That was last June. We don't hold it against her that those two weeks happened to be our vacation and we had to stay home, but there's no use being reminded of it.

OR THIS LIST of VIPs seen at the San Geronimo Valley Improvement Assn. barbecue in August — Virgil Hollis, Lloyd de la Montanya, Charlie Reilley, Bill Schneeflock, the Al Hubers and others. The steaks were good, but the event is past history.

Now here's a beautiful postcard Gerd Stern sent from New York. But that was last April, and he's been home eight months. So what can I do with a color picture of lower Manhattan skyline?

This memo I should have discovered last month when Charlie Fulcher of Ross (now he's moved to SF) asked if there was any restaurant in Marin that served pasta al pesto and I said I didn't think so. Come to find out it's one of the specialties of Hector Rubini of San Rafael Joe's. Too late now.

ALL THESE pieces of paper with phone numbers and no names to identify them. Just double-headed arrows and rectangles with crosses inside. (I always doodle double-headed arrows and rectangles with crosses).

Programs from the Western Electronic and restaurant conventions. I can collect some new ones next year. They'll be back again.

Rough draft of my son's book report in college on "The Organization Man." I wish he'd learn to spell better.

Business cards of men I'll never see again — Alfons Steinhoff from Germany, J. P. Ward from England, Agne Sandberg from Sweden, Kick Kammeijer from Holland. (On second thought, Kick's I'll save. He's the one that sells Amstel beer).

A diagrammatic sketch of a cross-over network for tweeter and woofer. Just wait until I get hold of the guy who drew it for me. I'm out $3.65 for parts that don't work.

An air mail letter from C. D. Jones of New York that he could be reached at the Beverly-Hilton in Los Angeles on Oct. 23 which arrived Oct. 26. (I saved $3.65 on a long distance call).

AN INVITATION to the opening of the Highland Room at the Stewart Hotel in San Francisco that arrived March 21. The opening was on the 20th.

Baseball handbook and schedules for 1958. (No, I'll keep this. It has a picture of my namesake with the Kansas City Athletics. I wonder if he's any relation.)

Two dozen assorted pencil memos that don't make any sense. They read like missing clues from a whodunit.

There they go, these and other relics of an eventful and frustrating 1959. Nothing like a clean office, I say.

Big Jim Kehoe's 'Marvelous Life'

He Gave Up Chance At Movie Career For Love, And Has Never Regretted It

By DOROTHY BLACKMAN

If Jim Kehoe had accepted Western star Hoot Gibson's offer of a job in the movies, he might have become a famous cowboy actor himself.

He was an adventurous rodeo rider in those days, and must have cut a handsome figure in the saddle, all six feet, two, of him. Hollywood wanted big men.

He came back to Marin, married the girl he loved, and became a highly successful rancher and much respected member of the county board of supervisors.

Today, as he relaxes in a comfortable chair and looks out the picture window of his Inverness home toward fog-shrouded Mt. Tamalpais, he can look back on a life that has been far from dull.

THAT LIFE has included a happy marriage, raising a family of three sons, being his own boss most of the time, living the outdoor life he loves, and serving his community.

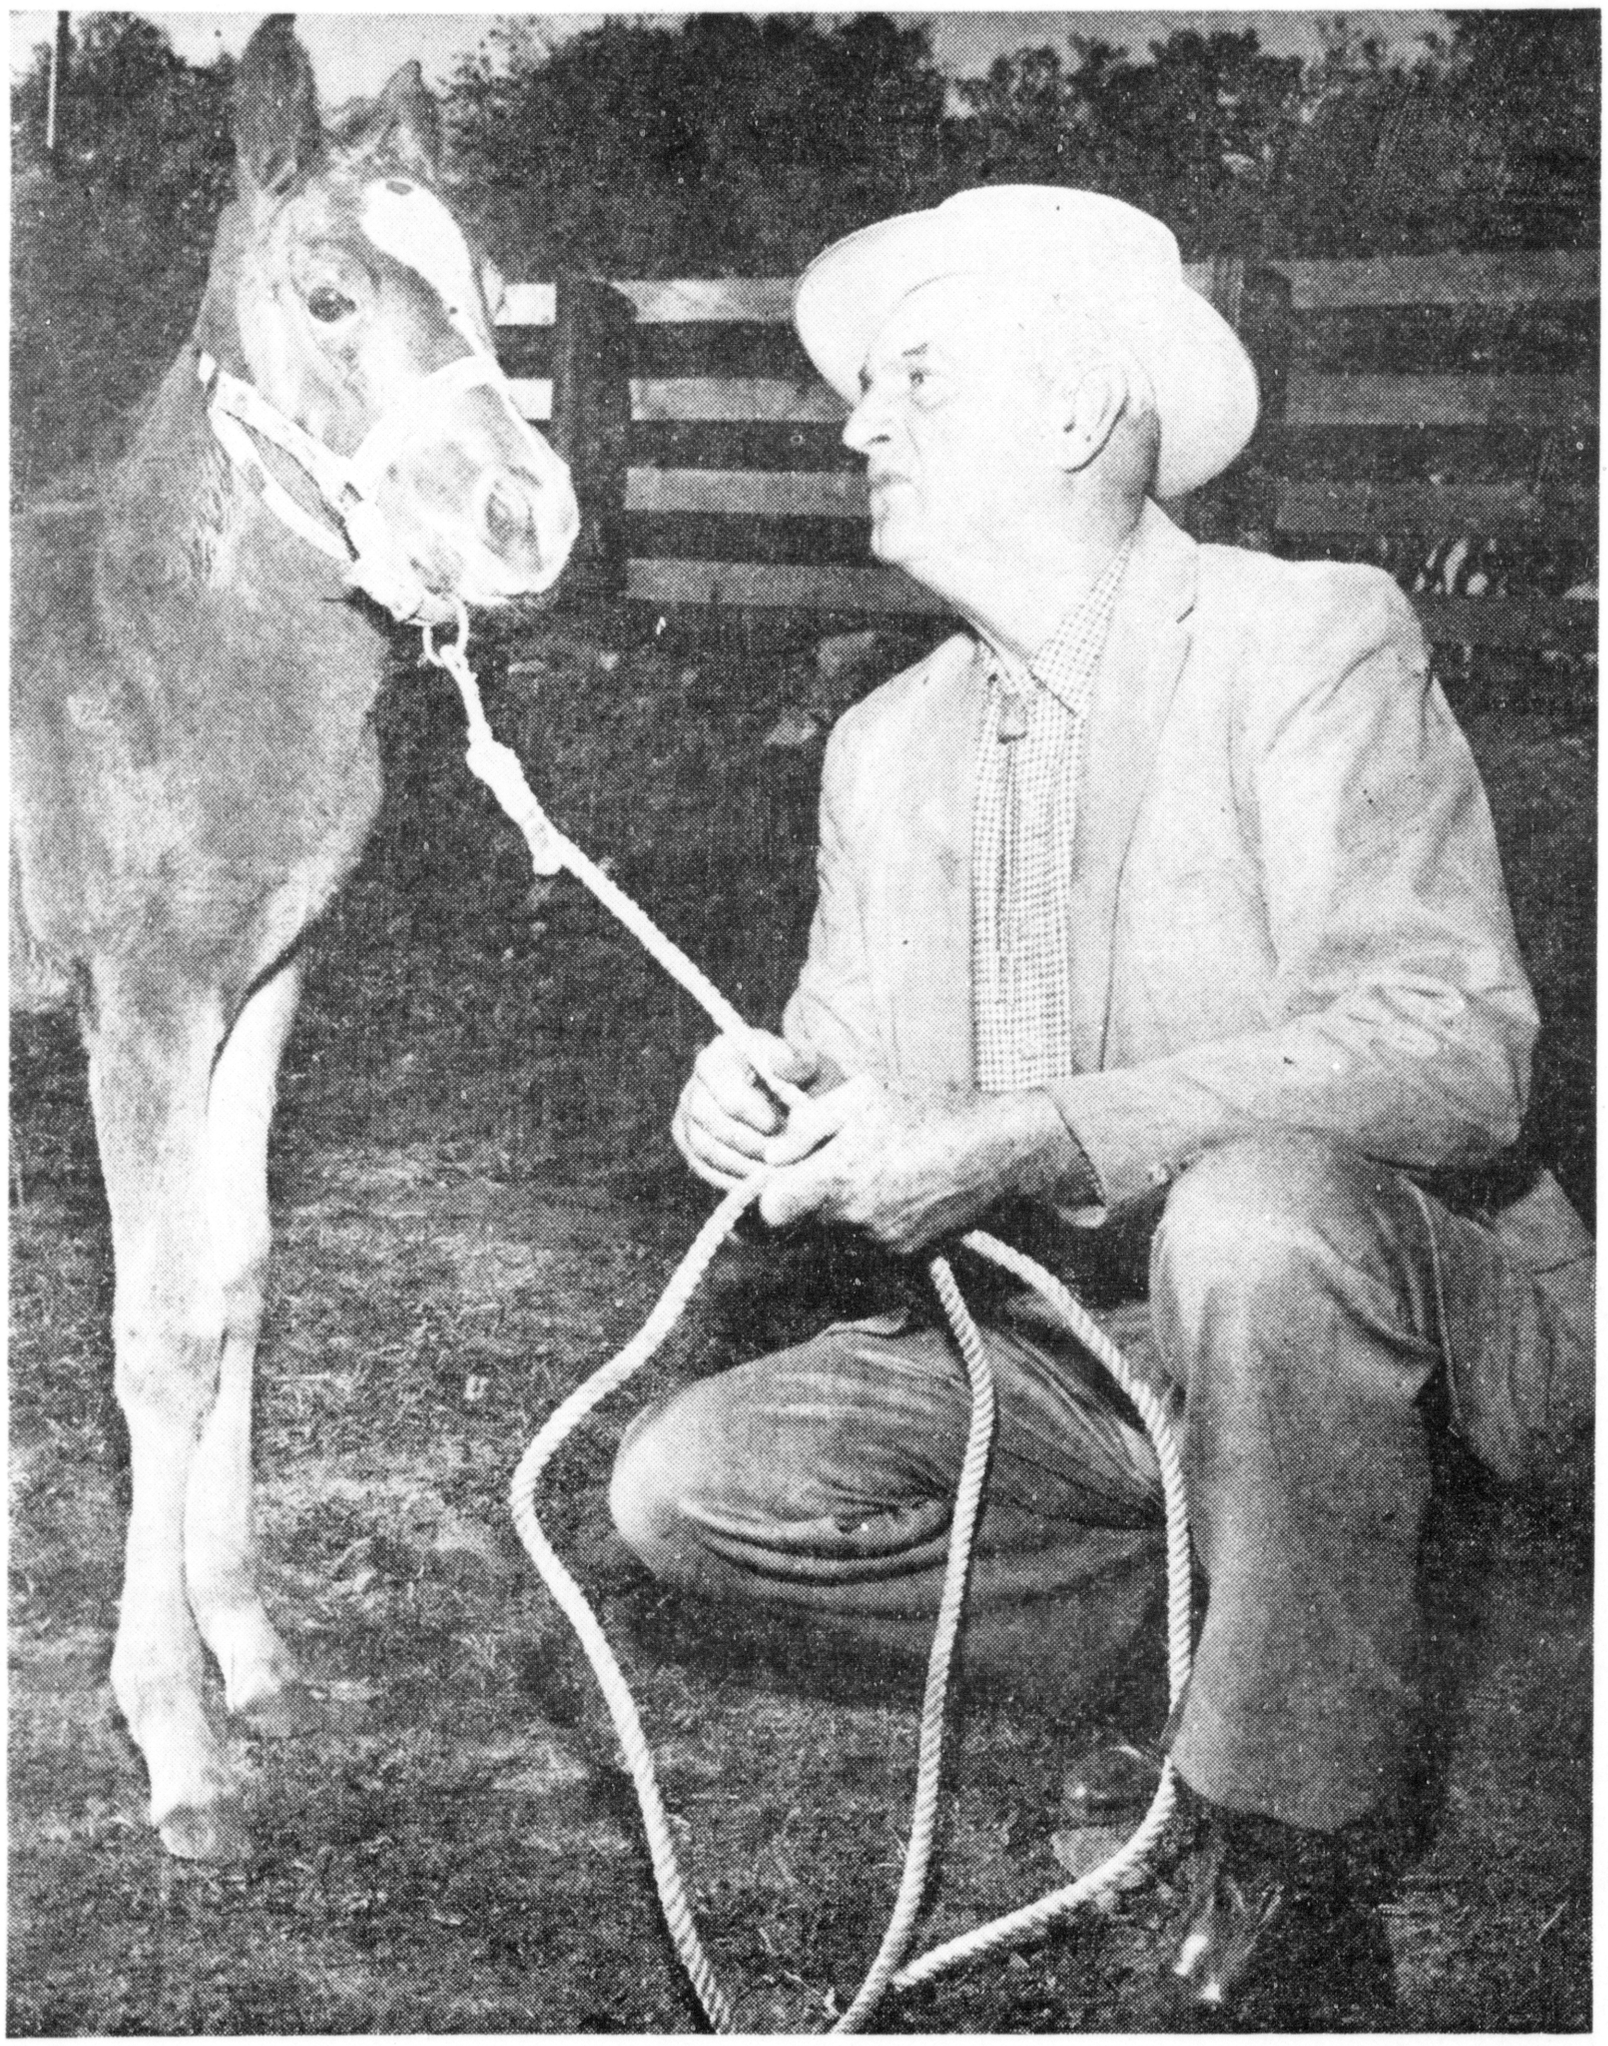

At 61, he can say firmly, and happily — despite his share of tragedy—"If I had to live life over, I'd take the same thing. I've had a marvelous life."

Kehoe and his wife, the former Alma Bean, live in a handsome house on 14 acres, high on a bluff overlooking Tomales Bay. Not too far away, on Pierce Point road, their son Kenneth, 27, manages their 1,300-acre dairy ranch.

James V. Kehoe was born in San Francisco, the son of an Irish butcher from Galway and a colleen from Tipperary. His father ran a butcher shop in South San Francisco, and Jim had an older brother and two sisters.

Young Kehoe started school in Sausalito. The family had moved there when his mother's health broke, and his father commuted to the city on the ferry boats.

Then, one day, the elder Kehoe was in a ferry boat collision in the fog. He decided that was enough commuting for him, and the family moved back to San Francisco.

About 1914-15 San Francisco held its Pan-Pacific Exposition, and from Bliss, Okla., came the "101 Show" to entertain the crowds. Jim and his cousins were hired to do trick riding in the show.

FOR THE NEXT four years he followed the rodeo circuit in California, to Salinas, Los Angeles, Bakersfield and other towns.

He never went to high school, but completed his education at Heald's Business College in San Francisco.

And in between rodeo competition he found the movies could use his talents. He worked for three months for the California Moving Picture Corp. in San Rafael on a stirring silent epic called "The Heart of Juanita.

"I was an extra, a rider, vigilante and what-not. And I got $75 a week for myself and my saddle horse," Kehoe recalls, with a bit of pride. That was a lot of money in those days.

Although he turned down his chance at a Hollywood career, ("I was going with Mama then in Tomales and I didn't want to stay in Hollywood") he remembers vividly that brief fling at the movies in Marin.

The picture was filmed in Lagunitas Canyon. George Middleton was the director and Bill Pike was the leading man. Beatriz Michelena was the leading lady and Andy Robson the "heavy."

About 1919 Jim went to work for an uncle on a dairy ranch at Pt. Reyes. After a year there, he and a cousin leased another ranch (now the Murphy ranch) on Pt. Reyes and ran it for two years. The lease expired then, and he was out of a ranch and out of a job. So it was back to the rodeo circuit for another year.

Then Kehoe got a job making butter for the Point Reyes Cooperative Creamery for two years. In 1922 he leased the ranch he now owns, and 17 years later he bought it.

HE WAS A popular figure in West Marin long before he was elected a supervisor. The Point Reyes Milk Producers Assn. (formerly the Cooperative Creamery) unanimously elected him president in 1926 —and he has been re-elected every year since. This is one of the activities that keep him busy, now that he has retired from ranching and the board of supervisors.

The association is a cooperative organization, marketing milk for 33 dairymen. It is a unit of the Challenge Cream and Butter Assn., of which Kehoe has been a director since 1927.

That 100 per cent vote that made him president of the Milk Producers Assn. must have convinced him he had a chance to be elected supervisor, Kehoe says jokingly.

But press him for the real reason and he can still remember it with the same degree of anger he felt at that time.

When he bought his ranch, there was no county road in that area. "We were fighting mud in winter, dust in summer," he says. His neighbor had a sick father, and, one bad winter, the doctor couldn't get through to the ranch in time. The father died. And then, Kehoe recalls, even the undertaker couldn't get through to that ranch.

Angered, Kehoe went to the board of supervisors as spokesman for a group of

He Gave Up Chance At Movie Career For Love, And Has Never Regretted It

By DOROTHY BLACKMAN

If Jim Kehoe had accepted Western star Hoot Gibson's offer of a job in the movies, he might have become a famous cowboy actor himself.

He was an adventurous rodeo rider in those days, and must have cut a handsome figure in the saddle, all six feet, two, of him. Hollywood wanted big men.

He came back to Marin, married the girl he loved, and became a highly successful rancher and much respected member of the county board of supervisors.

Today, as he relaxes in a comfortable chair and looks out the picture window of his Inverness home toward fog-shrouded Mt. Tamalpais, he can look back on a life that has been far from dull.

THAT LIFE has included a happy marriage, raising a family of three sons, being his own boss most of the time, living the outdoor life he loves, and serving his community.

At 61, he can say firmly, and happily — despite his share of tragedy—"If I had to live life over, I'd take the same thing. I've had a marvelous life."

Kehoe and his wife, the former Alma Bean, live in a handsome house on 14 acres, high on a bluff overlooking Tomales Bay. Not too far away, on Pierce Point road, their son Kenneth, 27, manages their 1,300-acre dairy ranch.

James V. Kehoe was born in San Francisco, the son of an Irish butcher from Galway and a colleen from Tipperary. His father ran a butcher shop in South San Francisco, and Jim had an older brother and two sisters.

Young Kehoe started school in Sausalito. The family had moved there when his mother's health broke, and his father commuted to the city on the ferry boats.

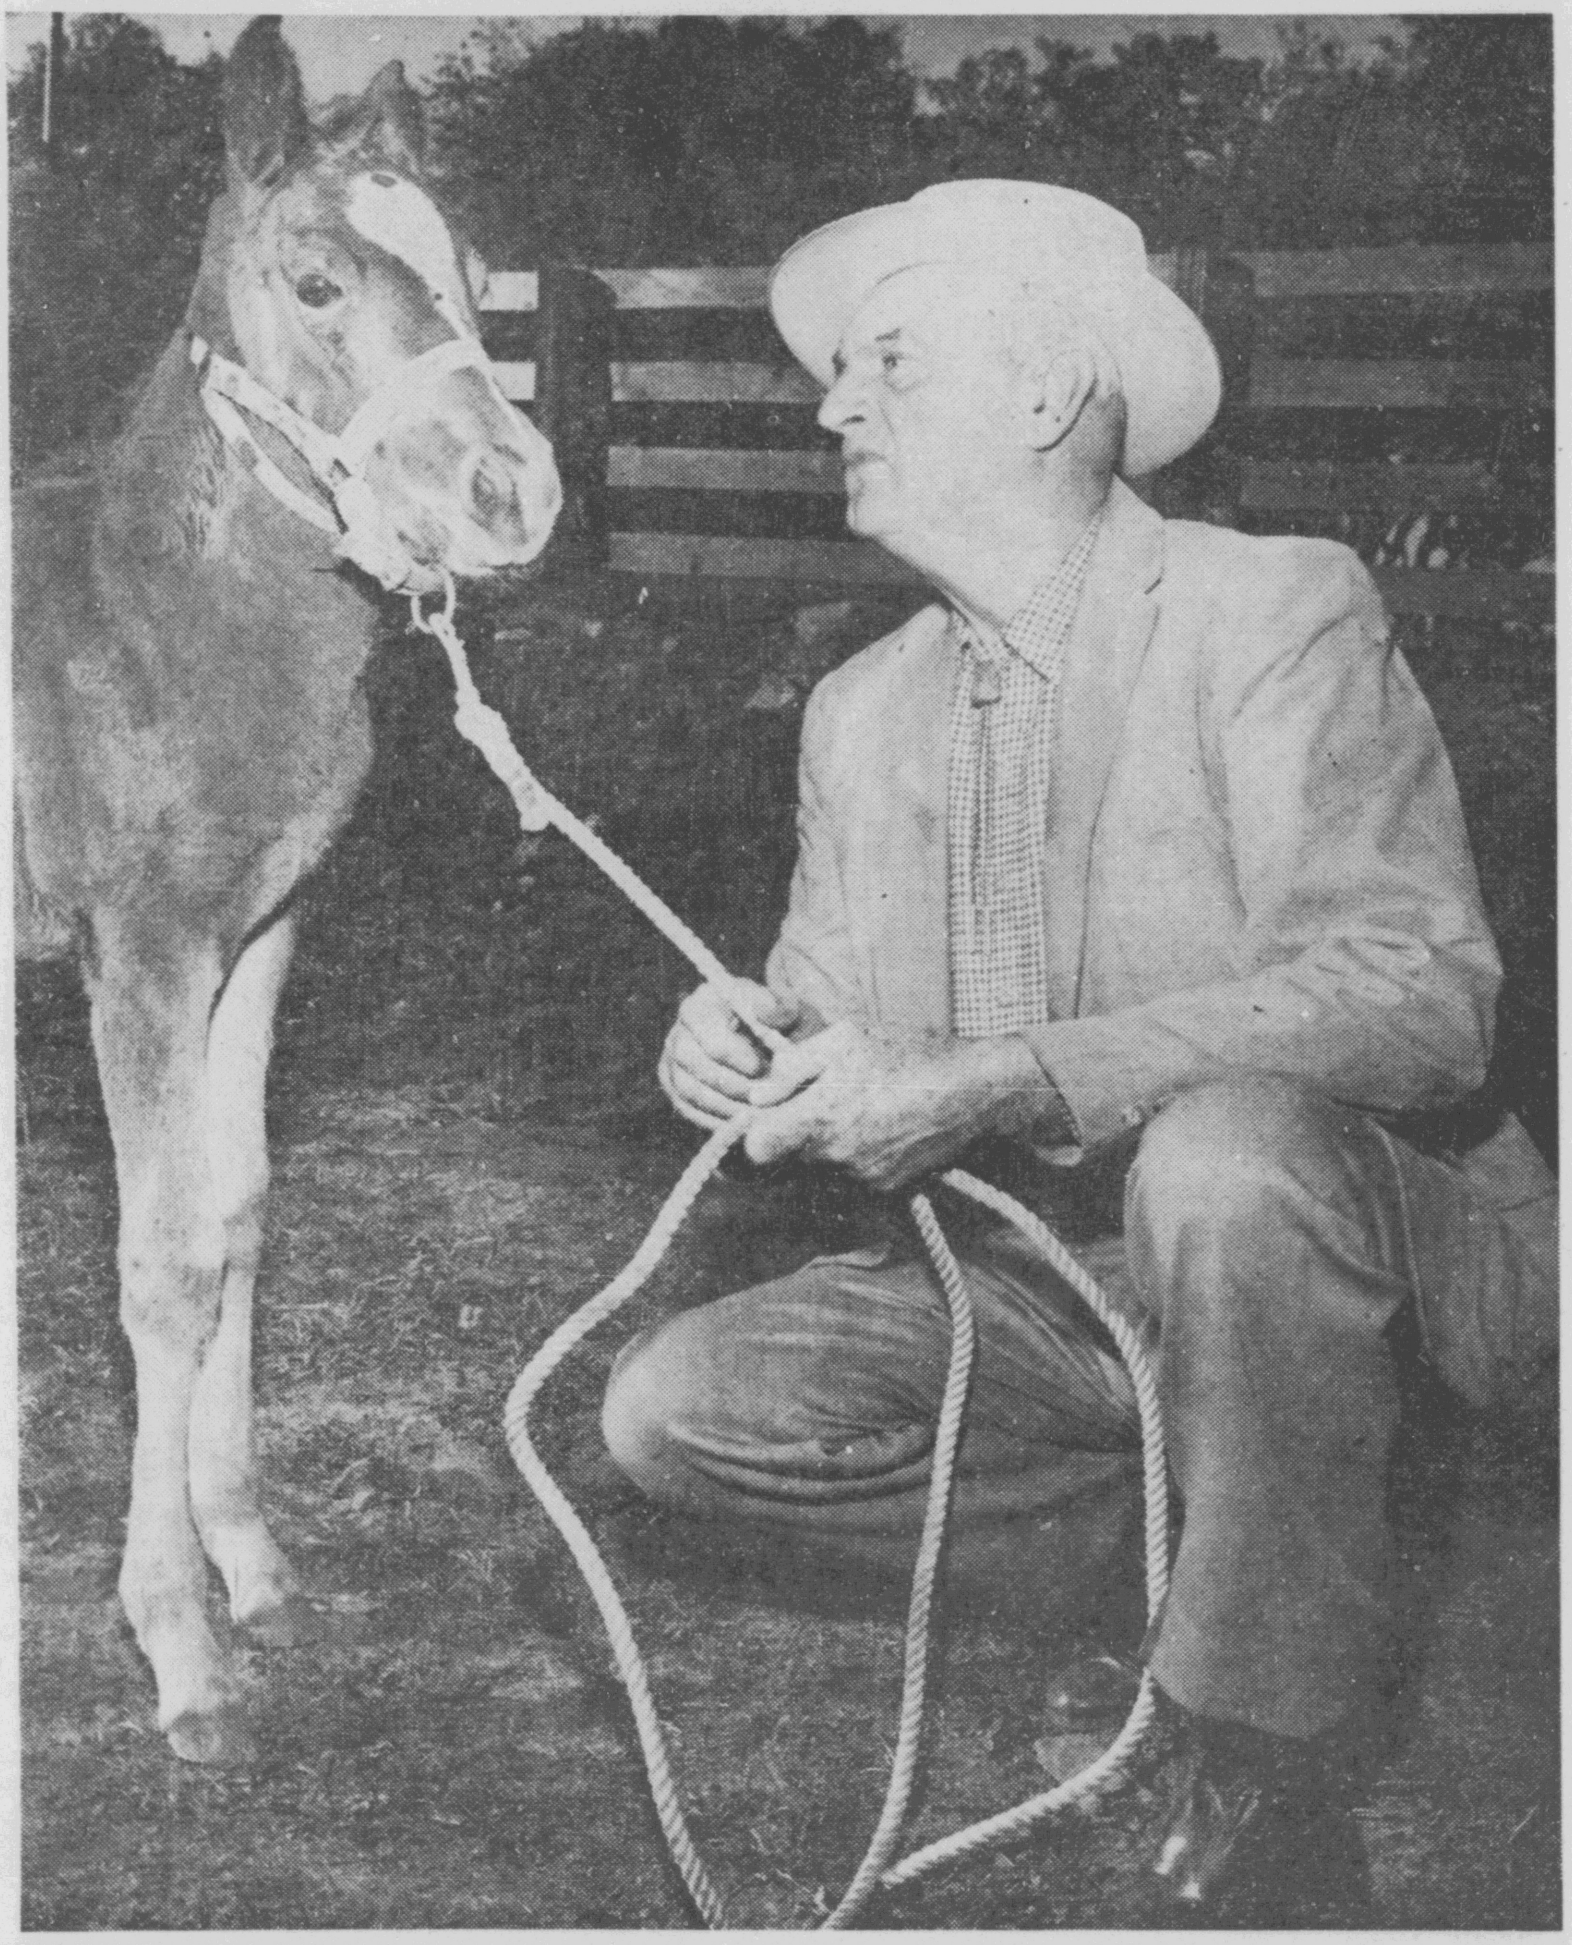

Then, one day, the elder Kehoe was in a ferry boat collision in the fog. He decided that was enough commuting for him, and the family moved back to San Francisco.

Drake High Students Adopt A School

They are the members of a steering committee organized to map out a program of aid for Drake's "adopted school" in the poverty-ridden village of Chapultepec, Mexico. They were elated because, in addition to the usual dance admission, students also brought food for the Mexican school children.

"Mistletoe Magic" netted 53 quarts of powdered milk, 300 servings of soup (dehydrated), two dozen cans of assorted food, and a variety of school supplies and soap.

And it was only the first of many projects planned by the steering committee composed of student body president Rick Sater, Bev Bordi, Sigrid Moeller, John Mugford and Hedy Hurt.

ALSO IN THE works are a master program for each of Drake's four classes to spearhead a collection drive to build up points for a trophy; a faculty-lettermen basketball game, with a special half-time attraction of coeds against women faculty members; a clothing drive; and gathering and packing unclaimed articles from lost and found.

These projects, and others yet in the thinking stage, have one aim: Money, food, clothing and supplies for school children in Chapultepec, Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Moeller of Ross were traveling in Mexico last summer. At a small hotel in Patzcuaro they met a country school teacher. She told them she had 52 pupils who had never gone to school before. And how she wanted to teach them hygiene and sanitation as well as the 3-R's.

"The Mexican government," Mrs. Moller relates, "agrees to pay a country teacher's salary in outlying districts only on condition that the people of the community furnish the school. Since these people are virtually without income, they have to construct this building with their own hands out of adobe bricks made from the soil. The teacher, in this case, had to solicit additional materials from whatever source available."

The Chapultepec children had had no available schooling before the arrival of the teacher, Senora Salud Orozco. Mr. and Mrs. Moeller decided to take on the project as a contribution to international good will and understanding.

EVEN BEFORE returning to the United States, the Moellers started. They sent 15 pounds of dried milk from Guadalajara. A return letter from Senora Orozco, translated by Mrs. Moeller, stated: "The children are overjoyed and grateful. This Monday they will get their first breakfast."

Mrs. Moeller suggested by letter that Senora Orozco request aid for her school from UNESCO and UNICEF. Senora Orozco wrote:

"The governor's wife sent me word that they provide breakfasts for city children only. So you see the children of the country are always neglected from all sides.

"The children are happily drinking their milk. Sometimes I make them dessert. They are very grateful to you.

"Your aid and your correspondence opened the door for me to request that a little help be given to the children of the country who, in some cases, have only one teacher for a community of 300 inhabitants and the nearest school is more than four kilometers away."

Senora Orozco wrote: "I am sending you four photos and a letter of greeting from the children. All are in the first grade. I have to teach

THE POVERTY-STRICKEN children of Chapultepec, Mexico, were used to hard field labor. And so they thought nothing of pitching in and working in the building of a school house. These children had never previously attended school.

FIELD WORK isn't the only means to which the Chapultepec children resort in their efforts to help their desperately poor families eke out a precarious existence. Some of them can be seen here weaving baskets to be sold. "Everybody works and studies with eagerness," wrote their teacher. "They have hardly six months study. them everything this year, beginning with how to hold the pencil.

"I will send you an account of what I buy with this money which is a blessing for these children. Also, Mr. Engineer Architect Eduardo Pareyon feels with you and the school and he also is giving aid in materials for the school.

"PLEASE GIVE thanks for me and the children to our friends, your compatriots, who are helping us so kindly.

"My husband is a writer but has become sick. I think they will operate in the next few days. I will send you one of his works."

"With great pleasure I am writing you an account of the expenditures you made for my school.

"Monday I went to the bank with the money order to exchange the $25, receiving a total of 311.25 pesos. Purchases added up to 195.10 pesos: 156 for milk, 2.30 for soap, 9.40 for coffee, 27.40 for crackers. The balance is 116.15 pesos.

"We chose 25 of the most needy children who never get milk at home and whose diet consists of only beans cooked with salt and tortillas. Two mothers were delegated to serve them coffee with powdered milk and crackers. We don't give them bread because there is no bread in Chapultepec and the only transportation is by train and the station is five kilometers away. This community does not have commercial light nor passable roads.

"Your donations have opened the door for me in regard to the construction of the school building. The governor has now given me one lamp, four windows and two doors for the school. The municipal government of Patzcuaro gave 500 pesos ($40) for lumber and Mr. Eduardo Pareyon gave 1,000 tiles, a table and chair for the teacher, which we never had before.

"I WANT TO keep some money for the expenses of the fiesta of closing day and will give the children a lunch that day. How does that seem to you?"

A few weeks after, students at Drake thought that taking some of the balance of 116.15 pesos (less than $10) for fiesta purposes for the children, including lunches, was not an extravagance.

In fact, Drake students, hearing of Chapultepec and its children, put their boundless spirit and yankee ingenuity to work. In a few short weeks they had devised "Mistletoe Magic," faculty-student games, class drives and other projects.

Objective: Food, funds, clothing and supplies for children in a poverty-stricken village who could hardly comprehend the bounty with which American students are blessed.

Convinced!

THERE WAS A DAY when railroading was a major factor in Marin County life. And here's a veteran of those colorful days. This Shay type locomotive used to climb the hills between Mill Valley and Mt. Tamalpais. The picture, taken about 1915, is from the collection of Lorin Silleman of San Francisco. He's a collector of old-time Northern California railroading photos. Some of his pictures of early-day Marin railroad equipment are currently being displayed at the Marin Furniture Exchange, 807 D street, San Rafael.

There's Something About A Train

By DON KEOWN

It may seem strange that in Marin County, where railroading has fallen off to something like a bare minimum, there still remains a hard core of loyal, enthusiastic, extremely active, dyed-in-the-wool rail fans.

But such is the case.

And these rail-struck Marinites are so committed to their hobby that they are more than willing to travel out of their county, if they must, to watch with fascination the operations of huge or ancient locomotives, to participate in special rail excursions, and to attend meetings of fan clubs.

But, on second thought, perhaps, the fact that Marin, with very little railroading as its own anymore, remains a hotbed of train fans is understandable.

AND, TOO, Marin does have a colorful and rich railroading history. Regular passenger trains may run no more and even freight service may be reduced (with still more abandonment threatened), but such was not always the case. There was a time when engines and cars were tied closely to Marin's economy and development. And many of today's rail fans harken back to that era in their interests, doing research into that period and collecting photos and relics of those days.

There is no strictly-Marin organization for the rail enthusiasts. But many Marinites maintain membership in and participate actively in Northern California clubs.

Marin has representation in such groups as the Bay Area Electric Railroaders Assn., the Pacific Coast chapter of the Railroad Locomotive Historical Society (probably the oldest and largest such group in the country), San Jose's Central Coast Railway Club, Northern California Railroad Club, and the California-Nevada Railroad Historical Society.

Some Marinites belong to two or more of those groups.

A highlight of the club programs for most of the members are the fan trips such organizations sponsor. Perhaps the run is from San Francisco to Monterey, or into Northern California's logging country. And this fall Marin, itself, was the scene of such an excursion (See photos on facing page).

1. Real railroad enthusiasts, mostly the club members themselves, who are genuinely in love with rail equipment and rail lore.

2. "Poppy pickers," with only a casual interest in railroading, who make the trip more for the scenery, etc. But if the club members are inclined to look down their noses a bit at these "poppy pickers," they also recognize them as an important source of funds for their club treasuries through purchase of tickets for these excursions.

Then there is the railroad historian, often closely allied with the collector of railroading photos and other relics. Roy Graves, curator of the Marin County Historical Museum, is one of the experts who can reel off the history of railroading in this area. He can tell you the chronology of the narrow-gauge from the North Pacifc Coast Railroad in 1875 to the North Shore Railway in 1902 down to the present Northwestern Pacific. Or the story of the wide-gauge Donahue Line of the early 1870's to the San Francisco and Northern Pacific to its leasing by the California Northwestern.

Then there is the rail fan whose chief joy comes from riding trains—the more the better. Donald Howe, a San Rafael postal employee and son of a retired NWP conductor, has ridden the main lines of nearly every major railroad in the country and has crossed the country numerous times. He prefers to ride only in daylight hours, stopping off at trackside hotels to spend the night. Thus he gains maximum sightseeing benefits from his travels.

Distinct from the railroad fans with only a hobby interest, is another group of Marinites whose livelihood and careers are tied to railroading. This includes, of course, those who still make their living from the county's declining train operations. And it also includes a group of executives and retired executives of leading railroad companies who reside in the county. One such, Henry K. Norton of San Rafael, is an internationally recognized authority in the transit field.

And thus you have the paradox of a relatively "trainless" county, from which the passenger train has disappeared remaining a mecca of railroad enthusiasts.

You have the rail fans who travel afar for excursions, club meetings, and just plain rides. And you have the men, women and children who may not be rail "bugs," but who, nevertheless, experience a thrill when they see a powerful locomotive surging along the tracks.

While the trains have become fewer in Marin in recent years, and there is at least one current threat to still further reduce rail activity, there still remains one hope for something of a move in the opposite direction. That lies in the proposal for a Bay Area rapid transit network that would include Marin. Therein could lie a comeback for rail travel in Marin. True, it's unlikely to have the color of the powerful diesels, to say nothing of the older steam engines. But to most fans anything that travels on rails is a step in the right direction and a cause for excitement.

COVER PHOTO

THIS NIGHT flash shot, for which six flash bulbs were used, was taken by Independent - Journal photographer Dick Steinheimer near Tuolumne where a Shay locomotive of the West Side Lumber Co. was pulling empty cars into the Sierras for loading. Marin railroading enthusiasts enjoy overnight jaunts into the areas where these historic old steam-operated engines, among the few of their type now running in the West, still operate. The old engines normally operate from about May 1 to Nov. 1. Marin rail fans appearing in this picture are, left to right, Jack Lucey, Warren Marcus and Robert Hale, latter a nationally-known rail photographer.

2. "Poppy pickers," with only a casual interest in railroading, who make the trip more for the scenery, etc. But if the club members are inclined to look down their noses a bit at these "poppy pickers," they also recognize them as an important source of funds for their club treasuries through purchase of tickets for these excursions.

Then there is the railroad historian, often closely allied with the collector of railroading photos and other relics. Roy Graves, curator of the Marin County Historical Museum, is one of the experts who can reel off the history of railroading in this area. He can tell you the chronology of the narrow-gauge from the North Pacifc Coast Railroad in 1875 to the North Shore Railway in 1902 down to the present Northwestern Pacific. Or the story of the wide-gauge Donahue Line of the early 1870's to the San Francisco and Northern Pacific to its leasing by the California Northwestern.

Marshall Silverthorne of Mill Valley is another who has delved deeply into Marin railroading history.

Then there is the rail fan whose chief joy comes from riding trains—the more the better. Donald Howe, a San Rafael postal employee and son of a retired NWP conductor, has ridden the main lines of nearly every major railroad in the country and has crossed the country numerous times. He prefers to ride only in daylight hours, stopping off at trackside hotels to spend the night. Thus he gains maximum sightseeing benefits from his travels.

Distinct from the railroad fans with only a hobby interest, is another group of Marinites whose livelihood and careers are tied to railroading. This includes, of course, those who still make their living from the county's declining train operations. And it also includes a group of executives and retired executives of leading railroad companies who reside in the county. One such, Henry K. Norton of San Rafael, is an internationally recognized authority in the transit field.

And thus you have the paradox of a relatively "trainless" county, from which the passenger train has disappeared remaining a mecca of railroad enthusiasts.

You have the rail fans who travel afar for excursions, club meetings, and just plain rides. And you have the men, women and children who may not be rail "bugs," but who, nevertheless, experience a thrill when they see a powerful locomotive surging along the tracks.

While the trains have become fewer in Marin in recent years, and there is at least one current threat to still further reduce rail activity, there still remains one hope for something of a move in the opposite direction. That lies in the proposal for a Bay Area rapid transit network that would include Marin. Therein could lie a comeback for rail travel in Marin. True, it's unlikely to have the color of the powerful diesels, to say nothing of the older steam engines. But to most fans anything that travels on rails is a step in the right direction and a cause for excitement.

THIS NIGHT flash shot, for which six flash bulbs were used, was taken by Independent - Journal photographer Dick Steinheimer near Tuolumne where a Shay locomotive of the West Side Lumber Co. was pulling empty cars into the Sierras for loading. Marin railroading enthusiasts enjoy overnight jaunts into the areas where these historic old steam-operated engines, among the few of their type now running in the West, still operate. The old engines normally operate from about May 1 to Nov. 1. Marin rail fans appearing in this picture are, left to right, Jack Lucey, Warren Marcus and Robert Hale, latter a nationally-known rail photographer.

When The Passenger Train Rolled Again In Marin

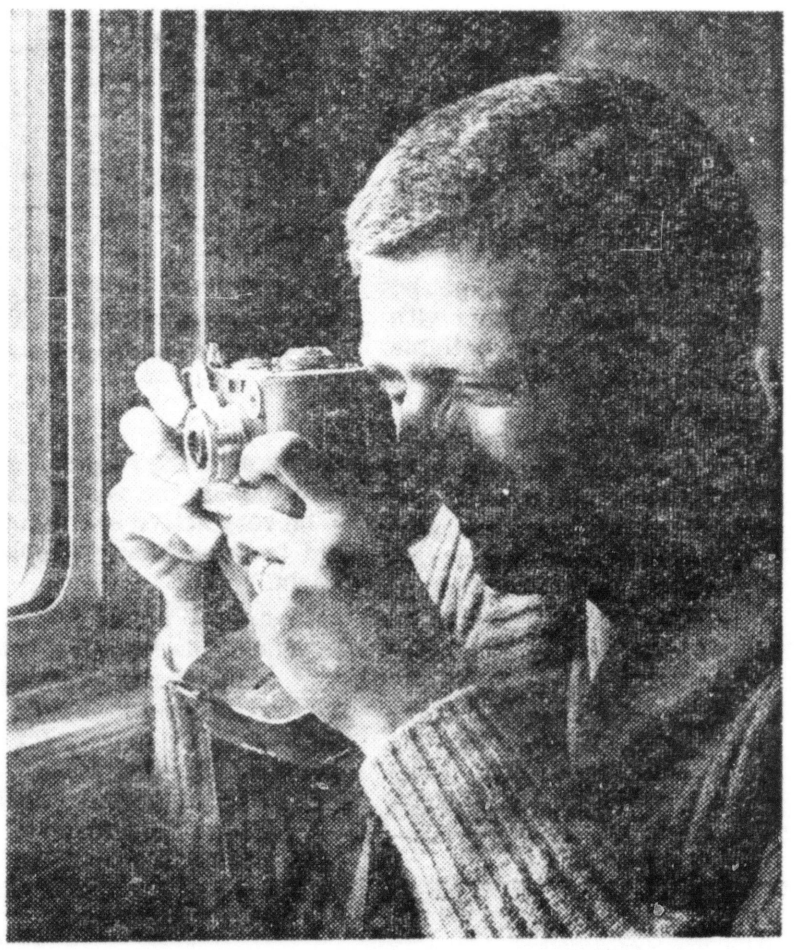

PRESIDENT Victor Du Brutz of Layfayette plays conductor and takes up the tickets of two Marin women, Ruth Strain of Sausalito, left, and Corene Chapman of Tiburon, during this fall's excursion sponsored by the Bay Area Electric Railroaders Assn. The ride was from Tiburon to Schellville and Santa Rosa. And it marked a one-day revival of rail passenger traffic in Marin, now without such regular service.

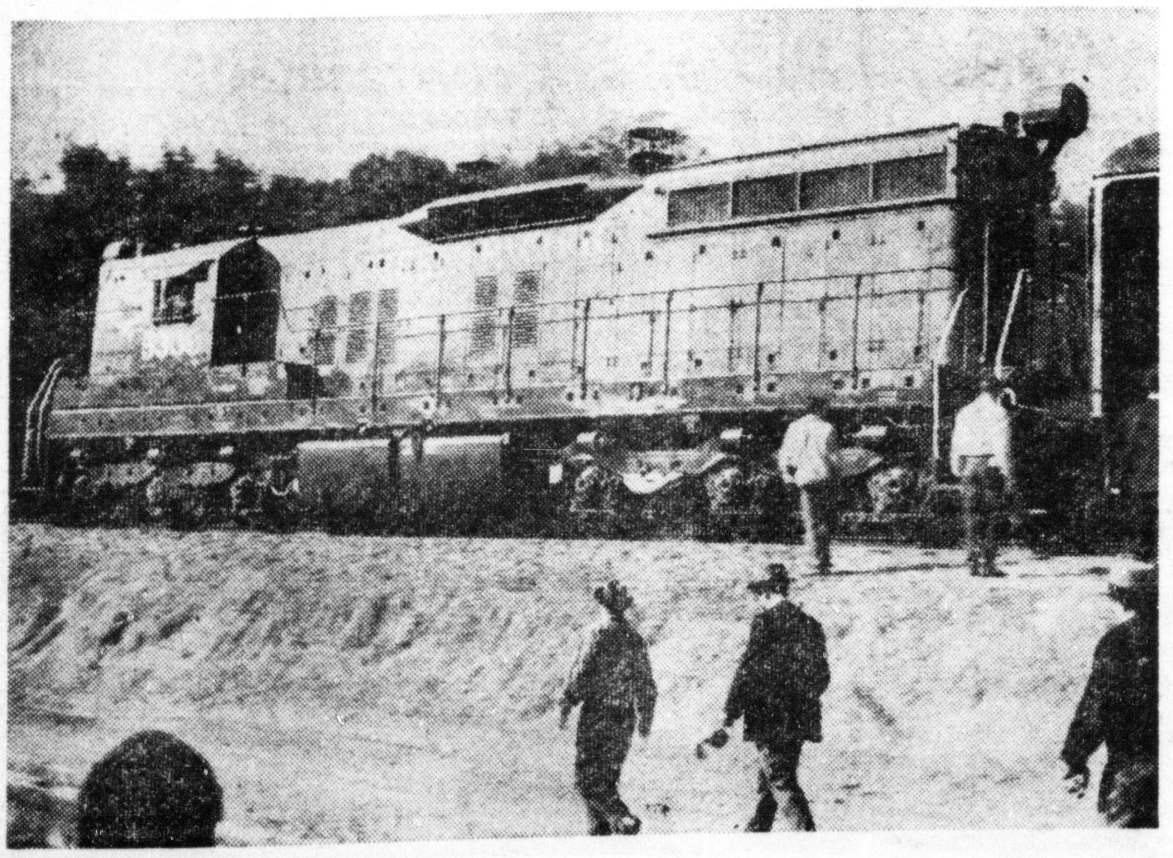

WAITING FOR THE departure of a special Bay Area Electric Railroaders Assn. sponsored excursion train out of Tiburon this fall were train enthusiasts John Thompson of Berkeley and Jim Wright of San Francisco. It was one day when out-of-county rail enthusiasts came to Marin, instead of Marin railroading fans having to go out of the county to experience their thrills.

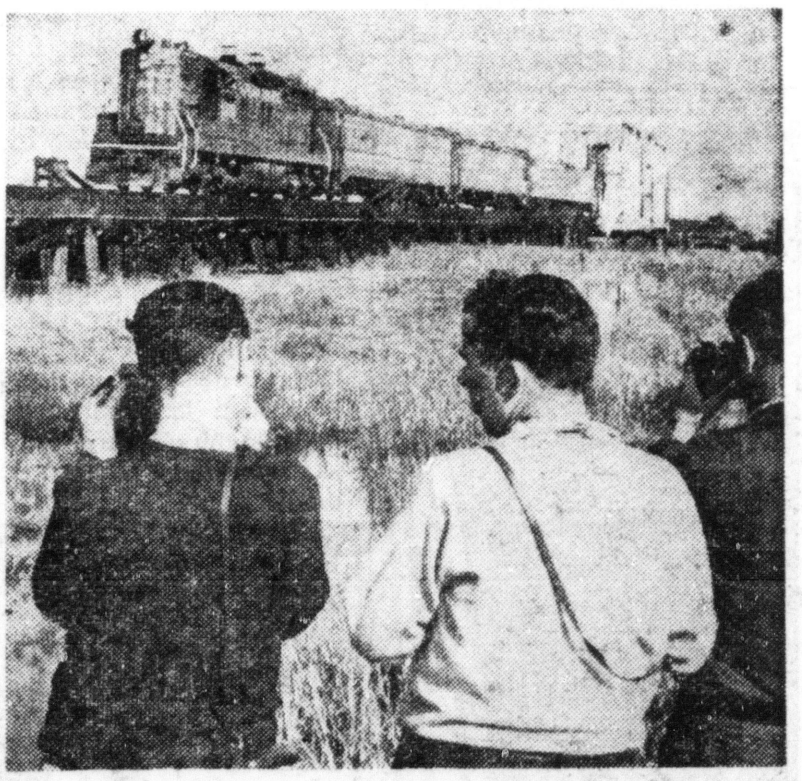

WITH THE WIND in their faces, some of the railroading fans peer from the vestibule of the train at the passing landscape. They are, left to right ,the late Peter Strittmatter, who was killed in an automobile accident shortly after the railroading trip; Bruce Ketron of San Anselmo, and Drake High and Doug Ketron, his brother and a College of Marin student. Young Strittmatter, a Redlands University student, had driven 450 miles to take part in the trip.

CAMERAS WERE very much in evidence during the railroaders' excursion. Here Warren Marcus, San Rafael clothier, gets a shot through the window of the coach in which he was riding.

HERE THE TRAIN pulls through the Black Point run. Passenger trains on Marin tracks are a sight no longer seen except in rare instances such as this special excursion arranged by the railroading enthusiasts.

New Weapon In Marin's Health Arsenal

It's Called The Respirometer, And It's Available To All Those Who Need It

It's the respirometer recently presented by the Marin County Tuberculosis Assn. to Marin General Hospital. And it's now in use and available to all Marin physicians and hospitals.

The patient being tested breathes into a mouthpiece. And the intake and outtake is registered on a graph. This permits his doctor to determine if all the air taken into the lungs is being expelled back out.

For instance, it is one of the first tests given a patient suspected of having emphysema, by far the most chronic disease of the lungs. Emphysema, not among the more publicized ailments, is nevertheless more frequent than lung cancer or tuberculosis. It is the major single cause of disability with a pulmonary origin, and more than a million Americans are living restricted lives, because of it.

PLAYING THE ROLE of patient in a trial test of the respirometer presented to Marin General Hospital by the Marin County Tuberculosis Assn. is Mrs. Allen Young, a director of the association. Dr. Robert W. Clarke, Marin County chest clinic physician, watches as she breathes into the instrument and a graph records the intake and outtake. (Independent-Journal Photos)

IT IS THE basic therapeutic problem of most patients with asthma, and of most patients past the age of 40 who have acute bronchitis.

Its onset is insidious, and its course relentlessly progressive, particularly in the absence of adequate therapy.

The new addition to Marin's health arsenal also has another important use which benefits tuberculosis, cancer, tumor and heart patients facing possible surgery.

Through its use the doctors can determine to a large degree the condition of their patients' lungs — whether or not they are strong enough to stand up under the surgery.

Mrs. Paul Bamberg, executive secretary of the tuberculosis association which purchased the respirometer with funds left that organization by an anonymous donor, says: "We expect the respirometer to be very active in the future and to serve many people of Marin."

John B. Willcutt is the tuberculosis association president. And the organization's medical advisers include Dr. Richard S. Hahn, Dr. John C. Siemens, Dr. George W. Magladry, Dr. J. Lyman Hurlbut, Dr. Charles L. Hoffman, Dr. J. J. Alderson and Dr. Mary Jo Tonelli of the Marin County Health Department.

MRS. BAMBERG and Willcutt join in reminding the public that the respirometer is just one example of the health-protecting, life-saving wonders which can be provided for the public — if the funds are available.

So, they urge, if you still haven't, due to the pre-Christmas rush, sent in your money to the association for your 1959 seals, it is still not too late to do so. Your dollars may well help purchase an instrument or a service fully as marvelous as the respirometer.

NOW DR. CLARKE gives the graph to the referral physician, in this case Dr. J. Lyman Hurlbut, who will go over it and interpret what it tells about the patient's pulmonary condition.

Feeding The Animals At Junior Museum Big Treat For Kids

By DON KEOWN

But at the Junior Museum of Marin the thrill is even greater. For there the youngsters actually take over the job of feeding their animal friends under the careful supervision of S. Thompson Walker, the director, and Diane Francis, the curator of education.

It's a treat that brings many of the boys and girls to the museum without fail, day after day, on the five days per week that the museum is open (Tuesdays through Saturdays from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.)

Some of them have been participating in the feeding now for years. And, needless to say, strong bonds of affection have grown up between the children and their furry pals.

NOT EVERY child who drops in, however, is allowed to begin feeding the animals immediately. First, he must demonstrate a serious interest in the animals and in their proper care. This means he goes through something of an apprenticeship. But if after a reasonable period of "learning" he continues to indicate this serious interest, then he is promoted to the ranks of the feeders. And it's a thrilling day for him when he first gives acorns to the gray squirrel or tosses meat to the big golden eagle.

Included are a deer, grey fox, skunks, raccoons, hawks and owls, possums, snakes, porcupine, turtles, fish, rats, guinea pigs and a ferret who likes to clown as much as he likes to eat.

It may not be a big zoo. But director Walker feels it is large enough to accomplish its purpose of bringing children into contact with and teaching them respect for animals.

The collection represents an accumulation since the museum was started four and a half years ago by a group of public-spirited citizens. The animals are by no means the museum's only attraction. There are mineral and plant displays, Indian artifacts, etc. But they are the "main event," so to speak. And there is no denying their popularity with the faithful "small fry." For many tots, the museum's feeding time is the highspot of their day.

WALKER NOTES that the museum has been subjected to some criticism for keeping the animals in captivity. This, he believes, is the result of misunderstanding.

He stresses that in no case does the museum go out and trap or catch the animals. All have been presented to the museum. And they were brought in an injured condition which would have prevented them from caring for themselves in the wild, he says, or had already spent years as pets or under domestic conditions which would have made them helpless had they been turned loose to fend for themselves.

And at the museum they receive the best care that somewhat limited facilities but a lot of loving care will permit. They are fed a balanced ration. And they are not overfed, always a danger with zoo-kept animals.

The junior museum is governed by a board of trustees which includes representation from throughout Marin, and which meets the first Tuesday of each month at 8 p. m. at the museum. All interested persons are invited to attend those meetings and participate in the planning of the museum program. The wider the representation, the better, board members say.

Right now some plans are being drawn for a new wing which would house some classroom space and a mineral hall. More storage room is another pressing need.

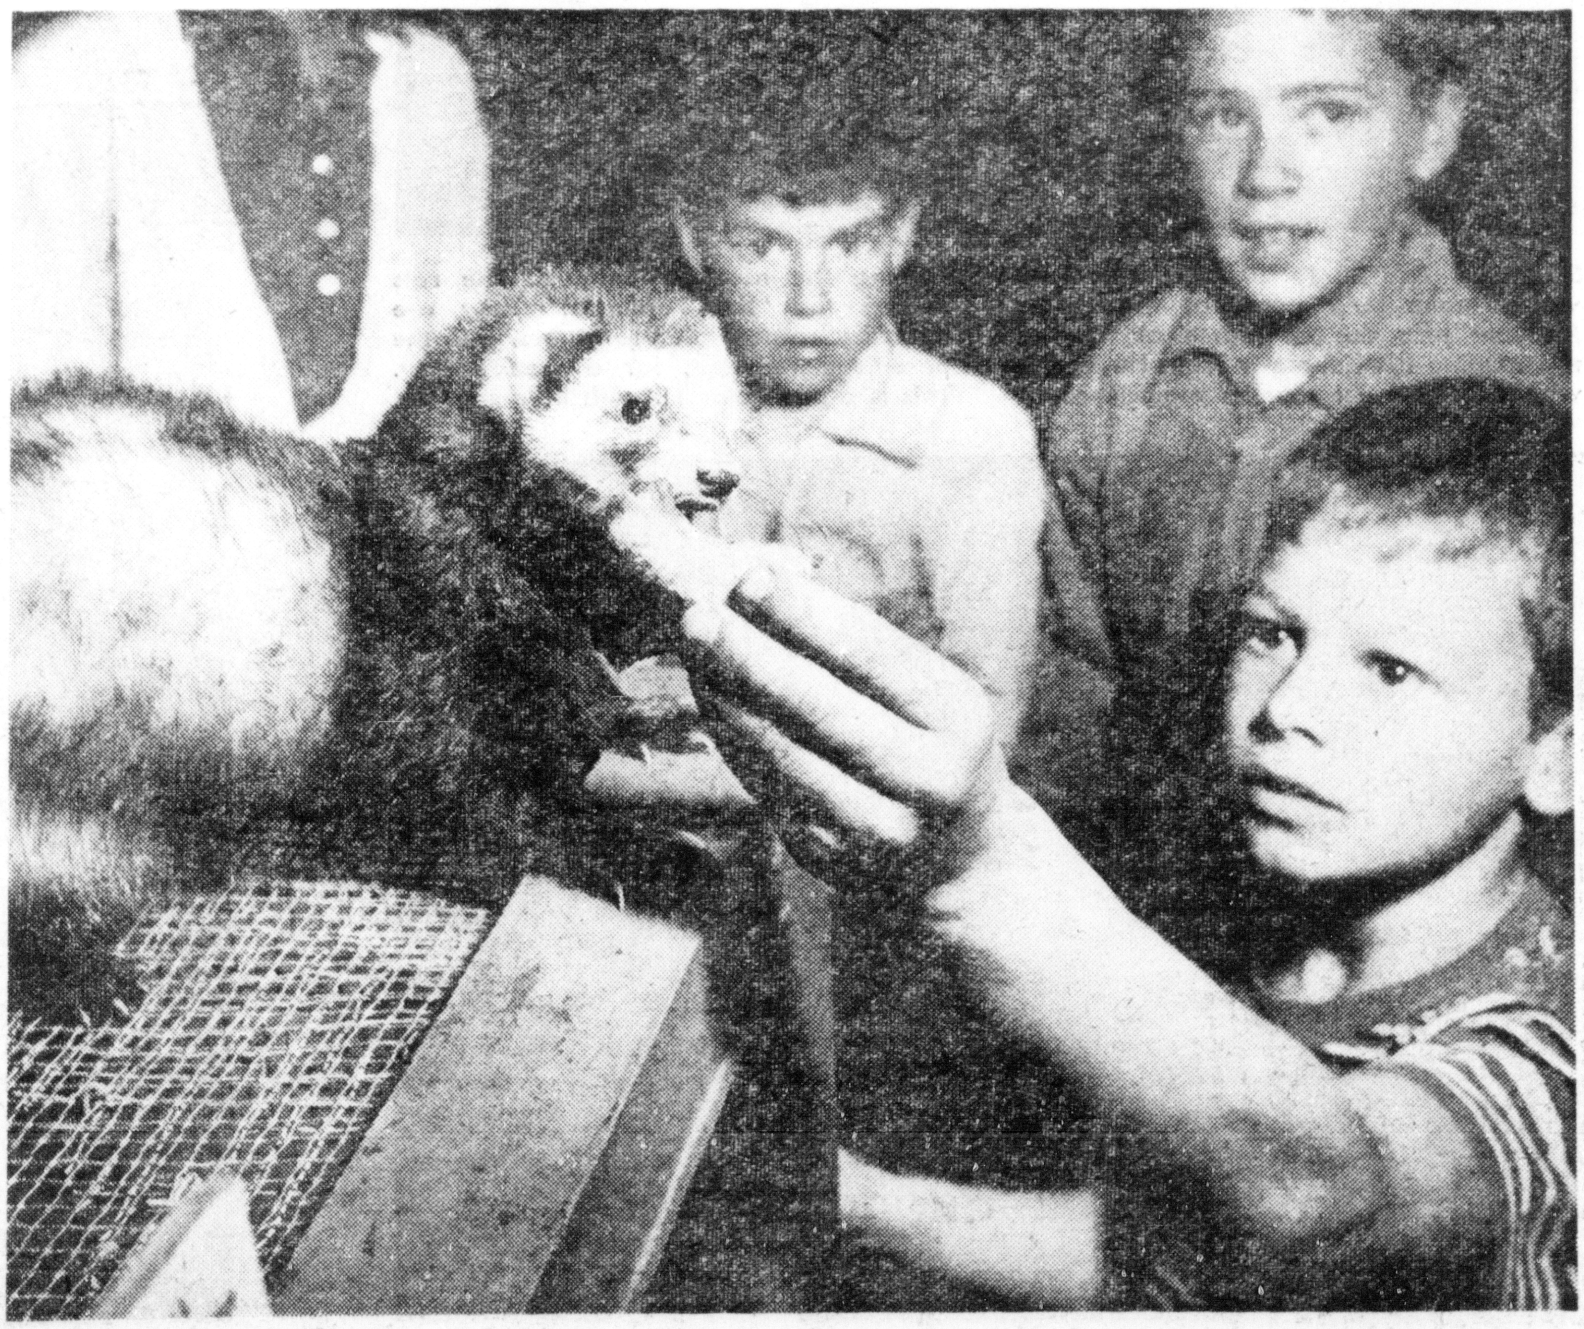

Walker hopes to see an expansion of the museum programs other than the animals.

And he hopes to see services increased to the teenage group of young Marinites. And to interest more adults in participation.

But it is a safe bet that no matter what attractions are added by the museum in the future, Oscar the ferret, Sweetie the doe, and their animal pals will remain the top favorites of the younger museum visitors.

LITTLE TRINA HUDSON, 9, shows she's as brave as she is cute as she feeds one of the snakes from the Junior Museum of Marin menagerie. Her handling of the reptiles has made Trina one of the "star" feeders among the youngsters who regularly visit the museum to help care for the animals. She's been a feeder for about six months.

OSCAR THE FERRET is being fed a chicken neck by young Johnny Cardoza here. But Oscar is something of a cut-up. And he oftens turns his feedings into a frolic, as you can see by turning to Pages M-10 and M-11 of this issue of your Marin Magazine. There you will find not only Oscar, but also some of his animal chums from the Junior Museum of Marin plus the youngsters who care for them so faithfully.

Feeding Time At The Junior Museum

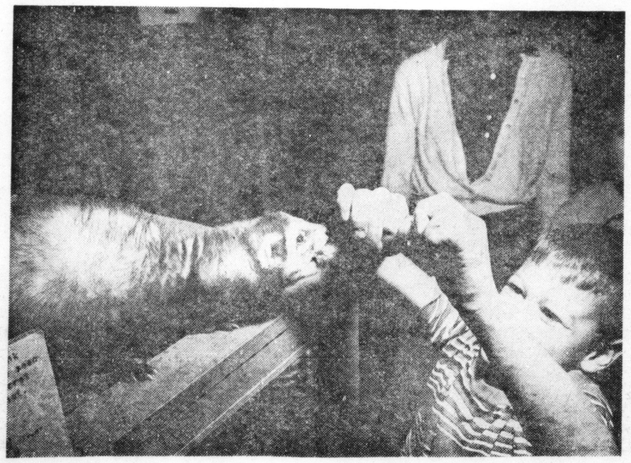

Marin Boys And Girls See That Their Animal Friends Get Plenty To Eat

SWEETIE THE DEER gets a handout of acorns from Chuck Kozacek, 8, with the assistance of Diane Francis, the curator of education for the Junior Museum of Marin. It was a particular treat for Chuck in that it was with his first visit to the museum and its animals. Sweetie is a black-tail doe less than a year old. Quite tame, she is a special favorite of the very young children because of her gentleness and willingness to eat from their hands.

SOME OF THE 20 to 30 laboratory rats which make their home at the Junior Museum turn out en masse at feeding time. Doing the honors is Trina Hudon, 9, who has had six months experience in feeding the museum animals. The rats among the "loan animals." They are loaned to responsible youngsters, with the parents permission, for a week's stay. This is a particular hit with little shut-ins.

WHAT STARTED OUT as a routine feeding has developed into something of a tug-of-war. Playful Oscar, the ferret, and young Johnny Cardoza, 8, tug at the chicken neck. Oscar is a European ferret not found wild in this country. He's a member of the weasel family. But while most weasels are on the vicious side, the ferret is gentle and something of a show-off and clown.

THE GREY SQUIRREL with the beautifully bushy tail enjoys some acorns while Jim Swanson, 11, looks on. The squirrel was found about a year ago, a tiny and helpless infant, in the middle of a Sleepy Hollow road. His finder, a boy, raised him to adulthood, then, when he became too big for home care, turned him over to the museum.

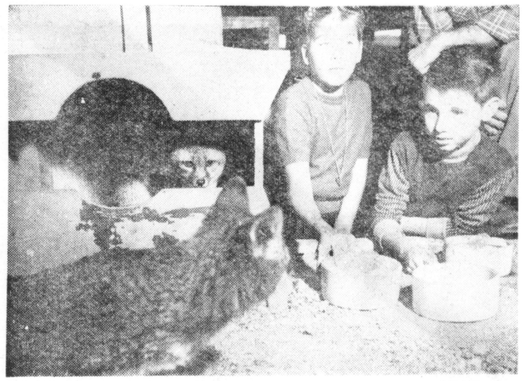

CRAIG SMAZELLE tosses some feed, meat, to one of the museum's birds, a golden eagle. Supervising him are S. Thompson Walker, the museum director, and Diane Francis, his curator of education. They compose the museum's adult staff. (All photos on this page are by Independent-Journal staff photographer Dick Steinheimer)

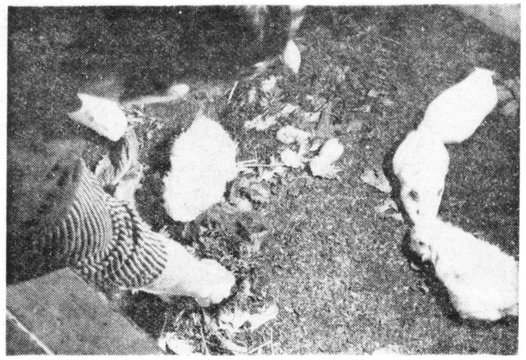

PORKY THE PORCUPINE, being fed here by Jim Swanson, is not native to California's coast. But many a Marinite who has gone camping in the High Sierra has come upon the porcupine. He's another clown who provides a lot of entertainment. And he also serves to disprove for the children that old myth about porcupines throwing quills.

TWO OF THE MORE experienced young feeders, Linda McNerney and Barry Taylor, try to coax the grey foxes into eating. The male fox is the more adventurous, but the shy female remains securely in her "den." She was brought to the museum after being trapped in the forest while in an extremely sick condition. The museum staff and their young helpers have been nursing and feeding her back to health. And while she is now much better, she still isn't accustomed to human beings.

HERE'S ANOTHER bunch of "loan" animals who can be taken home for a week at a time by trustworthy youngsters. They are the gentle and slow moving furry guinea pigs. The museum keeps about 10 or 12 of them. And they make extremely good pets. Here Barry Taylor is doing the feeding.

AMONG THE SENIOR residents of the Junior Museum are the turtles, some of which have been there since the place opened four and a half years ago. Donna Pettey, 8, and Julie McNerney, 9, are feeding them. The turtle nearest them is a box turtle, an exotic. But the others are Pacific pond turtles, Marin's only native turtle. Director Walker says the museum has been unusually successful in its raising of turtles.

THE SPARKLING BURGUNDY, a newly-developed plant variety for American gardens, has been dubbed the camellia of the year for 1960 after winning the All-American Camellia Selections Award for 1960. This camellia sasanqua is a ruby-rose camellia with an unusually large flower, and has demonstrated a liking for California's coastal climate and soil. And when you're considering a hedge (see article on this page), don't overlook the camellia including the Sparkling Burgundy.

Pick A Hedge That Will Flower

If they do, you may be missing a clue to beauty in your garden—a clue to the beauty of informal flowering hedges.

A note from the California Assn. of Nurserymen reminds us that any number of favorite flowering shrubs can be put to use in a Marin hedge. They come tall or short, for sun or shade, so take your pick.

Of first importance for this use are a trio of flowering-fruiting shrubs whose ornamental merit is well established. We speak of the gray-green pineapple guava, with its waxy white petals and prominent crimson stamens; of the refreshingly delicate pomegranate and of the near ever-blooming natal plum. Natal plums, however, should be confined pretty much to Southern California; they are definitely happier there. The pomegranate with its striking blooms and shiny fruit is most decorative of the lot; feijoa most likely to provide edible fruit in cool summer areas such as Marin.

The association lists both glossy abelia and escallonia among shrubs which merit attention as hedges. These are every day shrubs in California, to be considered wherever new uses can be made for them. They shrug off drought, wind or poor soil to give us summer long color from pink or white blooms.

Would you have considered the camellia as a hedge plant? No? Then you'd better take another look at it. Association members have tried it with great success where a modest hedge in partial shade is called for. It is slower to fill in, but gives unbounded pleasure when it does.

Oleander we all know as a free-flowering hedge. Floribunda and grandiflora roses are informal and showy. Gardenia and hibiscus are to be tried where climate permits. And so on.

If you want a rundown on every possible flowering shrub to try in a hedge, check in with your nurseryman. If he can't name them all, he'll come pretty close.

Now That The Rains Have Come, Better Spray Your Trees

By JAMES McNALLY
Entomologist

Now that the rains are under way in Marin, shrubbery and trees will need spraying to destroy eggs and young of insects and mites.

This spray treatment (with a light oil) is essential if you want insect-free trees and shrubs next spring. They will then be healthier, much better looking, and will grow more vigorously.

On most ornamentals and trees right now are tiny overwintering forms of aphids (eggs), mites (eggs and adults), and scale insects (adults and immatures.) Most of them are so tiny, in fact, that you need a good hand lens even to see them. But they are there now, often in large numbers. You can find them on leaves, twigs and stems.

As long as people don't actually see any insects or damage right now, though, they figure everything is fine and no treatment is needed. Then, next spring, when pests appear magically on tender unfolding leaves, home-owners will wonder where they came from. Well, they were there all winter, just waiting.

A WINTER spray would have controlled them.

We cannot emphasize strongly enough the advisability of a preventive treatment now. No commercial grower would dream of omitting it, and the private gardener shouldn't either.

You can spray smaller trees yourself, with hand equipment. And you can treat light shrubbery yourself, too. But power spraying by a professional pest control firm will be necessary for more dense foliage and larger trees. You will also need a power application if you have very much to spray.

Spray to use now:

A light "summer" oil. This can be purchased under various brand names wherever you get your garden supplies. It's very inexpensive and a pint wlil make up about six gallons of spray when mixed as directed with water.

Cautions:

Winter spraying cannot be done until the rains have begun, or foliage may be badly damaged through over-absorption of the spray. Over-spraying should be avoided. Spraying must not be done when temperature is below 45 degrees or there will be danger of freezing injury. If spraying is done on a hot day (90 degress or over) damage will again result. Be careful about oil-sensitive plants listed on the product label. Read the label carefully and observe all of the manufacturer's cautions.

With care and patience and a minimum of equipment you can do smaller jobs yourself. Just be willing to put in some time on it and proceed carefully and thoroughly. Your agricultural extension service people are always ready to help with advice.

PROFESSIONAL pest control firms use power sprayers. Their spray tanks have a capacity of perhaps 200 gallons, a pressure of 400 pounds per square inch or more, and put out up to 15 gallons per minute.

The power spray is blasted into foliage with enough force and quantity to get thorough coverage of all parts of trees and shrubs. This complete coverage is very important. It is essential to get the spray on both sides of all leaves and into the interior as well as the top of the tree or ornamental.

Most professionals prefer to treat trees and shrubs three or four times yearly, as the seasons progress. This provides a "minimum-program" framework which can be supplemented by the home gardener as necessary for special problems and particularly susceptible plants.

At Matzen Pest Control our minimum spray program is:

1. Winter, after rains — light summer oil to destroy overwhelming forms of insects and mites;

2. Early Spring — repeat same, with a chemical insecticide added. This will additionally control leaf-eating caterpillars and many other pests;

3. Summer—a straight insecticide application (two if necessary) with a combination of appropriate chemicals, for necessary general control.

It is not enough to spray ambitiously only during the summer. Pest control is a year 'round job, and the correct treatment in the winter and early spring can considerably reduce later problems.

The tremendous number of of oaks in the area allows buildup and over-wintering of a very large pest population every year—this provides a constant source of insects; oaks around homes are large enough and prominent enough so that any damage is strikingly apparent and causes concern, attention and treatment; and the value of a preventive spray program for oaks is much better known than that for shrubbery.

Attractive trees and shrubs deserve to be kept healthy and vigorous. Beautiful landscaping is wonderfully rewarding and well worth the trouble involved in getting it and keeping it that way.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

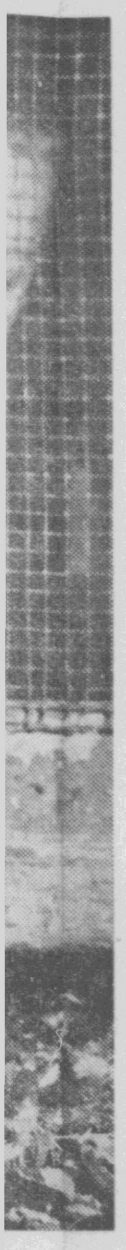

This week Marin gardeners should be thinking about:

1. Roses are the big thing at nurseries this week. New varieties, old varieties — they're all available in bare root now.

2. You can give the first dormant spray to peaches and nectarines now. Ask your nurseryman about the mixture to use.

3. Secure new long canes on climbing roses against the possibility of storm damage.

4. All evergreen trees and shrubs are on the planting list this month, as are a good many deciduous ones.

PORKY THE PORCUPINE, being fed here by Jim Swanson, is not native to California's coast. But many a Marinite who has gone camping in the High Sierra has come upon the porcupine. He's another clown who provides a lot of entertainment. And he also serves to disprove for the children that old myth about porcupines throwing quills.

TWO OF THE MORE experienced young feeders, Linda McNerney and Barry Taylor, try to coax the grey foxes into eating. The male fox is the more adventurous, but the shy female remains securely in her "den." She was brought to the museum after being trapped in the forest while in an extremely sick condition. The museum staff and their young helpers have been nursing and feeding her back to health. And while she is now much better, she still isn't accustomed to human beings.

ys And Girls See That Their Friends Get Plenty To Eat

HERE'S ANOTHER bunch of "loan" animals who can be taken home for a week at a time by trustworthy youngsters. They are the gentle and slow moving furry guinea pigs. The museum keeps about 10 or 12 of them. And they make extremely good pets. Here Barry Taylor is doing the feeding.

HERE IS AN UNDERWATER picture of some hands at work during fish-feeding time at the museum. The fish are bluegill, a Marin native, and they are kept in a 125-gallon homemade tank at the museum. Making up the remainder of the museum's small "aquarium" is a carp and a gold-fish. Other fish have been kept from time to time.

AMONG THE SENIOR residents of the Junior Museum are the turtles, some of which have been there since the place opened four and a half years ago. Donna Pettey, 8, and Julie McNerney, 9, are feeding them. The turtle nearest them is a box turtle, an exotic. But the others are Pacific pond turtles, Marin's only native turtle. Director Walker says the museum has been unusually successful in its raising of turtles.

This Tool House Real Space Saver

Here's One Designed For Simplicity, Yet It Offers Plenty Of Storage

There is a lot of talk about the space race these days, but the space competition in the family garage was a problem long before the days of sputniks and rockets. The area reserved for the car shrinks like a melting iceberg as more flower pots, buckets, and lawn chairs are crammed into the garage.

If this is a familiar situation at your home, it needn't be. You can add a handsome storage unit in the yard for the patio and garden equipment. It's a logical solution which is relatively inexpensive.

WEST COAST architects Anshen and Allen have designed one with emphasis on simplicity and generous storage space for all kinds of equipment. You can place it in the yard, garden, or next to a patio or walkway. You could build it in sections with one area to start and others added later. In a small yard, the rear overhang could be omitted, allowing construction against a fence or residence. If you have a swimming pool, the shelter could double as a dressing room.

The unit makes sense because it puts all lawn, garden and patio equipment out where it is most often used. The row of glass (plastic is optional) which separates the two roof slopes gives an interesting design effect and lets daylight inside. Although not boxy, the house looks substantial, and adds to the value of your property.

THE SHELTER was designed with do-it-yourself fan in mind. It utilizes 4 x 8 panels of fir plywood, with very little material left over. All construction material, including paint, would cost about $325.00.

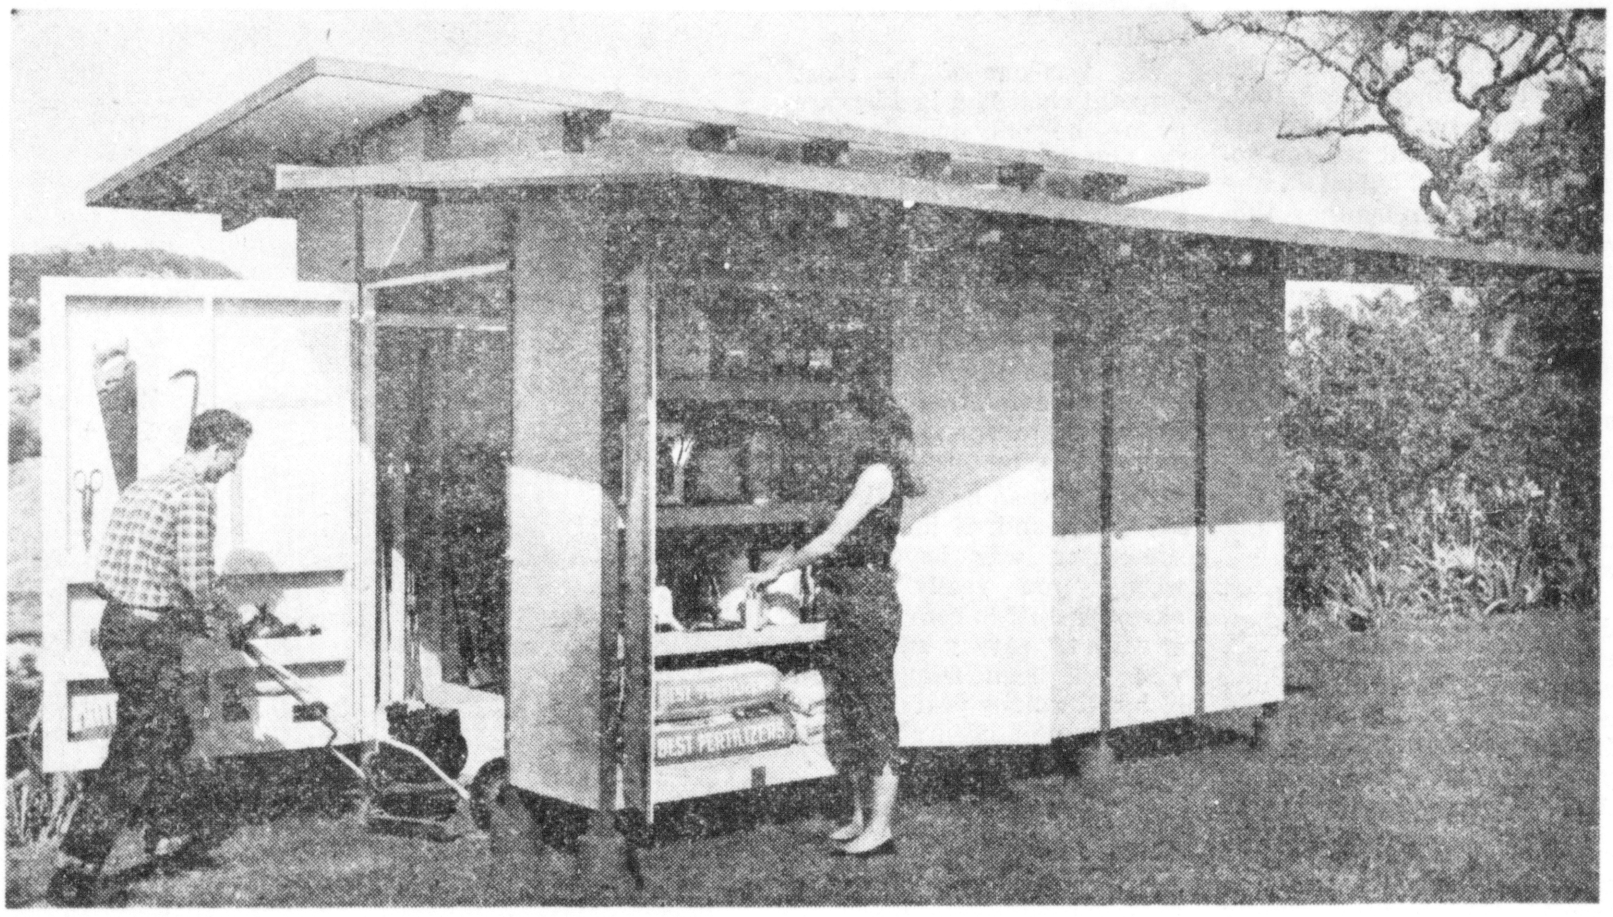

The 2 x 4 framework is erected first, with the posts set into a cement-filled pipe for protection against high winds. After the framework is up and the bottom shelf area is assembled, 2 x 6 roof members are put into place.

Then, the plywood "skin" is nailed to the framework. Half-inch thick panels are used for the roof, and the walls are ¼ inch plywood. Exterior-type fir plywood, with its completely water proof glue, should be used. C-C exterior, an unsanded sheathing grade, could be used for economy.

A free construction plan for the Anshen and Allen garden storage unit may be obtained by writing Douglas Fir Plywood Association in Tacoma 2, Wash. Ask for garden tool storage plan No. 57-260.

Now's the time to begin formulating plans so that you can get this project out of the way as early in 1960 as the weather permits. This will then clear the way for you to tackle other gardening tasks that pile up in the spring — and you will have the aid of the tool shed to help simplify such work.

ARE YOU ONE of those with the old problem of what to do with your gardening and lawn equipment? One answer, and a nifty-looking one, is this garden storage lot which makes a handsome as well as extremely useful addition to any garden or backyard. Doors on front of the shed open to reveal additional storage space for many bulkier items.

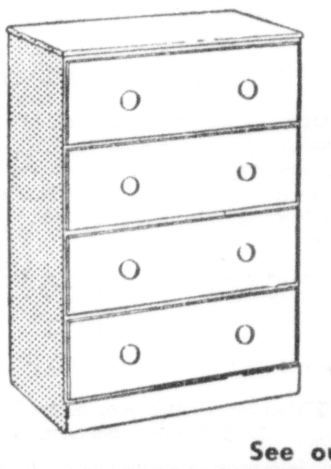

INSIDE THE garden house has a potting bench, to be seen beneath the trowel on the wall, and plenty of those always-handy deep storage shelves.

THE SPARKLING BURGUNDY, a newly-developed plant variety for American gardens, has been dubbed the camellia of the year for 1960 after winning the All-American Camellia Selections Award for 1960. This camellia sasanqua is a ruby-rose camellia with an unusually large flower, and has demonstrated a liking for California's coastal climate and soil. And when you're considering a hedge (see article on this page), don't overlook the camellia including the Sparkling Burgundy.

Now That The Rains Have Come, Better Spray Your Trees

By JAMES McNALLY
Entomologist

Now that the rains are under way in Marin, shrubbery and trees will need spraying to destroy eggs and young of insects and mites.

This spray treatment (with a light oil) is essential if you want insect-free trees and shrubs next spring. They will then be healthier, much better looking, and will grow more vigorously.

On most ornamentals and trees right now are tiny overwintering forms of aphids (eggs), mites (eggs and adults), and scale insects (adults and immatures.) Most of them are so tiny, in fact, that you need a good hand lens even to see them. But they are there now, often in large numbers. You can find them on leaves, twigs and stems.

As long as people don't actually see any insects or damage right now, though, they figure everything is fine and no treatment is needed. Then, next spring, when pests appear magically on tender unfolding leaves, home-owners will wonder where they came from. Well, they were there all winter, just waiting.

A WINTER spray would have controlled them.

We cannot emphasize strongly enough the advisability of a preventive treatment now. No commercial grower would dream of omitting it, and the private gardener shouldn't either.

You can spray smaller trees yourself, with hand equipment. And you can treat light shrubbery yourself, too. But power spraying by a professional pest control firm will be necessary for more dense foliage and larger trees. You will also need a power application if you have very much to spray.

Spray to use now:

A light "summer" oil. This can be purchased under various brand names wherever you get your garden supplies. It's very inexpensive and a pint will make up about six gallons of spray when mixed as directed with water.

Cautions:

Winter spraying cannot be done until the rains have begun, or foliage may be badly damaged through over-absorption of the spray. Over-spraying should be avoided. Spraying must not be done when temperature is below 45 degrees or there will be danger of freezing injury. If spraying is done on a hot day (90 degress or over) damage will again result. Be careful about oil-sensitive plants listed on the product label. Read the label carefully and observe all of the manufacturer's cautions.

Pick A Hedge That Will Flower

When someone mentions a hedge, do your thoughts turn automatically to a clipped row of green? To privet and boxwood, or possibly pittosporum?

If they do, you may be missing a clue to beauty in your garden—a clue to the beauty of informal flowering hedges.

A note from the California Assn. of Nurserymen reminds us that any number of favorite flowering shrubs can be put to use in a Marin hedge. They come tall or short, for sun or shade, so take your pick.

Of first importance for this use are a trio of flowering-fruiting shrubs whose ornamental merit is well established. We speak of the gray-green pineapple guava, with its waxy white petals and prominent crimson stamens; of the refreshingly delicate pomegranate and of the near ever-blooming natal plum. Natal plums, however, should be confined pretty much to Southern California; they are definitely happier there. The pomegranate with its striking blooms and shiny fruit is most decorative of the lot; feijoa most likely to provide edible fruit in cool summer areas such as Marin.

The association lists both glossy abelia and escallonia among shrubs which merit attention as hedges. These are every day shrubs in California, to be considered wherever new uses can be made for them. They shrug off drought, wind or poor soil to give us summer long color from pink or white blooms.

Would you have considered the camellia as a hedge plant? No? Then you'd better take another look at it. Association members have tried it with great success where a modest hedge in partial shade is called for. It is slower to fill in, but gives unbounded pleasure when it does.

We could go on and on.

Oleander we all know as a free-flowering hedge. Floribunda and grandiflora roses are informal and showy. Gardenia and hibiscus are to be tried where climate permits. And so on.

If you want a rundown on every possible flowering shrub to try in a hedge, check in with your nurseryman. If he can't name them all, he'll come pretty close.

Big Jim Looks Back On 'Marvelous Life'

There was no money for the road, the farmers were told.

When Kehoe got home, his wife asked: "What are you going to do now?" And in the direct, decisive manner that was to characterize Kehoe's approach to county business later, he snapped: "Hell, I'm going to run for supervisor myself."

He did just that, in 1940, and won by 64 votes, beating a man who had been in office for 20 years. And in his nearly 15 years in office Jim Kehoe never had anyone run against him.

But once on the board, he didn't press for that county road right away. "I said I was going to be diplomatic. I was a country boy, and shy. . . " He let the matter pass for two years, and then he spoke up. And his district got their road.

IN JANUARY 1955 he was elected chairman of the board. He changed rapidly from a "quiet guy" to an outspoken leader, surprising everyone by getting a firm grip on the controls and running the show, one of his friends recalls.

He was one of the most forceful chairmen in 15 years or so—the "only one who took the bull by the horns and shut people up," says the friend. He had an "incisive way with him," one of his fellow supervisors remembers.

His frequent comment to hurry up proceedings was "let's go on this." He believed in a minimum of unnecessary talk and a maximum of accomplishment.

As chairman he was firm in his ideas, and, if he thought something was haywire or wrong, "you really had to have the stuff to convince him it wasn't," says a supervisor who has been friends with Kehoe for many years. He was jolly, good-natured and frank —an "outspoken Irishman."

He wouldn't hesitate to use an occasional wisecrack, if necessary, to relieve the tension of a board meeting. And he could get angry, too.

The civic center issue brought Kehoe into the public eye more than anything else. Ask him what are the accomplishments he is most proud of during his years on the board and the civic center is high on the list. He was convinced that the county was not doing enough looking ahead to prepare itself to handle the increasingly difficult burdens of an expanding community. "I thought it was a necessity then, and I still do," he says.

He was also active on the county farm committee and the county fire board, and is proud of the growth of the once-tiny county fire department. One of Kehoe's closest friends is Marin County Fire Chief Charles R. Reiley.

WHEN A MAN is in public office, anything he does is bound to hurt or annoy someone in some way.

But for all his years as a supervisor, Jim smiles, "there are only two individuals in the county who don't care enough for Kehoe to speak to him . . . So I guess I haven't done too badly."

On March 8, 1955, Jim Kehoe resigned suddenly from the board of supervisors. The week before he had had a near blackout just before a supervisor's meeting. His doctor advised him to resign, and he took that advice. He says it was "old age . . . and one thing and another . . . I decided I had had enough."

Kehoe has been a Democrat for many years, but not a "dyed-in-the-wool" one. "I do my bit to help anyone if I think he is a good person," he says. When Gov. Earl Warren, a Republican, asked Kehoe to be his county co-chairman, he agreed, "because I didn't like the opposition, James Roosevelt."

Kehoe reportedly is in the background of a move to get Fire Chief Reilley to run for supervisor in the next election. "He's a friend of mine. He can count on me if he runs," says Kehoe.

Direct as always, he doesn't hesitate to speak out on matters that concern the county, his neighbors or himself. He is opposed to the federal government's proposal to take some 35,000 acres in West Marin for a park. He thinks parks and beaches are a necessity, but "you can't take all the land off the tax rolls for recreation." He believes the government is "too ambitious and should be satisfied with 10,000 acres. "That will last a great number of years." The proposal would affect some 17 different ranches, he says, including 400 to 500 acres of his own ranch.

KEHOE'S LIFE has not been without sadness. He and his wife had three sons. Their oldest, Robert James, a pilot in World War II, was killed over Germany on his 18th mission with the 8th Air Force. Charles Leroy was in a motorcycle accident 10 years ago and is still hospitalized as a result. Kenneth manages their dairy ranch and "does a better job than his father," his parents say. The herds on the Kehoe ranch have been in the top 10 in the county for production.

The Kehoes also have four grandsons and a granddaughter.

Jim goes to the ranch every day "to puddle around . . . fix a gate or water trough." There were once 20 horses on the ranch, but now that everything is mechanized, there is none.

Kehoe keeps a fine mare and her colt at his Inverness home, however. He likes to ride her on the beach (his ranch fronts on both ocean and bay) and sometimes uses her on the ranch.

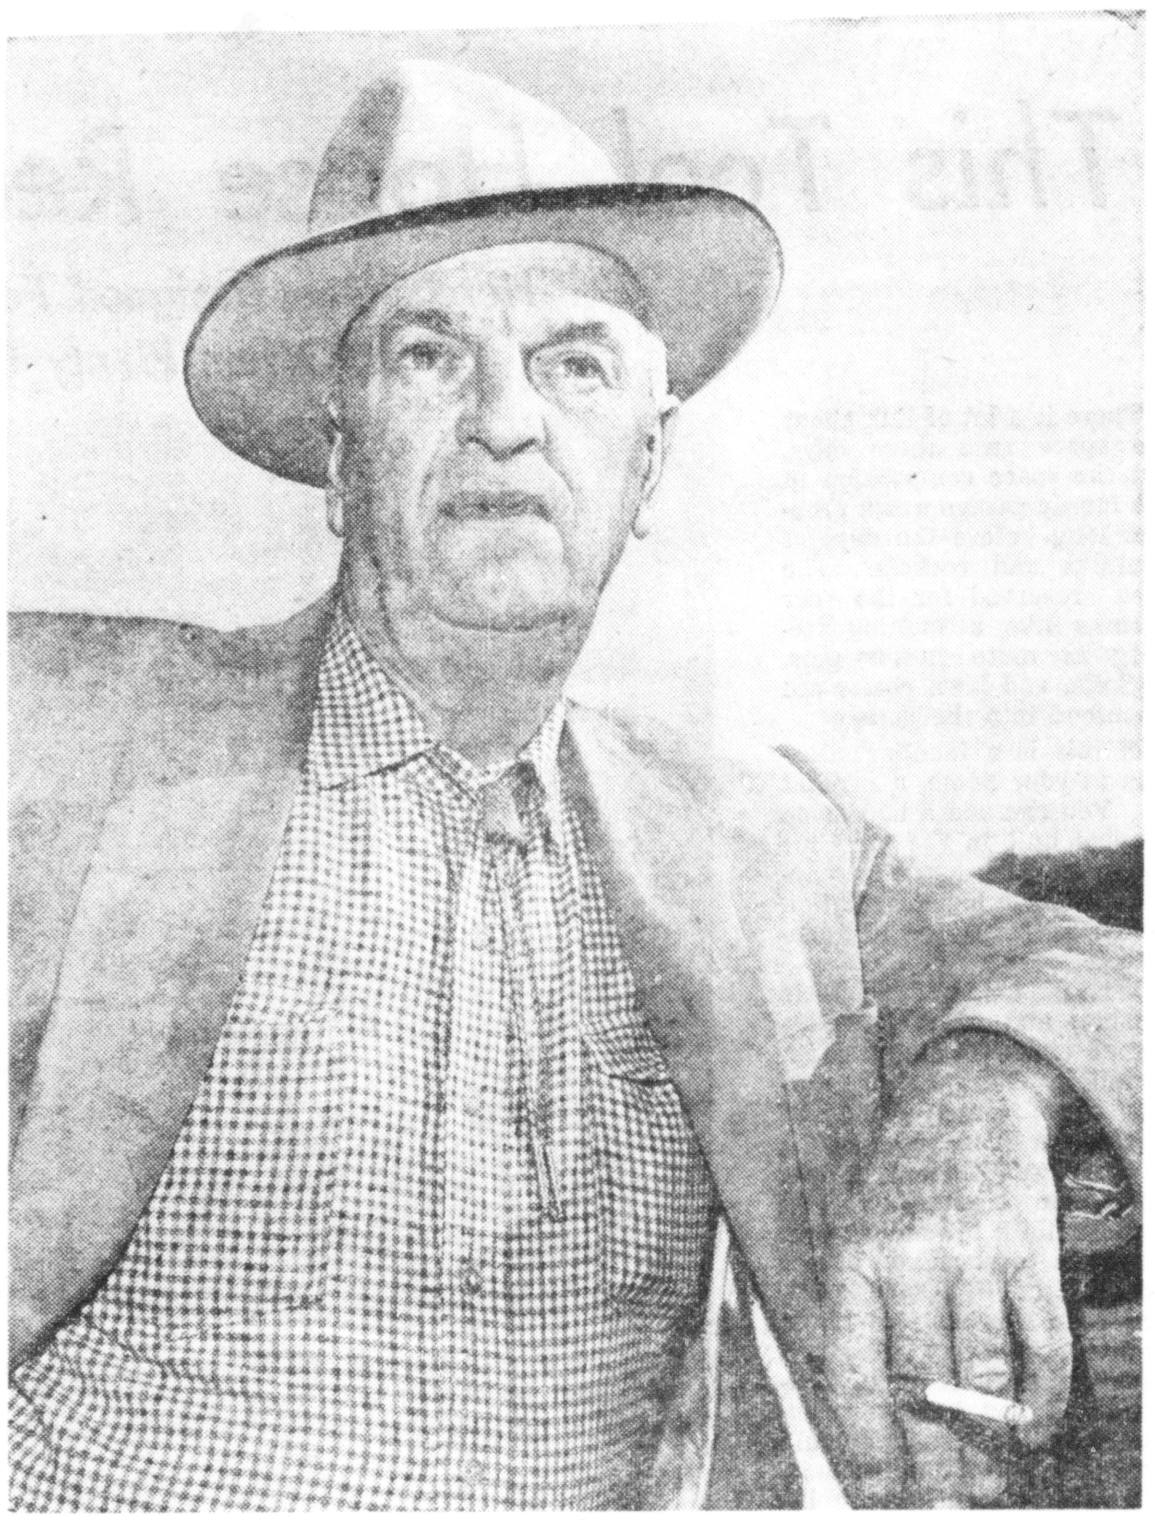

Beachcombing is one of his favorite pastimes and he brings back many an object to adorn his yard: glass globes and floats from Japan, driftwood washed up on the beach. The "adornments" also include a couple of cattle skulls from the ranch. Mrs. Kehoe hasn't much patience with this hobby, she says, but with a smile.

JIM ALSO enjoys hunting. There are deer, quail and ducks on the ranch, and he likes to hunt in Wyoming and Colorado, too. He hopes to make a trip to South Dakota to hunt pheasants.

Kehoe is very much the fight fan, too, especially of the Golden Gloves, and won $165 on the last heavyweight fight when he bet on Ingemar Johannson, but "I'm not always that lucky."

"I do what I want to do," he says contentedly. But the many people he has helped and those who speak of him affectionately as "my old friend Jim" haven't forgotten the big man from West Marin whose philosophy of life is a very simple one: "live and let the other guy live."

AT AGE 61 Jim Kehoe remains a commanding and handsome figure, much respected by his West Marin friends and neighbors. He's retired from public life, after 15 years service as a county supervisor, and from the active operatoin of his ranch. But though his busiest years now lie behind him, he is far from inactive.

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By BERT BROWN, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael and Bel Air

"What About Egg Nog Spilled On A Party Dress"

Holidays bring many beverage stains, not only egg nog. The family gathers around the punch bowl or, at one place or another, someone joggles an arm and the party dress is stained by egg nog, alcoholic beverages, cola drinks or even coffee. These are "luxury stains," from expensive drinks and foods. We must understand them to remove them.

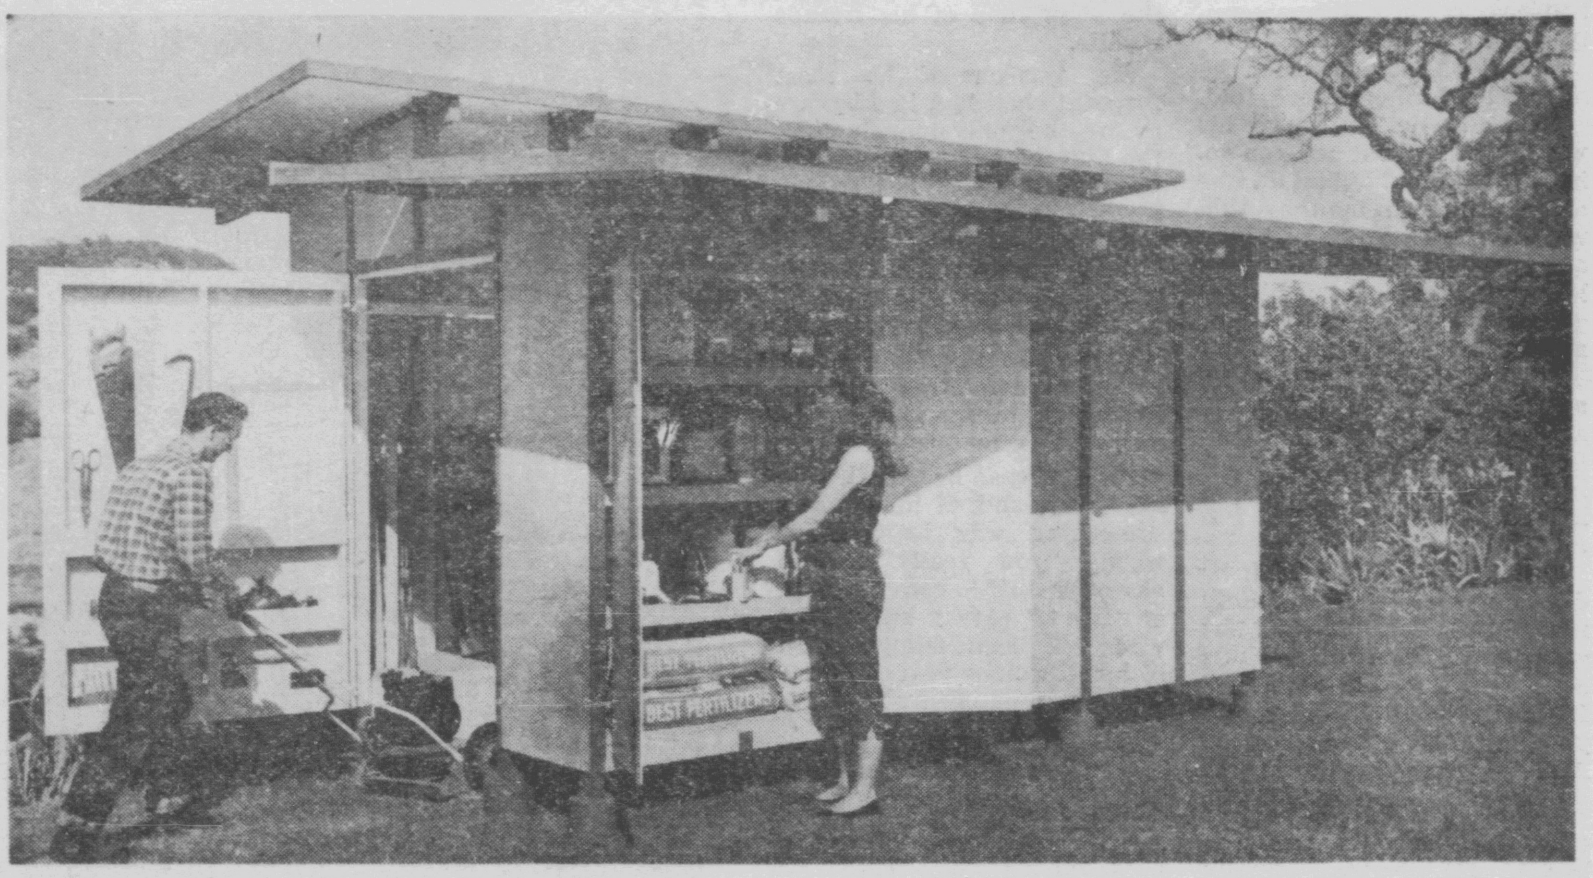

Luxury drinks are often made with eggs and milk or cream. Some varieties contain nutmeg, cinnamon, artificial coloring matter, flavorings and insoluble spices. When you begin to understand what is in a "luxury stain," you may wonder how they ever come out. Sometimes they don't, especially if a home remedy is applied.

If you have an accident with a holiday beverage or food, it is best to send the garment to a professional cleaner. Here is why. The egg and cream portion of the stain must be removed first. This your drycleaner does with enzymes at a controlled temperature. They "digest" the food in the stain. Then he removes the insoluble spices left in the fabric. Following that he must take out the artificial coloring matter. Each part of the stain requires a different treatment. The fabric, its coloring, too, must be considered. It isn't a job for an amateur. It takes a professional.

If you have a "luxury stain" on a party dress, take it to your professional drycleaner before the stain "sets." Tell him what it is. The chances are he can remove it safely if you haven't tampered with it.

BOOK REVIEWS

New Railroad Book Brings Back A Colorful U.S. Era

The title, "Casey Jones' Locker," in itself calls to the attention of the prospective book buyer the name of one who is now an American legend.

For several decades the name Casey Jones has brought to mind an act of courage synonymous with bravery in the American tradition. At the same time it also suggests something of the folklore of the railroad industry and all its many traditions. In this age of space travel, atom bombs, jet engines and the like, this book offers to the reader a fine collection of American nostalgia.

The author has chosen for his text a cross-section of the nation. Covering such places as the Black Hills region of South Dakota, where is located Mt. Rushmore National Memorial. Here in the wilderness, so beloved by the late President Theodore Roosevelt, writer Shaw has told the story of the building of the newest narrow gauge railroad, "The Black Hills Central."

To the lover of tales of the "Wild West," Casey Jones' Locker, has included several stories and legends of this, the last frontier of the continental United States. The story of the Aracata and Mad River Railroad, known locally as "The Annie and Mary," located in the Redwood groves of Humboldt County brings to the reader the vast importance of the lumbering industry in the northwest regions of California. The mention of the strange gauge, 45½ inches, rather than the standard width of four feet eight and one-half inches used by most of the railroads in the United States, tells how these early builders set their gauge to match the width of stringers in the company wharf near Aracata.

Author Shaw, a resident of Sausalito for over a decade, has done a service to present in a fashion that surely has been written from the bottom of his heart these most interesting bits of Americana.

Of interest to residents of the Bay Area: Mention is made of the several locomotive works located in San Francisco before the turn of the century which built some of the finest examples of the iron horse ever to operate on western rails. The Union Iron Works, founded by Peter Donahue, should call to mind for many a Marin County resident of some years that Mr. Donahues' home was one of the fine examples of Victorian architecture located on Lincoln avenue, in San Rafael. Donahue later became president of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad which had its southern terminal in Tiburon. This line being known as the "Donahue Broad-gauge," to distinguish it from its narrow-gauge neighbors in Marin and Sonoma Counties.

The author has spanned the Atlantic to tell some interesting facts from England, the country that gave us the steam locomotive. He tells how the first whistle for the steam locomotive was developed through the cooperation of a musician and George Stephenson, the inventor of the steam locomotive. As early as 1837 plans were made for the engine whistle and on Oct. 3, that year the world heard its first locomotive whistle. This was the beginning of a sound that was to be the most exciting ever developed by man, and to be heard far across the seas for over 100 years.

The mention of various types of early city transportation and its development in San Francisco brings to mind the unique cable car system that is still retained in the city by the Golden Gate, after all other cities that used this type of power have long since changed to other types of transport.

Along with the various tales and legends of early railroading, Shaw has selected a good set of half-tone illustrations, scale drawings and maps. With all of these included in the text there is something of interest for all who love rail transportation and the great part it has played in developing the "American Way of Life."

The model builder will enjoy the drawings and find them most helpful should he choose to build a small scale model for his collection. The photo collector will find much to his fancy the selection of pictures that depict the era when the steam locomotive was king. All in all, "Casey Jones' Locker" should find a place in many a Bay Area book shelf.

BRITISH SLEUTH John Gosling, former detective superintendent of Scotland Yard, tells the story of that law enforcement body's famed Ghost Squad in his book, "The Ghost Squad," published by Doubleday and Co. It's a Crime Club special about a special group of crack detectives set up to combat Britain's war-toughened criminals.

'Ghost Squad' Proves Mildly Amusing Scotland Yard Yarn

Surprisingly, the publishers have chosen to "bill" this book as a novel. But it is quite apparent that it is a non-fiction account of the operations of Scotland Yard's famed Ghost Squad by one of its members, John Gosling, the ex-detective superintendent of the Yard.

The reader will not find this book a suspenseful and gripping story of law officers battling crime. Instead he will find it a mildly amusing account of that strife, writing in keeping with the usual British tendency to "under-act."

As such it is no doubt a great deal more factual than many of our so-called non-fiction but much glamorized accounts of American law enforcement agencies in action.

Gosling and his fellow sleuths don't trade machine-gun fire with the underworld. They don't even carry guns. Their primary weapon against the foe is the "informer"—the "snout" in England, or the "stool-pigeon" or "squealer" as he is known in this country.

But we have a hunch that if this book's American counterparts were a bit less sensationalized, these same far-from-glamorous stoolies would also stand revealed as our own best weapon against crime.

All in all the reader will find this book somewhat less than gripping, but still entertaining enough to justify the time required to read it.

Big Jim Looks Back On 'Marvelous Life'

AT AGE 61 Jim Kehoe remains a commanding and handsome figure, much respected by his West Marin friends and neighbors. He's retired from public life, after 15 years service as a county supervisor, and from the active operatoin of his ranch. But though his busiest years now lie behind him, he is far from inactive.

There was no money for the road, the farmers were told.

When Kehoe got home, his wife asked: "What are you going to do now?" And in the direct, decisive manner that was to characterize Kehoe's approach to county business later, he snapped: "Hell, I'm going to run for supervisor myself."

He did just that, in 1940, and won by 64 votes, beating a man who had been in office for 20 years. And in his nearly 15 years in office Jim Kehoe never had anyone run against him.

But once on the board, he didn't press for that county road right away. "I said I was going to be diplomatic. I was a country boy, and shy. . . " He let the matter pass for two years, and then he spoke up. And his district got their road.

IN JANUARY 1955 he was elected chairman of the board. He changed rapidly from a "quiet guy" to an outspoken leader, surprising everyone by getting a firm grip on the controls and running the show, one of his friends recalls.

He was one of the most forceful chairmen in 15 years or so—the "only one who took the bull by the horns and shut people up," says the friend. He had an "incisive way with him," one of his fellow supervisors remembers.

His frequent comment to hurry up proceedings was "let's go on this." He believed in a minimum of unnecessary talk and a maximum of accomplishment.

As chairman he was firm in his ideas, and, if he thought something was haywire or wrong, "you really had to have the stuff to convince him it wasn't," says a supervisor who has been friends with Kehoe for many years. He was jolly, good-natured and frank —an "outspoken Irishman."

He wouldn't hesitate to use an occasional wisecrack, if necessary, to relieve the tension of a board meeting. And he could get angry, too.

The civic center issue brought Kehoe into the public eye more than anything else. Ask him what are the accomplishments he is most proud of during his years on the board and the civic center is high on the list. He was convinced that the county was not doing enough looking ahead to prepare itself to handle the increasingly difficult burdens of an expanding community. "I thought it was a necessity then, and I still do," he says.

He was also active on the county farm committee and the county fire board, and is proud of the growth of the once-tiny county fire department. One of Kehoe's closest friends is Marin County Fire Chief Charles R. Reiley.

WHEN A MAN is in public office, anything he does is bound to hurt or annoy someone in some way.

But for all his years as a supervisor, Jim smiles, "there are only two individuals in the county who don't care enough for Kehoe to speak to him . . . So I guess I haven't done too badly."

On March 8, 1955, Jim Kehoe resigned suddenly from the board of supervisors. The week before he had had a near blackout just before a supervisor's meeting. His doctor advised him to resign, and he took that advice. He says it was "old age . . . and one thing and another . . . I decided I had had enough."

Kehoe has been a Democrat for many years, but not a "dyed-in-the-wool" one. "I do my bit to help anyone if I think he is a good person," he says. When Gov. Earl Warren, a Republican, asked Kehoe to be his county co-chairman, he agreed, "because I didn't like the opposition, James Roosevelt."

Kehoe reportedly is in the background of a move to get Fire Chief Reilley to run for supervisor in the next election. "He's a friend of mine. He can count on me if he runs," says Kehoe.

Direct as always, he doesn't hesitate to speak out on matters that concern the county, his neighbors or himself. He is opposed to the federal government's proposal to take some 35,000 acres in West Marin for a park. He thinks parks and beaches are a necessity, but "you can't take all the land off the tax rolls for recreation." He believes the government is "too ambitious and should be satisfied with 10,000 acres. "That will last a great number of years." The proposal would affect some 17 different ranches, he says, including 400 to 500 acres of his own ranch.

KEHOE'S LIFE has not been without sadness. He and his wife had three sons. Their oldest, Robert James, a pilot in World War II, was killed over Germany on his 18th mission with the 8th Air Force. Charles Leroy was in a motorcycle accident 10 years ago and is still hospitalized as a result. Kenneth manages their dairy ranch and "does a better job than his father," his parents say. The herds on the Kehoe ranch have been in the top 10 in the county for production.

The Kehoes also have four grandsons and a granddaughter.

Jim goes to the ranch every day "to puddle around . . . fix a gate or water trough." There were once 20 horses on the ranch, but now that everything is mechanized, there is none.

Kehoe keeps a fine mare and her colt at his Inverness home, however. He likes to ride her on the beach (his ranch fronts on both ocean and bay) and sometimes uses her on the ranch.

Beachcombing is one of his favorite pastimes and he brings back many an object to adorn his yard: glass globes and floats from Japan, driftwood washed up on the beach. The "adornments" also include a couple of cattle skulls from the ranch. Mrs. Kehoe hasn't much patience with this hobby, she says, but with a smile.

JIM ALSO enjoys hunting. There are deer, quail and ducks on the ranch, and he likes to hunt in Wyoming and Colorado, too. He hopes to make a trip to South Dakota to hunt pheasants.

Kehoe is very much the fight fan, too, especially of the Golden Gloves, and won $165 on the last heavyweight fight when he bet on Ingemar Johannson, but "I'm not always that lucky."

"I do what I want to do," he says contentedly. But the many people he has helped and those who speak of him affectionately as "my old friend Jim" haven't forgotten the big man from West Marin whose philosophy of life is a very simple one: "live and let the other guy live."

Tips on Purchase and Home Care of Your Wardrobe

By BERT BROWN, Marin Cleaners of San Rafael and Bel Air

Holidays bring many beverage stains, not only egg nog. The family gathers around the punch bowl or, at one place or another, someone joggles an arm and the party dress is stained by egg nog, alcoholic beverages, cola drinks or even coffee. These are "luxury stains," from expensive drinks and foods. We must understand them to remove them.

Luxury drinks are often made with eggs and milk or cream. Some varieties contain nutmeg, cinnamon, artificial coloring matter, flavorings and insoluble spices. When you begin to understand what is in a "luxury stain," you may wonder how they ever come out. Sometimes they don't, especially if a home remedy is applied.

If you have an accident with a holiday beverage or food, it is best to send the garment to a professional cleaner. Here is why. The egg and cream portion of the stain must be removed first. This your drycleaner does with enzymes at a controlled temperature. They "digest" the food in the stain. Then he removes the insoluble spices left in the fabric. Following that he must take out the artificial coloring matter. Each part of the stain requires a different treatment. The fabric, its coloring, too, must be considered. It isn't a job for an amateur. It takes a professional.

If you have a "luxury stain" on a party dress, take it to your professional drycleaner before the stain "sets." Tell him what it is. The chances are he can remove it safely if you haven't tampered with it.

Even Milkman Has Idea For TV Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Got a great idea for a TV series? No doubt. You and several million other Americans.

The problem is how to convert the idea into a workable series. Richard Carlson is worth listening to on this matter. He has had two successful series, "I Led Three Lives" and "MacKenzie's Raiders" and is now devising a third.

No mere actor is Carlson. He has written many of his scripts and directed a half-dozen feature films. He often directs his own scripts for other TV shows.

"I GET SERIES ideas from everybody, even the milkman," commented Carlson. "Don't laugh. My milkman actually suggested that I should do a series based on his adventures. Something happens to him every day. Like trying to tame a dog who is unfriendly. Or trying to avoid the housewife who is too friendly.

"The series would be great — if you could get Red Skelton to play it. That's the trouble: The idea isn't enough. You've got to have a combination of things that add up to excitement. You've also got to find someone willing to put up two million dollars to finance a series. If you have the elements, a backer isn't too hard to find. The profits in TV series are enormous."

Carlson has numerous ideas for future series, including one that would be a bold venture in TV programming. He proposed a show that would feature all of the stars of the Ziv company: Broderick Crawford, Barry Sullivan, MacDonald Carey, Lloyd Bridges, Adolph Menjou and himself.

"Each week, one of us would be the star and the others would play bit roles," he said. "I had all the money and time elements worked out, but the conflict of sponsors defeated the plan. I still hope to find a way of doing it."

Marin Out-Of-Doors

THE WESTERN BLUEBIRD, a common resident in Marin, is sparrow size, 6½ to 7 inches long. The contrasting rich blue of head, neck, and upper parts and chestnut of back, breast, and sides are a lovely sight whether one sees a flock of Bluebirds on town telephone wires or in an open, grassy field. The birds are valuable for their main diet is insects with added weed seeds. Bluebirds nest in holes in trees, stumps, or posts or in bird boxes, raising 2 broods of 4 to 6 from May to July. The Bluebird has no musical song. (From "Out-of-Doors in Marin" copyrighted by M. F. Austin.)

New Railroad Book Brings Back A Colorful U.S. Era

The title, "Casey Jones' Locker," in itself calls to the attention of the prospective book buyer the name of one who is now an American legend.

For several decades the name Casey Jones has brought to mind an act of courage synonymous with bravery in the American tradition. At the same time it also suggests something of the folklore of the railroad industry and all its many traditions. In this age of space travel, atom bombs, jet engines and the like, this book offers to the reader a fine collection of American nostalgia.

The author has chosen for his text a cross-section of the nation. Covering such places as the Black Hills region of South Dakota, where is located Mt. Rushmore National Memorial. Here in the wilderness, so beloved by the late President Theodore Roosevelt, writer Shaw has told the story of the building of the newest narrow gauge railroad, "The Black Hills Central."

To the lover of tales of the "Wild West," Casey Jones' Locker, has included several stories and legends of this, the last frontier of the continental United States. The story of the Aracata and Mad River Railroad, known locally as "The Annie and Mary," located in the Redwood groves of Humboldt County brings to the reader the vast importance of the lumbering industry in the northwest regions of California. The mention of the strange gauge, 45½ inches, rather than the standard width of four feet eight and one-half inches used by most of the railroads in the United States, tells how these early builders set their gauge to match the width of stringers in the company wharf near Aracata.

Author Shaw, a resident of Sausalito for over a decade, has done a service to present in a fashion that surely has been written from the bottom of his heart these most interesting bits of Americana.

Of interest to residents of the Bay Area: Mention is made of the several locomotive works located in San Francisco before the turn of the century which built some of the finest examples of the iron horse ever to operate on western rails. The Union Iron Works, founded by Peter Donahue, should call to mind for many a Marin County resident of some years that Mr. Donahues' home was one of the fine examples of Victorian architecture located on Lincoln avenue, in San Rafael. Donahue later became president of the San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad which had its southern terminal in Tiburon. This line being known as the "Donahue Broad-gauge," to distinguish it from its narrow-gauge neighbors in Marin and Sonoma Counties.

The author has spanned the Atlantic to tell some interesting facts from England, the country that gave us the steam locomotive. He tells how the first whistle for the steam locomotive was developed through the cooperation of a musician and George Stephenson, the inventor of the steam locomotive. As early as 1837 plans were made for the engine whistle and on Oct. 3, that year the world heard its first locomotive whistle. This was the beginning of a sound that was to be the most exciting ever developed by man, and to be heard far across the seas for over 100 years.

The mention of various types of early city transportation and its development in San Francisco brings to mind the unique cable car system that is still retained in the city by the Golden Gate, after all other cities that used this type of power have long since changed to other types of transport.

Along with the various tales and legends of early railroading, Shaw has selected a good set of half-tone illustrations, scale drawings and maps. With all of these included in the text there is something of interest for all who love rail transportation and the great part it has played in developing the "American Way of Life."

The model builder will enjoy the drawings and find them most helpful should he choose to build a small scale model for his collection. The photo collector will find much to his fancy the selection of pictures that depict the era when the steam locomotive was king. All in all, "Casey Jones' Locker" should find a place in many a Bay Area book shelf.

BOLGER AS SERIOUS CLOWN—Comedian-dancer Ray Bolger stars as a popular clown who, tired of his comedy roles, wants to play a romantic leading man in the movies in "Silhouette" on the "General Electric Theater" tomorrow at 9 p. m. over KPIX (Channel 5).

Weekly TV Log

Even Milkman Has Idea For TV Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Got a great idea for a TV series? No doubt. You and several million other Americans.

The problem is how to convert the idea into a workable series. Richard Carlson is worth listening to on this matter. He has had two successful series, "I Led Three Lives" and "MacKenzie's Raiders" and is now devising a third.

No mere actor is Carlson. He has written many of his scripts and directed a half-dozen feature films. He often directs his own scripts for other TV shows.

"I GET SERIES ideas from everybody, even the milkman," commented Carlson. "Don't laugh. My milkman actually suggested that I should do a series based on his adventures. Something happens to him every day. Like trying to tame a dog who is unfriendly. Or trying to avoid the housewife who is too friendly.

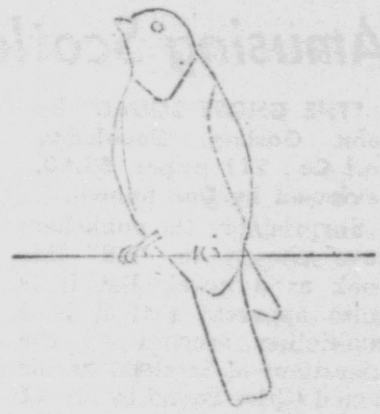

"The series would be great — if you could get Red Skelton to play it. That's the trouble: The idea isn't enough. You've got to have a combination of things that add up to excitement. You've also got to find someone willing to put up two million dollars to finance a series. If you have the elements, a backer isn't too hard to find. The profits in TV series are enormous."

Carlson has numerous ideas for future series, including one that would be a bold venture in TV programming. He proposed a show that would feature all of the stars of the Ziv company: Broderick Crawford, Barry Sullivan, MacDonald Carey, Lloyd Bridges, Adolph Menjou and himself.

"Each week, one of us would be the star and the others would play bit roles," he said. "I had all the money and time elements worked out, but the conflict of sponsors defeated the plan. I still hope to find a way of doing it."

Marin Out-Of-Doors

THE WESTERN BLUEBIRD, a common resident in Marin, is sparrow size, 6½ to 7 inches long. The contrasting rich blue of head, neck, and upper parts and chestnut of back, breast, and sides are a lovely sight whether one sees a flock of Bluebirds on town telephone wires or in an open, grassy field. The birds are valuable for their main diet is insects with added weed seeds. Bluebirds nest in holes in trees, stumps, or posts or in bird boxes, raising 2 broods of 4 to 6 from May to July. The Bluebird has no musical song. (From "Out-of-Doors in Marin" copyrighted by M. F. Austin.)
